FBI 'Army' Of 24 Trailed Miss Coplon, Court Told

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Judith Coplon heard at first hand yesterday how agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation "covered" her New York trysts with the Russian, Valentin A. Gubitchev.

Four of the FBI shadows testified at Miss Coplon's espionage trial in District Court, but they were only part of the surveillance force. One witness said 18 agents were used altogether in trailing her; another put the figure at 24.

FBI men were hovering nearby when she got off the Washington train at Pennsylvania Station in New York on January 14; they were on a subway train as she traveled to the Washington Heights section; they were behind her as she met a man identified as Gubitchev at 193d st. and Broadway, and they were still hanging on as she and the man went into the De Luxe Restaurant at 143 Dyckman st.

"An Army," Counsel Terms It

Archibald Palmer, attorney for the suspended Government girl, referred at one point to the "army of FBI agents."

Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., objected to this language, and asked Judge Albert L. Reeves to order it stricken out. Palmer agreed, saying that the number was "less than a battalion."

"I'm not a man of a few words," said Palmer a little later, and paid a tribute to Judge Reeves' own precision and economy in the use of words.

Judge Reeves nodded. Then, apparently referring to Palmer's confession of verbosity, observed that it was "unfortunate."

Palmer, in cross-examining the FBI witnesses, asked them if they saw tears streaming down Miss Coplon's face after she and Gubitchev left the De Luxe Restaurant.

Tears Weren't Noticed

None had noticed tears.

The defense attorney had brought out earlier in the trial that, at the time the two were in the restaurant, Miss Coplon learned for the first time that Gubitchev had a wife. He has set the groundwork for a defense based on the argument that his 27-year-old client was in love with the 32-year-old Russian and hoped to marry him.

Palmer also has claimed that Miss Coplon, a political analyst in the Department of Justice before her suspension, was gathering material for a novel—a story about "a G-girl."

He has not as yet gone into that before the jury.

Miss Coplon's demeanor in court yesterday was much different from what it had been last week. She smiled occasionally at remarks of Attorney Palmer, as did others, but there was no laughing behind her hand.

Palmer was disturbed by newspaper reports of Miss Coplon's seeming mirth in the court room, and had an explanation for it. He

Editor of Washington Post Among Pulitzer Prize Winners

Herbert B. Elliston, editor of The Washington Post, has been awarded a Pulitzer prize for distinguished editorial writing, it was announced yesterday.

At the same time, trustees of Columbia University, who make the awards annually, announced winners in other categories, ranging from drama to novel-writing.

Sharing honors with Elliston for "clearness, style, sound reasoning and the influence on public opinion" of their editorials, was John H. Crider, editor of the Boston Herald.

A New York Times Washington staff member, C. P. Trussell, 49 Western ave., Chevy Chase, Md., received the award for "consistent excellence in covering stories of national importance."

James Gould Cozzens won the top novel award for his "Guard of Honor," while the play, "Death of a Salesman," won the drama award for its creator, Arthur Miller.

The Nebraska State Journal of Lincoln, Nebr., was named winner of the prize for disinterested and meritorious public service "in spotlighting issues early in the 1948 presidential campaign."

The award for exemplary newspaper reporting went to Malcolm Johnson of the New York Sun for a series of stories on crime on New York's waterfront.

Price Day of the Baltimore Sun was the winner in the field of distinguished reporting in international affairs, for a series on India's first year of independence.

Compromise Labor Bill Is Due Today

By John B. Owen
Associated Press Reporter

Democratic leaders in the House hammered out a compromise labor bill late yesterday and planned to offer it on the floor today.

The compromise retains some features of the Taft-Hartley Law in an effort to assure the measure's passage.

It would replace the Administration labor bill which called for outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and revival of the New Deal Wagner Act with some modifications.

Disliking this bill, a number of Republicans and Southern Democrats have got behind a bill offered by Representative Wood (D., Ga.) to "repeal" the Taft-Hartley Act but re-enact most of its major provisions.

Rayburn Lists Points

To take the steam out of this drive for the Wood bill, the compromise was drafted. Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) told reporters after a two-hour conference of House leaders and House Labor Committee members that the compromise would include these points:

1. Injunction provisions, similar to those now in the Taft-Hartley law, to deal with labor disputes threatening the national security or safety. The Administration bill omitted these provisions.

2. A guarantee of free speech to employers and unions in labor disputes.

3. A requirement that unions make regular financial reports periodically.

4. A requirement that employers and union officials sign oaths of loyalty to the Government and swear they are not Communists before they can avail themselves of National Labor Relations Board procedures. The Taft-Hartley law contains the non-Communist-oath provision as to unions—and the Administration bill omits it altogether.

5. Creation of a joint congressional committee to study labor-management relations.

Vote on Compromise First

The House will vote on the compromise first. If it passes there will be no vote on the Wood bill or on the Administration measure, which is known as the Thomas-Lesinski bill.

Rayburn emphasized that the compromise had not been cleared with the Truman administration, and does not have Administration approval.

When Representative Lesinski (D., Mich.), chairman of the Labor Committee and an author of the Administration bill, was asked whether he approved the compromise, he replied:

"I will go along with the majority."

The conference included Rayburn, Majority Floor Leader McCormack (D., Mass.) and Majority Whip Priest (D., Tenn.) representing the House leadership.

From the Labor Committee were Lesinski, and the following Democrats: Jacobs of Indiana, Bailey of West Virginia, Kennedy of Massachusetts, and Sims of South Carolina.

Other Democrats called into the meeting were Representatives Harris of Arkansas, Combs of Texas and Lanham of Georgia.

Also called was William Tyson, Solicitor General of the Labor

Senate Beats $10 Aid for Every Pupil

The Senate yesterday defeated, 68 to 11, a proposal by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, jr. (R., Mass.), to distribute Federal aid to schools on a straight basis, $10 per school child.

The bill to aid the States with 300 million dollars a year in grants now provides for giving the poorer States, particularly in the South, up to $29 per child, while wealthier States would receive less, down to a minimum of $5 per child.

Lodge opposed the committee formula on the ground that citizens of Massachusetts and other of the so-called richer States are tired of being taxed for the benefit of others.

Segregation Rider Offered

Another Lodge amendment, which was made the pending order of business last night, would deny Federal aid to any State whose public schools have a segregated system.

In his analysis of the bill, Lodge declared that under his amendment the District of Columbia would receive $809,000 in Federal aid as against $580,000 under the committee bill, a difference of $229,000. Maryland, he said, would receive $575,000 more under his amendment.

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.), opposing the Lodge amendment, said his State would gain some $100,000 more under the Lodge amendment but he would not vote for it. It would be "fairer," Aiken said shortly, to state flat opposition to the bill "rather than offering amendments to kill it."

Graham Hits Amendment

Senator Frank P. Graham (N. C.), former president of the University of North Carolina, who took his seat only a few weeks ago, strongly opposed the anti-segregation amendment on the ground that it would defeat the bill and "would be an exercise of Federal control of State and local schools."

Graham, who is recuperating from pneumonia, said in a statement read to the Senate that present "inequalities in education opportunities are a menace to our democracy." Federal aid to education is long overdue, he contended.

"The people have long been calling. Congress has long been stalling," he said.

11 Republicans Vote Yes

All eleven votes for the Lodge amendment were cast by Republicans. They were, besides Lodge, Senators John Bricker (O.); Zales N. Ecton (Mont.); Robert C. Hendrickson (N.J.); William E. Jenner (Ind.); James P. Kem (Mo.); Andrew F. Schoeppel (Kas.); Kenneth S. Wherry (Neb.) and John J. Williams (Del.).

A debate between Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.), both usually on the same side when it comes to cutting Government expenditures, was the highlight of yesterday's session.

Taft contended that Federal aid to education is right and necessary. Byrd called it more deficit spending.

Arguing against the Lodge amendment, Taft said:

"It (the committee plan) is not a transfer of the education money from one State to another State, but it is a tax on the Nation as a

Government Formula Sets 'Fair' Return At 20 to 25%

Landlords Netting Less to Be Granted Increases to 25 And 30 Per Cent

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Government last night announced the formula it will use to determine which landlords can raise their rents.

Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods said he could give no estimate of the number of dwelling units that would be affected.

Tenants must be notified of proposed rent increases before they are granted and have the right to appeal to regional and national offices.

Under the "fair net operating income provision" of the Rent Control Extension law passed last month, Woods has made these provisions:

1. ANY landlord operating a "small" structure can get a rent increase if his net operating income is less than 25 per cent of his gross income. He will be given an increase to bring his net operating income up to 30 per cent.

2. ANY landlord operating a "large" structure can get an increase if his net operating income is less than 20 per cent of his gross income. He will get an increase to bring his net operating income up to 25 per cent.

Large and Small Defined

A small structure was defined as one containing one to four dwelling units. A large structure is one with more than four units.

Gross income is the total the landlord takes in on his rental properties.

Net operating income was defined in the OHE regulation as the amount of income remaining after the payment of all operating expenses and an allowance for depreciation.

Payments for interest or amortization of mortgage indebtedness are not included in operating expenses, since they represent charges incident to acquisition of the property rather than to the operation of the property.

Depreciation Allowance

Depreciation is entered as an expense in the amount the landlord reported on his latest required Federal income tax return with a limitation that the amount shall not exceed 21 per cent of the gross income in the case of the small structures and 16 per cent in the case of large structures.

The reason for these percentage limits is that in the income and expense data analyzed to arrive at the figures for a fair net operating

Bolt Ignites Gas Tank At Ft. Belvoir

A 400,000 gallon gasoline tank at Fort Belvoir burst into flames when struck by lightning last night, causing a glow which was plainly visible from high points in the District. Thirty thousands dollars worth of gasoline—300,000 gallons—was destroyed.

The tank, on a hilltop clearing in the middle of a wooded area ten miles off Route 1, was located at Eebee Field, an installation used for testing fire fighting equipment.

The heat was so intense that 100 firefighters and equipment from six departments let it burn itself out, confining their efforts to keep the blaze from spreading into the woods.

No one was injured. Companies responded from Fort Belvoir, Franconia, Penn-Daw, Annandale, Occoquan-Woodbridge and Mount Vernon.

Rain, Lightning, Winds Join to Damage District

Rain driven by gusts of wind that reached velocities of more than 40 miles an hour battered the city last night, flooding basements, knocking down power lines and tree limbs.

In less than an hour more than an inch of rain fell on individuals caught outside. The temperature dropped nine degrees as manhole covers were literally floated down the street.

Police reported severe lightning in the city and nearby counties. At the National Airport visibility reached a low of 400 feet and pilots said they experienced the worst turbulence in years over the field.

Creeks and fords were swollen throughout the area, and windows were blown from some store fronts in downtown Washington.

$3697 Cadillac Charged to Golf Courses

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The sleek $3697 Cadillac driven by S. G. Leoffler, public golf course concessionaire, was charged to last year's operating expenses, it was revealed yesterday at the congressional hearing on the public links situation.

James E. Schwab, vice chairman of the D. C. Recreation Board, made the disclosure and added that the cost of operation alone for eight automobiles for the year was listed at $10,505.72, an average of about $1325.

Discrepancy Charged

The revelation by Schwab followed an earlier charge by Representative Norris Poulson (R., Calif.) that a $20,000 discrepancy existed in the golf figures over a 10-year period.

Poulson, a certified public accountant, called the Leoffler system so antiquated that it was difficult to check.

After the hearing, Leoffler admitted that his car was charged as an operating expense and said he used it on business. Asked if he drove around the five golf courses, Leoffler said he did. "I don't have any regular schedule," he explained, "I just go around whenever it's necessary."

Says He Drove West

Schwab later said he understands Leoffler has had the Cadillac for his personal use and on at least one occasion drove it to Kansas. Before the hearing, Schwab said he took a look at the speedometer and saw that it registered more than 15,000 miles for less than a year.

Mention of the Cadillac was a small part of the 29-page testimony that Schwab took nearly two hours to read at yesterday's hearing before the special House Public Lands Subcommittee.

In great detail, he questioned the financial statements of the Leoffler Co., pointed out the weaknesses of the present setup and ac-

3 Western Powers Confer On Blockade

New York, May 2 (AP).—Envoys of the three big Western powers conferred for more than an hour today on the Berlin blockade. Afterward a United States spokesman indicated no new meeting with Russia is expected within the next 24 hours.

Today's conference was called by U. S. Ambassador-at-large Philip C. Jessup to fix a joint approach to the Russians on lifting the blockade, Britain was represented by Sir Alexander Cadogan and France by Jean Chauvel.

After the meeting they put out a statement saying the discussions still are "proceeding satisfactorily." They declined to disclose whether any agreement on the Western stand had been reached.

There were indications that one or more of the conferees wanted time to refer the problem to his home government for approval.

The United States spokesman expressed doubts that a meeting with Russia's Jacob A. Malik would be arranged before Wednesday. He said he could not be any more specific than to say the Western Powers would communicate

Reds Claim Deep Thrust In South China

Shanghai, May 2 (AP).—The Communist radio said tonight one Red army column (about 20,000 men) had reached Kimen and joined with Communist guerillas already operating in that hilly region 200 miles southwest of Nanking.

This report seemed to confirm a Shanghai Nationalist garrison announcement of April 29 that three Communist armies were driving south and southeast in that area. The armies were identified as the Fourteen, Fifteen and Sixteen under Gen. Chen Keng.

Kimen, 70 miles south of the Yangtze River, is 80 miles north of the railway that leads from Shanghai through Hangchow southwest to Canton, provisional government capital.

The government Central News Agency earlier today said rail service southwest of Hangchow had been suspended. It later attributed this to exhaustion of coal supplies on that division.

(Hangchow, Nationalist "escape hatch" 121 miles southwest of Shanghai, already was closely threatened by the leisurely moving Reds, however.

(The Communists evidently were driving south towards the rail artery to Canton rather than making any serious bid for capture of Hangchow or of Shanghai.)

The Central News Agency said Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province 350 miles southwest of Hangchow, was already "almost deserted" and that most provin-

Tyrone Powers Reported Trapped By Desert Flood

London, May 2—(UP)—Movie idol Tyrone Power and his bride Linda Christian were reported trapped in the French Moroccan desert tonight after a flash flood from the Atlas Mountain cut them off.

A message to London said the star and his wife were driving from Meknes in northern French Morocco to an Arab village where a moving picture unit is filming "The Black Rose" when the flood, caused by a cloudburst, swept across the sands.

The message also said 19-year-old French movie starlet Cecile Aubrey and her mother were missing in the flood.

In Rockville Pike Accident

Physician Is Given Year In Prison for Auto Death

A 33-year-old Maryland psychiatrist, Dr. Robert Roy Morris, yesterday was sentenced to one year in prison for manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident.

The charges arose out of an accident on April 10 on the Rockville pike near Garrett Park rd., in which Juliette Ann Fleck, 17, of Youngwood, Pa., was fatally injured.

Commenting that Dr. Morris was guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt," Trial Magistrate Warren Browning of Bethesda Police Court, told the nervous defendant:

"The offense was especially reprehensible because you are a doctor, and perhaps the only one here who could render aid to the dying girl."

Dr. Morris, who is director of the Montgomery County Mental Hygiene Clinic, paled visibly when sentence was pronounced. His attorneys immediately appealed, and he was released under $1500 bond pending higher court action.

During the day-long trial, prosecuting attorneys charged that Dr. Morris' left rear fender struck the car in which Miss Fleck was riding, causing the driver to lose control and strike an oncoming vehicle headon.

The psychiatrist and former Naval medical officer denied any knowledge of hitting the car. He did admit striking the rear of another car. He produced the driver of this vehicle as a witness.

The driver was Miss Irene W. Starr, 3415 Wisconsin ave. nw. She said she was stopped by Dr. Morris, who inquired "very politely" if he had caused any damage.

Both said they agreed it was only a bump and both then drove off toward Washington. Miss Starr made herself known after reading a newspaper story of Dr. Morris' appeal that an elderly woman with a hearing aid identify herself.

He was arrested two days after the accident when Montgomery County Police Sergt. Leo Day spotted Dr. Morris' car, which an-

Doctors Say It Is THEIR Plan

Maryland Solves Health Problem

By Agnes E. Meyer
(Third of a Series)

DR. ROBERTS, State medical director, says that 90 per cent of the indigent are now receiving good treatment under the Maryland Health Plan, whereas the medically indigent for lack of funds, are getting only emergency care. Varying economic conditions play a decisive role. In some of the impoverished counties, the budget is not sufficient for the care of the heavy relief rolls.

In Montgomery County, one of the richest counties in the whole country, where the relief load is as low as 728 in a population of 140,000, the number of medically indigent that are reached is at least three times that of the relief clients, or about 1200 out of a monthly total of 1500 clients.

In determining medical indigency, great leeway has been given the county health officers. They interpret the regulations wisely and as generously as their budgets permit. In general, the top salary for eligibility is $1000 per year, per individual. In some of the poor counties, the great number of low incomes sets a limit of $750; $200 additional income is allowed for every additional member of the family.

Thus, big families with higher incomes are eligible, whereas the small family with the same income is not eligible. This is just but it is hard to interpret to the smaller families. The casual worker who refuses to work more days of the week than will just keep his family in food, clothing and shelter—a common type in our country—is another problem. On a per diem basis, such families are ineligible but they can't be refused medical care without punishing the children. In spite of these complications, most of the health officers do an excellent job of selecting the neediest cases among the borderline income groups. Because medical problems are always involved in these decisions, it is considered advantageous to leave them to the Health Department.

No Sense of Disgrace

AS THE means test is usually condemned as somehow degrading to individual dignity, I listened to some of the interviews to gauge the attitude of the clients. Feeling they might resent a witness, I asked their permission to be present. Most of them said "Why sure, why not?" And the conversation with the examining clerk was in this same matter-of-fact tone.

In other words, there was no more sense of disgrace involved than the wealthier clients of the Mayo Clinic feel when they give similar information as to their incomes. We forget that most hospital patients receive charges graded to income. There is no reason why the lower income groups should object to it more than the others. In fact, they don't object when it is done in the friendly manner used in these county health departments.

The problem as to who is medically indigent has not yet been solved in general terms. Perhaps it never can be rigidly defined even on a State-wide, much less a Nation-wide basis, because economic, social and geographical conditions are so varied in our country.

But Dr. Perry Prather, Washington County health officer, who practiced medicine 40 years in his county before accepting this office, is convinced that if poverty creates bad health, bad health also creates poverty. "Therefore, we preserve the independence and productivity of our marginal income groups," he maintains, "if we protect their health by a tax-supported program. It is more humane and

D. C. Couple Dies in Maryland Crash of Their Private Plane

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Boswell, Washington psychic mediums with two studios on 14th st. nw., were found dead in the wreckage of their light plane yesterday on a Maryland farm 35 miles northwest of Baltimore.

The twisted wreckage and the bodies were discovered early in the afternoon by a man walking through the woods on a Carroll County farm two miles north of Manchester, Md., near the Pennsylvania border.

National Airport officials said the Boswells took off for Washington from Norfolk Municipal Airport about 11:40 p. m. Washington time Sunday and had not been heard from since.

Maryland State police reasoned that the pilot, perhaps lost, had run out of gas and was trying to make an emergency landing in a clearing. The tops of trees were sheared off for about 20 yards.

Dr. James E. Marsh, Carroll County medical examiner, yesterday said the couple had been dead from 18 to 24 hours.

MacDonald said Boswell was 50 years old and his wife, who is known professionally by her former name, Anna Van De Kreeke, was 46. They had studios at 1311 14th st. nw., and 1527 14th st. nw. Each is survived by one child from a previous marriage, he said.

Boswell's son, Benjamin Stanley Boswell, 15, is a cadet at Staunton Military Academy, and his wife's daughter, Sandra Van De Kreeke, 12, lives in the family residence in the 1527 14th st. studio.

Ingrid Bergman, Director to See Star's Husband

Rome, Italy, May 2 (U.P.).—Ingrid Bergman and Italian film director Roberto Rossellini left Stromboli Island today for a secret rendezvous in Sicily with Peter Lindstrom, the Swedish film star's husband.

"I will have an important declaration to make when we return," Rossellini said.

Reports are that Miss Bergman and Rossellini are considering whether to marry.

A lawyer said Rossellini had instructed him to take necessary legal steps to establish Rossellini's freedom to marry. An annulment of a first marriage was obtained by Rossellini in Hungary in 1942. It has not been registered in Italy.

Southwest Group Plans Slum Talks

The Southwest Citizens Association last night voted to invite all interested groups in the area to attend a meeting to discuss Southwest slum clearance.

President Frank M. Hurst said the date would be set in the near future after consultation with other organizations. The group met in the Southwest Branch Library, 7th and H sts. sw.

Outstanding service awards were presented to Mrs. Dorothy Troiano and Lloyd Jones, corresponding secretary and recording secretary since 1946.

The association also indorsed the petition of a private operator to run a free ferry from the foot of 7th st. to East Potomac Park for children during the summer.

Manor Park

Homer J. Smith, architect of 220 Quackenbos st. nw., was elected president of the Manor Park Citizens Association last night at a meeting at Whittier School, 5th and Sheridan sts. nw.

Smith succeeds Leverett J. Meadows who is moving from the neighborhood.

Others elected were T. W. Buckley, first vice president; John W. Smoot, second vice president; Mrs. Sterling B. Balderson, recording secretary; Herbert G. Powell, corresponding secretary; Harry G. Corcoran, treasurer; Smith and George A. Corbin, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations; and Smith, Corbin and Corcoran, delegates to the North Washington Council of Citizens Associations.

Stanton Park

The Stanton Park Citizens Association last night voted to request the District Commissioners to take precautionary measures regarding safety of the remaining portions of the Empire Building, 9th st. and New York ave. nw.

The group meeting in Peabody School, 5th and C sts. ne., acted to ask the Commissioners to determine if the walls of the collapsed structure are safe for rebuilding and, if found to be unsafe, to order complete razing.

The group also voted to request the Division of Sanitation to clean streets and alleys in the neighborhood; to request the Commissioners and Board of Education to place protective screens over school windows adjoining playgrounds, and to repeat its request to the Park Police to detail a policeman to Stanton Park.

Takoma Park

The Citizens Association of Takoma Park last night adopted a resolution asking the Recreation Board for improvements at the Takoma Recreation Center.

The action, taken at a meeting at the Takoma School, Piney Branch rd. and Dahlia st. nw., asked for drainage, grading and planting of control plants on banks to combat erosion, painting the field house, construction of walks and steps and additional landscaping.

The association also voted to ask the Highway Department for improved street cleaning in the area and for painting of safety islands on Piney Branch rd. between Georgia ave. and Butternut st.

Dupont Circle

Col. E. Goring Bliss, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company executive, yesterday was elected to his sixth term as president of the Dupont Circle Citizens Association.

Col. Bliss was unopposed for his fourth consecutive term at the meeting at the Mayflower Hotel.

Other officers elected were Harral Mullekin, first vice president; Mrs. Charles Collins, second vice president; W. Herbert Gill, treasurer; John H. Coffman, secretary, and Maj. General U. S. Grant, 3d., and Lloyd Luther, members of the executive committee.

Minnesota Center

The Minnesota Center Citizens Association last night indorsed Mrs. Bonita Chelton Matthews, attorney, for appointment to the Court of Appeals bench if three additional judgeships are created.

The group also gave its indorsement for reappointment of John Russell Young as District Commissioner. It met at the Benning School, Minnesota ave. and Benning rd. ne.

Georgetown Progressives

The Progressive Citizens of Georgetown last night indorsed in general the Kefauver bill for District suffrage. It met at Christ Church parish hall, 31st and O sts. nw.

Indorsement also was given a resolution of the Burroughs Citizens Association requesting a Government loan without interest for school repair and construction.

The group also favored the Abernathy bill requiring registration of architects and the current antivivisection bill, although requesting that the period for holding dogs at the pound be increased from two days to five, and opposed the bill for regulation of optometrists. A resolution favoring making the Belasco Theater available for legitimate plays was adopted.

JURY CROSSES E STREET AFTER LEAVING COURT DURING RECESS FOR DINNER

FBI 'Army' of 24 Trailed Miss Coplon, Court Is Told

likened Miss Coplon to the Spartan boy who kept up his courage even though a fox was gnawing at his vitals.

He said that Miss Coplon had been smiling in court to reassure her mother, Mrs. Rebecca Coplon, who sits just behind her.

"Those are not smiles of derision," he said. "They are smiles of courage."

He said that Judith's father died recently as a result of the case, and that her mother was ill.

"What is she going to do, kill her too?" Palmer asked the reporters.

Reception Committee of 6

The attorney said he didn't care a rap what was said about him—that he was "gauche," for example.

Richard T. Hradsky, a special agent of the FBI, was the first witness yesterday. He was one of a half a dozen agents who were waiting to trail Miss Coplon when she arrived on the Washington train in New York on the afternoon of January 14. Defense Attorney Palmer called this the "reception committee."

Agent Hradsky, using a pointer and a map showing a section of New York City, told how he followed Miss Coplon as she traveled by foot and subway to the corner of 193d st. and Broadway. He said she stood in front of a cigar store for about 10 minutes.

"About that time," the agent said, "Valentin Gubitchev stepped up to her. They exchanged a few words, and then walked up Broadway together."

He told of following them to the De Luxe Restaurant, and later as they walked to a subway station. He boarded the subway train with them, and saw them sitting together and talking.

The express stopped at the 125th st. station. Here, the agent said, Gubitchev jumped up and left just as the doors were closing. He said the Russian then boarded a "local" going in the same direction.

Hradsky left Miss Coplon at this point and trailed Gubitchev, part of the way on the subway and part in a taxicab. He dropped the surveillance as Gubitchev went into another subway station.

Followed Gubitchev to Home

Next morning, acting on orders, he was on Gubitchev's trail again. He said he saw him come out of a building at 680 Park ave. which houses the Soviet delegation to the United Nations. He followed him until he saw him go into an apartment house at 64 W. 108th st., which turned out to be the Russian's home.

Richard E. Brennan, another FBI agent followed Hradsky to the stand. He had been on the same surveillance job and told pretty much the same story. At one point, Prosecutor Kelley asked him to describe the "nature" of Miss Coplon's walk.

Defense Attorney Palmer objected that this was irrelevant, and shouted:

"What does that mean, pigeontoed or what?"

Defendant Smiles Again

Miss Coplon smiled.

John F. Malley, another FBI agent, said he didn't know who Gubitchev was and had never heard of him when he was given the trailing asisgnment.

In response to questions by Palmer, he said he had never seen Gubitchev kiss Miss Coplon or even touch her.

"Did you at any time see this girl give anything to this man?" Palmer asked.

"No," said Malley.

He made the same answer when asked if he had seen tears flowing from the girl's eyes after she and Gubitchev left the De Luxe Restaurant.

FBI Agent Roger W. Robinson, the next witness, was asked about what he said to Miss Coplon after she was at FBI headquarters in Foley Square, after she and the Russian had been arrested.

Name-Calling Denied

"Didn't you say that she was white trash?" Palmer asked Robinson. "Didn't you say that the chair she was sitting in had been sat in by dope peddlers and white slavers?"

Robinson insisted that at no time had Miss Coplon been called any names.

He said that 18 FBI agents were used to trail Miss Coplon and Gubitchev on the three times they met—January 14, February 18 and March 4.

Palmer asked if it wasn't true that the FBI was seeking appropriations about this time. The prosecution objected to the question, and Judge Reeves ruled it out.

Agent Robinson agreed that he had never seen Miss Coplon give Gubitchev anything, and never saw him give her anything.

Tells of Preparing Maps

Leo J. Gauthier, FBI agent of this city, who is in charge of preparing maps and charts, told how he interviewed the New York agents in preparing the maps that were put in evidence.

He said that he talked to 24 agents in New York in preparing the maps.

When adjournment was taken until 10 o'clock this morning, the prosecution still had to call in witnesses to testify about the Coplon-Gubitchev meetings of February 18 and March 4.

Gubitchev Trial Adjourned a Week

New York, May 2 (AP).—The espionage trial of Valentin A. Gubitchev, suspended Russian United Nations employe, was adjourned today until May 9. Gubitchev still objected "the court has no jurisdiction over me," because of claimed diplomatic immunity.

A Soviet citizen, he is under indictment for espionage with Judith Coplon, suspended Department of Justice employe.

Naval Academy Board Urges Expansion of Faculty, Plant

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday received a report from the Naval Academy Board of Visitors urging expansion of the academy faculty and plant and construction of an air field.

The board—composed of prominent educators, members of Congress and other civilians—submitted its recommendations after its annual visit to Annapolis.

In backing the controversial Naval Academy airfield, the board called for spending $2,500,000 for purchase of land and construction of the base. Congress already has authorized building the airport at Sandy Point, about seven miles from Annapolis on Chesapeake Bay, but no funds were included in the 1950 budget for the project.

Midshipmen Found Crowded

The board, headed by President James P. Baxter III, of Williams College, said that 3200 midshipmen are crowded into accommodations designed for only 2500. By October, it was said, the Navy school will have 3500 midshipmen and 3800 by the fall of 1950.

"The Board of 1949," the report to Mr. Truman declared, "considers essential, urgent and imperative the erection at once of two dormitory wings and increase in messing facilities at Bancroft Hall."

This expansion would cost $5,778,000, it was said. Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., Academy superintendent, told the board that the contemplated increased enrollment of the school probably would be required to keep the Navy officer rolls up to strength even though the sea service were "radically reduced."

Policy Commended

The report commended the Naval Academy for avoiding "that specialization which on so many other sections of the education front is producing specialists who know more and more about less and less."

It approved the "policy of a four-year service academy devoted to broad preparation of naval officers in fundamental principles." There have been recent proposals from outside the academy that Annapolis and West Point be converted into postgraduate schools and require college training for entrance.

"In adition to acquiring knowledge and skills, the midshipman needs to develop his sense of values" said the report. "And here the Academy does a job that puts many other American educational institutions to shame."

The Board of Visitors found morale at the academy "high" and the discipline "exacting but sympathetic."

Faculty Expansion "Vital"

Expansion of the faculty to preserve the present ratio of seven students to one instructor is "vital," declared the board.

Stressing the importance of familiarizing midshipmen with aviation, the board declared the present air program is "quite inadequate." Aircraft used for training are "obsolete and too few in number"—all are seaplanes—while the present seadrome is hazardous, said the report.

Members of the board signing the report, in addition to Doctor Baxter, were: the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, president of Notre Dame; Dr. Charles E. Diehl, president of Southwestern University; Dr. Charles H. Elliott of Seton Hall College; Gov. William P. Lane of Maryland; Thomas A. Morgan, president of Sperry Corp.; Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) and Representatives Miller (R., Md.), Sasscer (D., Md.) and Stefan (R., Nebr.). Saltonstall noted that as a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee he had not joined in the recommendations for specific spending at the academy.

B. & O. to Unveil New-Type Trains Here Thursday

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad will take the wraps off its new strata-domed Columbian trains at simultaneous unveilings in Washington and Chicago Thursday morning.

The plush new trains will provide fast overnight service between here and Chicago at regular coach fares. They will go into regular service on May 15.

Miss Drucie Snyder, daughter of Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. John W. Snyder, will christen the Columbian at Union Station in ceremonies beginning at 10 a. m. A Chicago girl will do likewise in the Windy City's B. & O. terminal.

Following the ceremonies, the trains will be exhibited on stops along the route. They will be on view at the Silver Spring station Saturday and Sunday from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Church Group to Dance

Our Lady of Sorrows Church, Takoma Park, Md., will hold a spring dance Friday from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. at the Silver Spring Armory, for the benefit of its school building fund. Admission is $1.45 per person.

Tremor Rocks Coast

Los Angeles, May 2 (AP).—A slight earth tremor was felt throughout a wide area of Southern California early today. There was no damage reported.

Travel Talk Slated

"Weekends to Historic and Scenic Maryland and Virginia" will be the title of an address to members of the Signal Corps Officers' Wives Association at noon today at the Army and Navy Country Club. The speaker will be Norman R. Weiss of the Travel and Touring Department, District of Columbia Division, American Automobile Association.

Pact Is Vital To Recovery, Lovett Says

Former Undersecretary of State Robert Lovett told Congress yesterday" that Russia's "savage reaction' to the Marshall Plan was responsible for the proposed North Atlantic Treaty.

In response to questioning by Senator Watkins (R., Utah) an opponent of the pact, Lovett declared that without the provision in the treaty that an "attack on one nation was an attack on all" the pact would lose "its strength."

In his morning appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Lovett said:

1. That the policies and practices of Russia and its satellites have created a "sense of insecurity in the free countries of Western Europe" making the treaty necessary to peace and recovery.

Obligation for U. S.

2. That the treaty provides that the United States has an obligation to take action in case of an attack on any signatory nation, but not necessarily the same action it "would take if an American city were attacked.

Recovery in Europe, Lovett said, can not be fully achieved without restoring a sense of security against aggression.

with Malik "at the appropriate time."

This was seen as an indication that the western powers would take the initiative in proposing the next meeting. It still was uncertain, however, whether Britain and France would be brought into the dealings with Russia, at this stage or whether Jessup would continue to represent them.

The Western talks were held at the Park ave. headquarters of the American delegation to the U. N. Jessup called the British and French representatives in after weekend conferences in Washington with Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Text of Statement

The three-power statement said:

"Since the beginning of the talks between Dr. Jessup and Mr. Malik, the representatives of France and the United Kingdom have been kept fully informed. The repreesntatives of the three Western powers have met together from time to time to exchange views on the progress of these informal discussions.

"Today's meeting with Ambassador Chauvel and Sir Alexander Cadogan is another one in the series of such meetings. Every negotiation involving four parties takes time and this one is no exception. Particularly since the capitals of three of the parties are so distant. As was stated Friday night, the discussions are proceeding satisfactorily.

"But to ensure that this prograss continues without the possibility of misunderstandings developing, through premature publication, nothing will be released on the subject of today's talks."

The American-British-French meeting was the latest in the series of closely guarded diplomatic talks spurred by the official Soviet news agency's announcement a week ago that Russia was ready to open up Berlin.

Pan-German Party Arises In Austria

Vienna, May 2 (NYHT).—The reentry of Austrian extreme rightists with pan-Germanist tendencies into Austrian politics as members of a party formally recognized by the Vienna government was regarded as likely today as a result of developments over the weekend.

Unless the occupying powers intervene, the Association of Independents, an organization with headquarters in Salzburg, and a considerable following of former Nazis, will be able to run candidates in the national elections this fall, since Oskar Helmer, Socialist minister of interior, has declared the creation of political parties will be subject to no restraints in the future.

Heading the association is Herbert Kraus, described in Allied quarters as "pan-Germanist but not a Nazi." Although he reportedly does not favor Nazi doctrines, his widely read publication "Die Neue Front" has developed an anti-Semitic tone.

Reds Expected to Lift Economic Iron Curtain

Berlin, May 2 (AP).—Authoritative American sources expressed belief tonight the Soviet Union wants to shelve the cold war with the aim of easing East-West economic barriers as well as ending the Berlin blockade. They say the Russians hope to do this without sacrificing long-range Communist political objectives.

These sources said that, besides ending the Berlin blockade, Russia probably would make the following concessions:

1. Agree to virtually any proposal the West makes on Germany in order to gain entry to the West and get a central German government which they might be able to influence.

2. Open eastern Europe to Western trade, lifting at least the economic iron curtain.

European Trade Deficit Is Reduced

Europe's exports in 1948 of goods and services to the rest of the world fell $5,600,000,000 short of meeting the costs of its imports, the International Monetary Fund reported yesterday.

The Continent's trade deficit on goods and services in 1947 was $7,600,000,000. The reduction in this deficit in 1948 reflected increases in European exports and shipping income, which were only partially offset by increased imports, and appears to have occurred wholly in transactions with the United States. Three-fourths or more of this reduction in Europe's adverse balance was attributable to a reduction in the adverse balance of the United Kingdom.

Europe's total payments deficit in 1947, including among other factors the payment of gold and dollars in subscriptions to the fund and International Bank, came to $9,100,000,000. The corresponding figure for 1948 was the same as the deficit for goods and services—$5,600,000,000. The $3,500,000,000 difference represented the amount by which governments reduced compensatory official financing—i .e., movements of gold and foreign exchange reserves, official grants and credits, and other financing undertaken by the monetary authorities to balance international transactions.

Spain Believed Negotiating For U. S. Loan

Yugoslavia May Seek U. S. Loan

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, May 2 (U.P.).—A reliable informant said tonight that Yugoslavia would soon ask for a United States loan running into the tens of millions of dollars and that the request probably would be granted.

The informant said the Yugoslav Embassy in Washington would make its bid for dollars in a very short time.

"In fact, it may already have been done," the informant said.

He explained that Sava Kosanovic, Yugoslav ambasasdor, recently expressed to the State Department Yugoslavia's desire for American credits and had been given an "understanding" hearing.

The informant said also that the Yugoslav government had asked the Chase National Bank of New York and the Bank of America for loans in excess of five million dollars.

The informant said that the American banks had consulted United States Government officials and that their attitude had been favorable.

Formal request by Yugoslavia for an American loan or loans would be one of the most important developments since Marshal Tito split the Communist world by refusing to knuckle down to Russia.

It would be formal notice of Yugoslavia's determination to fulfill its five-year plan of industrial development regardless of what its enemies in the Cominform might say about dealings with "capitalists."

Washington-Lee Elects 4 Student Officers Today

Students at Arlington's Washington-Lee High School today will elect four student government officers from a field of 19 candidates.

Up for president are: Pat Frankhouser, one of the first girl candidates for the post in years; Bill Keesee, Joe Staples, and Herby Wilson. In the vice president race are Norman Beachley, Gilbert Buchanan, and Tom Rothrock.

For secretary—Donna Breeding, Jo Ann Christopherson, Betty Jean Hill, Marian McSurely, and Barbara Norby; for treasurer, Dottie Baldwin, George Gerber, Penny Hutchinson, Harry Orville, Barbi Sievers, Joyce Springer, and Beth Trevor.

Discontented Held Likely Red Members

Victims of unsuccessful love affairs, thrill-seeking youngsters and persons soured on life are all likely candidates for the Communist movement.

So said Benjamin Mandell, research analyst for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, in a speech, "What Makes Communists Tick?" given last night at the sixth anti-Communist town hall meeting sponsored by the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus.

Second-rate writers, artists and preachers join the Communist Party, he said, where the blame for their shortcomings can be laid to the capitalist system.

Others, bored with their lives, join in search of activity and some are intrigued by the secret meetings, aliases, picket lines and fights with the police, he added.

Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) warned of the methods used by Communists, including public smearing of their enemies and methods to obtain beneficial legislation.

Walter S. Steele, editor of the National Republic magazine, said he felt the battle against Communism has been lost on the foreign front, but can still be won on the home front.

Nearly 500 persons heard the speeches given at the Gonzaga Auditorium, 27 I st. nw. Joseph M. McKenna, past faithful navigator of the Fourth Degree, was the moderator.

Group Formed To Support ITO Charter

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A national campaign to support wider and freer world trade through ratification of the International Trade Organization charter was launched here yesterday.

Headed by William L. Batt, Philadelphia industrialist and former vice chairman of the War Production Board, formation of the Committee for the International Trade Organization was announced at a news conference, attended by William L. Clayton, former Undersecretary of State and a committee vice chairman.

The ITO charter, sent to Congress last week by President Truman, was signed in Havana in March, 1948, by representatives of 54 nations, to establish a code of fair dealing in world trade and encourage nations to lower trade barriers.

Called Corollary to ERP

Batt termed creation of the ITO the "critical unfinished business in international economic affairs," which "completes the framework of United Nations' agencies."

Under consideration for six years, the ITO, said Batt, is a natural corollary to the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund and the European Recovery Program for United States action in world affairs.

Because the public "has been given the impression that 'business' as a whole is opposed to the Havana Charter," said Batt, banking, business and industry were purposely stressed in forming the committee to develop understanding of the charter.

The committee, with a membership of 124 persons in 28 States, also includes educators, labor leaders, publishers and civic leaders.

A complex 30,000-word document divided into 106 articles, the ITO charter seeks to widen the area of international trade cooperation which is set out in the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Program, begun in 1934.

In addition to dealing with such subjects as tariffs, quotas and export subsidies, the charter is also concerned with cartels, full employment and economic development, international aspects of investments, and commodity agreements.

While the charter has been condemned by some critics as not going far enough in its aims to free world trade, Clayton, who was chief of the United States delegation at the Havana conference, declared:

"We were dealing with a very sick world and there had to be many compromises looking to present conditions."

But, he said, the road was cleared to eliminate such compromises in the future.

There are two economic courses open to us, said Clayton, "Either we return to economic nationalism—controls, everything anybody can think of to impede the flow of goods in the world—or make a start to freer multilateral trade in the world."

Batt declared, "This is a very critical decision for the United States to make . . . If the United States doesn't approve it there will be no charter" for anyone.

"In and around New York," he said, "of those expressing an opinion, most businessmen are against it. When you get out into the country, it has enormously more support," particularly from labor and agriculture.

Business Groups Opposed

Batt said it has been criticized by such groups as the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Foreign Trade Council in New York, and the National Association of Manufacturers. Among ITO supporters, he said, are the National Council of American Importers, League of Women Voters, American Farm Bureau Federation, General Federation of Women's Clubs, the CIO, and other groups.

In addition to Clayton, vice chairmen of the committee are James D. Mooney, chairman of the board of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.; Morris S. Rosenthal, president of Stein, Hall & Co., Inc., N. Y.; and John A. Sibley, chairman of the Trust Co. of Georgia.

Committee members include Barry Bingham, recently nominated as Ambassador to France; former Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, and Chester C. Davis, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis.

Headquarters of the committee is at 816 21st st. nw.

King to Open Exhibit

London, May 2 (U.P.).—King George's first public engagement outside Buckingham Palace since his illness will be June 21, it was announced today. He will open a colonial exhibition in nearby Church House.

Thomas Offers Bill to Govern Commodity Futures Trading

Chairman Thomas (D., Okla.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday introduced an administration bill which would give the Government wide control over futures trading on the Nation's commodity exchanges.

The measure, submitted to Thomas by Secretary of Agriculture Brannan, would accomplish this in two principal ways:

1. Bring under Government regulation futures trading in 11 commodities not now subject to the Commodity Exchange Act. Among them are hides, rubber, cocoa and sugar. That would bring under Government control all 29 commodities traded on the futures markets.

2. Give the Secretary of Agriculture power to fix the margins (down payments) which speculators are required to put up in futures trading in any commodity. This provision is expected to draw the greatest opposition from the commodity exchanges which, in the past, have disagreed with the Government on margin requirements.

Would Regulate "Tipsters"

The bill also calls for Government registration and control of "tipsters" and commodity pool operators and would give the commodity exchange authority power to subpena commission house records in any investigation.

It also would require the markets to permit commodities to be delivered at several points, a system now in effect on cotton. Officials said this is aimed at preventing any trader from "cornering a market.

Thomas said the legislation, which actually would be amendments to the Commodity Exchange Act, is aimed at some traders who "take selfish advantage of loopholes in existing regulations."

Hopes to Pass It Before Harvest

He said his committee would begin hearings as soon as it receives the bill from the Senate and promised "every effort to pass this legislation before the harvest of the 1949 crop."

Thomas notified Brannan last Thursday that new legislation was needed to prevent "raids" on the markets. He said the raids are deliberately planned and are forcing commodity prices down to the point where they threaten the entire Federal price support program.

MacArthur Pledges To Ease Jap Rule

Tokyo, May 2 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today promised the Japanese further relaxation of occupation controls, and said Japan's continued occupation was caused by international "events and circumstances."

He warned the Japanese to maintain "unrelaxed vigilance against the destructive inroad of concepts incredulous of wisdom," presumably referring to Communism or ultra-nationalism.

The Supreme Commander's views were expressed in a statement on the second anniversary of Japan's democratic "no war" constitution.

He congratulated the Japanese on their democratic progress to date as they prepared to celebrate Tuesday the beginning of the third year under the new democratic constitution.

MacArthur told the Japanese that the continued occupation was "by no means due to any fault of yours" and said henceforth he would carry out an occupation policy of "friendly guidance."

Reds Claim Deep Thrust

cial government officials had gone. Nanchang normally is a city of 750,000 population. It is 135 miles southwest of Kimen.

Chiang in Shanghai?

Reports circulated that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was in Shanghai, but where he was staying or what he might be doing were not mentioned. The garrison previously had reported he had gone south to Amoy.

There were no reports of any nearer Communist approach to Shanghai from positions about 35 miles west.

(The Communist radio in Peiping, however, said their armies had restored rail service on the Shanghai-Nanking line from Nanking 89 miles eastward and had "completely repaired" another 24-mile section as fa reast as Wusih, only 75 miles west of Shanghai.)

A mid-day crash of Shanghai's chaotic financial market seemed to be of vastly more concern to Shanghai's residents than the Communist approach.

The Nationalist garrison outlawed free trading in old Chinese silver dollars under threat of death.

It permitted trading at the official rate of four million "gold" yuan to one silver dollar, but the open rate had been as high as nine million to 1.

Soldiers Jam Hotels

Many foreigners were moving out of their fancy hotels and apartments as soldiers and police moved in.

Many Americans sacrificed their apartments and doubled up in single rooms in the American Club Building in the center of the city. They were not being driven out, but entry of the soldiers as squatters made conditions more and more unlivable.

Building managers were frantic. Not only were they losing revenue, but the Chinese soldiers' tenancy ran up maintenance costs.

Many of these soldiers, who never before had been in a modern building, rode up and down the elevators all day like kids on a free roller-coaster.

Some took five and six showers a day, draining the tanks of scarce hot water.

Values of silver coins and foreign currencies crashed. The United States dollar, which had brought 9,500,000 yuan in bank vouchers, fell to 5,500,000 in 10 minutes.

New Committee

Israel Given Priority on U. N. Agenda

New York, May 2 (NYHT).—Over the objection of the Arab states and their supporters, the United Nations General Assembly gave new priority today to Israel's U. N. membership application by shifting it from the overloaded political committee to the idle special political committee. The vote was 42 to 12 with three abstentions.

This emphasized priority was important to Israel because at the same time the asembly se Saturday, May 14, as the target date for the close of this spring session. Thus, even with priority, Israel may have only twelve days remaining to gain U. N. membership at this meeting.

As a result of today's decision the special political committee can start immediately at Lake Success to debate the Israeli application. Had the item stayed on the crowded agenda of the politica committee, it might never have been reached during this session.

Even with the reallocation of items, the assembly hasn't much chance of completing its work by the target date of May 14. The political committee, for example, is still on its first item—disposition of former Italian colonies—and no end of that is in sight.

Legislators Hear Chennault Today

Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault, wartime leader of the famed "Flying Tigers," will report on the Chinese situation today at closed sessions of both the Senate Armed Services Committee and the joint Congressional "watchdog" Committee on Foreign Aid.

Chennault recently returned from China, where he has operated an airline since shortly after VJ-Day. He was originally scheduled to meet with the foreign aid committee yesterday but the date was postponed.

Science Group Urges Debate On Bomb Issue

In opposition to the stand taken by President Truman, the Federation of American Scientists yesterday urged full public debate on the question: "Should the Congress and the public be told the number of atomic bombs in our stockpile."

The President told a news conferernce in February not only that he was opposed to such disclosure but also that it was not a matter for public discusion.

Through its governing council in weekend meeting here, the Federation—which includes many of the Nation's top atomic scientists—took note of the President's statement and declared:

"Any attempt to muzzle public discussion is a real threat to the future of our country. The number of available atomic bombs in the U. S. is known to only a few top military and government officials. While admitting that publication of this information might be of some benefit to other countries, we must, nevertheless, weigh this against the break with our traditional policy of informing the public on matters of national welfare."

The Federation also recommended release of the long-squelched official report of the Bikini atomic bomb tests, which it said "has been cleared for publication by military security."

Here again the scientists are at odds with President Truman, who is reported to have personally withheld publication of the Bikini report.

In another action yesterday the Federation rapped Dr. A. L. Strand, president of Oregon State College, in firing Dr. Ralph Spitzer, associate professor of chemistry, from the school's faculty. Strand accused Spitzer of following the Communist party line by upholding the Lysenko theories of genetics.

Dr. Hugh C. Wolfe, associate professor of physics at City College of New York, was elected chairman of the Federation. Dr. Clifford Grobstein, biologist with the National Cancer Institute here, was named vice-chairman, and Dr. Gerhart Friedlander, Brookhaven National laboratory, secretary-treasurer.

Your Columbia Federal Savings Account helps you grow old GRATEFULLY

Growing old gracefully is a much simpler task when you have the means. And, unless you are well supplied with wealthy and generous relatives, the only way that "means" accumulate is through your own good judgment. High income alone is not enough—the man with a modest income and regular savings habits is far better off than the man whose savings, if any, are of the residual, or "I'll start saving next month" variety.

To grow old gracefully and gratefully, save regularly. Columbia Federal welcomes savings accounts of all sizes. Liberal dividends, compounded semi-annually, augment your savings. There's never any question about assured safety, for in addition to Columbia Federal's careful policies, every account is Federally insured up to $5,000. Pact Boost Held Up By Methodist Group

Chicago, May 2—(AP)—The commission on world peace of the Methodist church today withheld support of the North Atlantic Pact and urged "calm and objective appraisal" of Communism.

It also reaffirmed support of the Marshall Plan, urged U. S. ratification of the United Nations' Declaration of Human Rights, and called for reduction of armaments and an end to the cold war in Europe.

A statement of resolutions was adopted today by the commission, an official, 27-member group elected by Methodism's General Conference. The commission is charged with organizing church action to obtain peace.

The statement said in part:

"We feel bound at this time to withhold support of the North Atlantic Pact. . . . Confusion still exists as to exactly what implementation of the pact is proposed. . . . There are grave dangers lurking in the possible implementation of the Pact and its application in international policy."

On Communism, the report said church members should "make a calm and objective appraisal of the merits and defects of Communism, such as is to be found in . . . the Amsterdam conference" report. It also said, "churches, without espousing Communism, should do all in their power to counteract the present hysterical fear of Communism"

Episcopalian Diocese Gains 422 Members

Communicant strength of the Episcopal diocese of Washington increased 422 in 1948 over the figure of 31,899, it was reported yesterday.

The new total of 32,321 communicants was announced at the fifty-fourth annual diocesan convention in Christ Church, 620 G st. se.

The Rev. Carter S. Gilliss, rector, pointed out in his report on the state of the church that though the diocese has succeeded in maintaining an average increase of over 400 each year during the past 10 years, its growth has not reflected the general upward trend in population.

Fewer Baptisms

In spite of the increase in the number of communicants, the number of baptized persons decreased 2071 last year. In 1947 the diocese had 47,622 baptized persons and in 1948 there were 45,551 on the rolls, Mr. Gilliss said.

Delegates to the convention from the 90 parishes in the diocese voted to authorize the executive council of the convention to terminate the Chapel of the Good Shepherd, 824 6th st. ne., as a diocesan mission.

Under the plan approved by the convention, the property of the chapel will be turned over to Calvary Church, 11th and G sts. ne. The property of Calvary Church and the Chapel of the Atonement, 604 56th st. ne., will be sold and proceeds used for work in the diocese.

New Parish Approved

Creation of a new St. David's Parish was approved by the convention. St. David's Chapel, Klingle rd. and Macomb sts. nw., will become a separate congregation, with the Rev. A. E. Taylor, now vicar, as its rector.

Delegates approved a request by St. John's Church, Lafayette sq., to give women the right to vote and hold office in St. John's Church. Most of the churches in the diocese now give women equal rights in church government, but approval of the convention is necessary.

Election Results

The following persons were elected by the convention:

Delegates to the triennial general convention of the denomination in San Francisco: Clergy, The Rev. F. O. Wedel, warden of the College of Preachers; the Very Rev. J. W. Suter, dean of the Washington Cathedral; The Rev. Charles W. Lowry, rector of All Saints, Chevy Chase; The Rev. William Sharp, rector of St. John's, Georgetown; laymen, O. R. Singleton of Church of the Epphany, Ernest W. Greene of St. Margaret's Church, Thomas E. Robertson of All Saints, Chevy Chase, and H. L. Rust, jr., St. Paul's, Washington.

Members of the standing committee of the diocese: Clergy, The Rev. W. F. Creighton of St. John's, Bethesda; Mr. Lowry, The Rev. Robert S. Trenbath, rector of Trinity, Takoma Park, Canon Wedel; laymen, Albert W. Atwood of St. Alban's, Ernest W. Greene, Arthur C. Houghton of St. Stephen and the Incarnation.

Members of the Executive Council: The Rev. John T. Coleman, vicar of St. Timothy's Chapel, The Rev. Leland W. P. Stark, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, and Dean Suter; laymen, Ernest W. Greene, J. N. Robertson of St. Mark's Church, Edwin Stock, jr., Christ Church, Kensington.

Wtness Fees Hiked In Bill by House

The House yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill to increase the fees of witnesses at Federal court trials from $2 to $4 a day and travel allowance from 5 cents per mile to 7 cents.

Baptists Plan New Church At 16th and O

Members of First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., last night launched a drive for $600,000 to construct a new church on the site of the present building.

The drive was opened at a "loyalty dinner" at the National Guard Armory at which plans for the new church were disclosed to more than 1000 members and friends of the church.

The church is often attended by President Truman. Pastor is the Rev. Dr. Edward Hughes Purden.

The proposed new church will cost more than a million dollars.

Built of stone, it will front on 16th st. nw., occupying 130 feet and extending back 225 feet to O st.

Besides a sanctuary seating 1500, the building, of Gothic design, will house 40 classrooms for Sunday School pupils.

Other features will be a banquet hall, to be known as the Hall of States, which will have space for 500 tables.

A "Chapel of All Nations" seating 100 to be used for special events such as weddings is also planned, as are a library, a lounge for young people and offices for ministers and the church staff.

6 Dead, 50 Wounded After Bolivian Election

La Paz, Bolivia, May 2 (AP).—Bolivians, who once strung their President up to a lamp post, engaged in sporadic gun battles again today and the government declared a state of siege.

Official sources said at least 6 persons were killed and 50 wounded in shootings last night and again today after a parliamentary election. Unofficial sources said other wounded were treated at private homes, however, and at least three other dead carried off by friends.

Although President Enrique Hertzog's Republican Socialist Union Party (PURS) kept control in the election yesterday, surprising gains were shown by the right-wing National Revolutionary Movement (MNR), the party of the late President Gualberto Villaroel. The MNR was thrown out of power in July, 1946, when Villaroel was hanged from a lamp post.

Results from 37 of the 43 voting districts gave PURS 28 deputies, MNR 11, Liberals two, Socialist Falange one, independents three and Workers Party one.

With holdovers, these partial results gave PURS 49 deputies, against 11 for MNR and 50 for all other parties.

The shooting began in front of the government palace last night, after the polls closed, when the President's followers clashed with MNR members. Officials said the MNR tried to attack the palace. Order was soon restored, but sporadic shooting began again early today.

Packard Prices Cut From $103 to $246

Detroit, May 2 (AP).—Price reductions ranging from $103 to $246 on volume models of its new line of cars were announced today by Packard Motor Car Co.

At the same time Packard disclosed its new "ultramatic" no-shift transmission will be priced at $225. This is included as standard equipment on Packard's 160-horsepower custom models. Later it will be offered as optional equipment at extra cost on other models.

The $103 price cut is on the Eight Club Sedan; the $246 slash will be priced at $2224 at the factory; the Super Touring Sedan at $2633.

Other models affected are the Eight Touring Sedan; De Luxe Eight Club Sedan; De Luxe Eight Touring Sedan and Super Club Sedan. The new models, termed Golden Anniversary cars, to commemorate Packard's half century of car building, will include much equipment, previously optional at extra cost.

With the Packard reduction all car makers excepting Chrysler and Studebaker have cut prices this year.

Packard's new line of cars was shown to dealers today. Tuesday, some 2000 of the new models, all gold-painted, will be driven away from Packard's proving ground by dealers and their associates.

Hadlock Assault Case Put Off Until Monday

An assault charge against Gerald B. Hadlock, 1805 N. Rhodes st., Arlington, was continued until next Monday yesterday in Arlington Domestic Relations Court.

Hadlock's wife, Mrs. Nonnie Hadlock, accused the Reconstruction Finance Corporation official of beating her and swore out a warrant against him on April 27.

Federal Bar Picks Palmer As President

James E. Palmer, jr., 36, special assistant to the Attorney General, was elected president of the Federal Bar Association yesterday.

Palmer

Other officers elected were John A. McIntire, Treasury Department, first vice president; Frank J. Delany, Postoffice Department solicitor, second vice president; William L. Ellis, special assistant to the Comptroller General, secretary; Bettin Stalling, Veterans' Administration, treasurer; Charles Oliphant, chief counsel, Bureau of Internal Revenue, delegate to the American Bar Association, and John F. Richter, Federal Trade Commission, alternate.

Palmer, who succeeds Oliphant, has served in various capacities with the Attorney General since 1941. Before that, he was in general practice in Roanoke, Va. A graduate of the University of Virginia law school, he also holds a master's degree from Duke University. He is the author of a biography of "Carter Glass, Unreconstructed Rebel."

Court Refuses Rehearing in Slowdown Case

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to reconsider its approval of State bans on union slowdowns in labor disputes. The National Labor Relations Board had sought a rehearing because it said it did not realize the full significance of the Wisconsin State case and declared the 5-to-4 decision announced February 28 "permits the erection of local barriers to the effectuation of national objectives."

In other cases, the court:

1. Unanimously upheld, in the only regular decision yesterday, the Government's right to use in an antitrust case documents previously suppressed by a Federal District Court. Justice Hugo L. Black for the court declared the lower court action, based on a allegedly illegal search and seizure, did not affect another case "where enforcing officers have followed the law with such punctilious regard as they have here."

The District Court had held a grand jury which ordered the documents produced in the first place was illegal because women were excluded from membership.

2. Agreed to consider a California Supreme Court decision that Negroes may be enjoined from peaceful picketing of a store catering to Negro trade in an effort to induce the store to hire Negro help in the same proportion as its customers.

3. Refused a second time to release Tony Marino who has served 23 years of a life term in Illinois. The court last year held Marino's constitutional rights had been denied him when he was convicted at the age of 18. Since then a legal battle has been going on between the State's attorney general, who has been trying to win freedom for Marino, and an Illinois circuit court. Today's high court refusal was by a 6-to-3 vote.

4. Refused, by a 4-to-4 tie vote, to hear appeals of 35 Germans convicted as war criminals by an American military tribunal at Nuernberg, Germany.

Indigents' Legal Fee Standardization Asked

Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.) yesterday introduced legislation to pay standard fees in Federal District courts to lawyers appointed to defend indigent clients in criminal cases.

The fees would be $15 a day for work in preparing the case, and $20 for each day spent on the case in actual court trial. The plan would apply to the District Court here. A separate bill to pay court-appointed lawyers here $25 a day for defending indigent clients was blocked in the Senate recently when members said the fees should be the same here and elsewhere.

See The Difference In These Two Rib Roasts

Roasts Like These Were Bought In This Area At The Same Price Per Pound In Recent Test-Purchase Survey

INCLUDES END SECTION OF SHORT RIBS
(these short ribs, of course, contain some meat — but it's not rib roast meat!)

INCLUDES HEAVY CHINE BONE
(for which the customer is asked to pay at the regular rib roast price per pound . . . even though chine bone may be removed AFTER weighing)

RIB ROAST UNTRIMMED BEFORE WEIGHING
. . . as some markets here weigh it for pricing

WOMEN INVESTIGATORS WERE AMAZED at the old-fashioned way many markets here sell meat! For example: Shoppers sent out by an independent research organization bought rib roasts at markets all over this area. They discovered that 96% of these markets (other than Safeway) DID NOT TRIM THEIR ROASTS BEFORE WEIGHING. Some trimmed AFTER weighing—but this after-weighing trim didn't save the customers from paying for the chine bone and short ribs. Have YOU been buying meat this expensive way? If you can't get your market to trim BEFORE weighing, come to Safeway and get money-savings that the modern meat-trimming method offers!

END SECTION OF SHORT RIBS REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(Safeway sells these separately, at a lower cost per pound)

Safeway believes all markets should retail meat this common-sense way—with excess bone, fat and waste-parts trimmed off before the meat is weighed. More and more good markets are doing it. Why don't you ask your market man to trim your next rib roast before he weighs it?

SAFEWAY TRIMMED-BEFORE-WEIGHING RIB ROAST
. . . trimmed so you pay for only the tender "heart" portion that cooks and carves better

HEAVY CHINE BONE REMOVED BEFORE WEIGHING
(and replaced with a layer of fat, light in weight, to seal in meat juices)

THE SAFEWAY trimmed-before-weighing rib roast has in it the kind of meat people want in rib roasts. NOT the short ribs—which should be cut off and sold at proper short rib prices. NOT the heavy chine bone—which should be cut off and thrown away.

Most every good cook and good market man knows rib roasts should be trimmed as Safeway does it . . . before weighing!

The savings cited here on rib roast are typical of the savings you make on every cut and kind of meat that's trimmed as Safeway does it—before weighing. You save on chops and steaks, on leg of lamb and other cuts—when each cut is trimmed before weighing according to its special requirements. Wherever you buy, insist on pocketing for yourself the money-savings this better trimming method brings you.

Safeway buys nothing less than the top government grades of beef . . . nothing less than the top grades of lamb, pork and veal. All Safeway meats are properly aged—brought to you at peak perfection.

Come try trimmed-before-weighing meats at Safeway. Note our special Two-Rib-Roast Offer printed at right.

MONEY-SAVINGS OF 30¢ to $1.32 per typical 6-pound rib roast are secured by many housewives who purchase trimmed-before-weighing meats, the test survey reveals! In a few weeks of meat-buying such savings can go a long way to cut down the high cost of living for your family. You are entitled to GET THESE SAVINGS . . . because every market should trim meats BEFORE WEIGHING. No longer do you need to buy rib roasts, for example, on somebody else's say-so. The roast photos printed here show you what kind of trimming to look for. Take these photos to your market. Use them to check the next rib roast you purchase BEFORE it is weighed!

SAFEWAY'S OFFER: We will give you 2 rib roasts at no cost if ever you get from us a rib roast NOT trimmed before weighing! Women Wooed Him, Beloff Tells Court

Simon Beloff, 67, testified in District Court yesterday that his young wife and "several other ladies" had proposed marriage to him, soon after the death of his first wife.

The short, balding real estate operator is suing a former business associate, Leon Spivak, 50, for $100,000, charging Spivak with alienating the affections of his 31-year old wife, May.

In a stormy 2½ hour session on the stand, Beloff was repeatedly warned by Judge David A. Pine to confine his remarks to answering questions or face "appropriate court action."

Often shouting, Beloff told the jury of seven women and five men:

1. He had brought the parents of his second wife to this country from Russia in 1905 and supported them "for years." The mother of the second Mrs. Beloff was the sister of the first Mrs. Beloff.

2. He had consented to his second marriage only after pointing out the 36 years difference in their ages, and after signing a "pre-nuptial agreement" giving his wife 25 per cent of his property and income. Beloff lives at 1611 Decatur st. nw.

3. Although Mrs. Beloff had borne him one daughter, she had on occasions taken doses of a drug given her by Spivak to prevent having three other children.

4. Mrs. Beloff owned two of the "most expensive robes in Washington" which she wore only to entertain Spivak. On two such occasions Mrs. Beloff wore nothing else.

5. Spivak has had four wives, "and I got the papers to prove it." Spivak lives at 1614 Longfellow st. nw.

Beloff, his wife, and Spivak have been in court repeatedly during the last 18 months.

Mrs. Beloff first sued in September, 1947, for divorce charging cruelty. Then Beloff filed a counter suit, charging adultery and asking custody of their 4-year-old daughter, which he won. Then Beloff filed a $100,000 alienation of affection suit against Spivak. Then Spivak was convicted of assaulting Beloff, while the latter was admittedly spying on his wife, and paid a $25 fine. Then Spivak's wife filed a suit for divorce which was granted.

Under cross examination of Jacob Gordon, Spivak's attorney, Beloff denied ever being unfaithful to his young wife.

When asked if he used to inspect the garbage to see how much food was being wasted, Beloff shouted "That's a damn lie." When Beloff volunteered the information that his wife had "hocked an $800 fur coat" in answer to the question about garbage, Judge Pine warned him "for the last time" to stick to the question. Beloff told Pine that Gordon "aggravates me."

Beloff also denied having affairs with his servants and charged that his wife had warned him she would accuse him.

Much of the testimony concerning alleged infidelities had been introduced in the divorce action.

After the noon recess, Spivak took the stand, and stated categorically in response to a question from Beloff's attorney, John Alexander, that he had never had sexual relations with Mrs. Beloff.

When asked if he planned to marry her, he said "emphatically no."

Spivak offered conflicting testimony when asked when he had last seen Mrs. Beloff. At first he said "two weeks ago."

Then Alexander asked him to produce the car keys he carried in his pocket. They were the keys to Mrs. Beloff's car, and under closer questioning, Spivak admitted he had driven Mrs. Beloff yesterday to Gordon's office, and that Mrs. Beloff was then sitting in Gordon's office.

Spivak told the jury that he felt only "a friendly regard" for Mrs. Beloff, and that he had offered her "spiritual help of a friendly nature".

New Labor Bill Going to House

Department. Rayburn said Tyson was called for technical advice and was not asked to approve or disapprove the provisions decided on in the meeting.

The section dealing with national emergency strikes will allow for injunctions similar to those permitted under the Taft-Hartley law. It provides for 80-day injunctions to enforce a cooling-off period while a presidential board studies a dispute.

Won't Provide for Seizures

Rayburn said the new section, which was not drawn in final form at the meeting, will not provide for any plant seizures in national emergency disputes; neither does the Taft-Hartley law.

The compromise differs in some respects from five amendments which Rayburn said earlier in the day he would support. When the first announcement was made he had just visited the White House, but said he was not speaking for the President.

Several hours elapsed between the two announcements.

Bill to Be Softened

Republican leaders said they would add two, and perhaps more "softening amendments" to the Wood bill. The two were outlined as:

1. Further easing of the closed shop ban to allow an employer to give a union reasonable time to furnish men to fill job vacancies.

The closed shop, under which only union men can be hired, would still be banned, but the bill already allows the employer to notify the union when jobs are to be filled.

2. Permitting the union, under a "union shop" contract, to get a man fired by expelling him if he embezzles union funds or discloses union secrets. Under a union shop, a nonunion man can be hired, but he must join the union within a specified time.

swered the general description given by witnesses and was damaged in the left rear.

Testimony brought out that a piece of metal found in the field near the accident was from Dr. Morris' rear bumper, according to FBI analysis.

When asked to explain what caused the damage to his fender, he said it might have occurred in a parking lot where he left the car that evening.

The defendant was also convicted of a third charge, reckless driving, but on that one Judge Browning suspended sentence.

The psychiatrist said he served three years as a naval medical officer, 18 months of which were spent on a troop transport during the war.

Before his appointment to Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium in Rockville, where he lived, he was employed at St. Elizabeths Hospital in the District and the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda. Police said he is unmarried.

Dr. Morris was represented by attorneys, Alfred D. Noyes and Wilbert McInerney. Assistant State's Attorney Thomas M. Anderson was the prosecutor.

income, depreciation averaged 16 per cent for large structures and 21 per cent for small structures.

The regulations provide that before an increase can be granted by an area rent office, the tenant must be notified. He has the right to appeal an area rent office decision to the regional and the national office. This is provided for in new procedural regulations issued in compliance with the new Act, which gives tenants and landlords equal notification and appeal rights in all adjustment and eviction cases.

Woods used these two examples to show how the fair net operating return provision will work:

1. Small structure. The landlord has an annual gross income of $1000. His expenses are $600 and his depreciation allowance is $200, the two figures totalling $800. This leaves a net operating income of $200 or 20 per cent of his gross income. Since his net operating income is less than 25 per cent he is entitled to an increase to bring it to 30 per cent of the gross. This will require a gross income of $1143 which will be achieved by increasing his annual rent by $143 or approximately $12 a month.

2. Large structure. The landlord has an annual gross income of $10,000. His expenses are $7000 and his depreciation allowance $1500, or 15 per cent of his gross income. Since his net operating income is less than 20 per cent, he is entitled to an increase to 25 per cent. This will require an annual gross income of $11,333 which will be achieved by increasing his annual gross income $1133, or approximately $94.50 per month.

Woods said a simple petition form has been prepared and distributed to area rent offices throughout the country. A landlord seeking a rent increase under the fair net operating income provision will enter on the petition his present annual rents and his present annual expenses, including depreciation in the expense column.

Unlike the former hardship petition, the fair net provision does not require figures for a base period. Only current figures are necessary.

Mute Child Dies in Crib Fire

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., May 2 (AP).—A 5-year-old boy burned to death today in a chained crib at his home, Fire Chief Ambrose Saricks reported.

Saricks said the child, Bryant Gill, was in the habit of running away from home. It was for that reason, he said, that his mother, Mrs. Nettie Gill, placed a heavy screen netting over the crib and padlocked the sides.

Saricks said that Mrs. Gill also had wrapped heavy iron chains joined with padlocks around the sides of the crib.

The child was born with loss of speech although his hearing was not impaired, Saricks said.

He added the fire apparently was started by the boy playing with matches. The mother, who smelled smoke, rushed to his room and made a futile effort to save him, suffered severe burns of the arms, hands and face. Mrs. Gill has three other children.

Saricks said Mrs. Gill fed the boy breakfast in the kitchen and that he believed Bryant found matches at that time and took them with him when his mother returned him to the crib.

Byrd Says He'll Defy Truman on Patronage

By the United Press

Senator Byrd (D., Va.) last night defied President Truman's patronage edict and said he will vote to keep the "essential features" of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"I shall vote in accord with the views of the majority of people in Virginia and in accord with my own conviction, regardless of whether I am placed on the blacklist, or how it will affect my own political fortunes,' he told a Virginia congressional dinner.

Poll Tax Described As 'Minority Rule'

"The minority rules" in poll tax States, a House witness said yesterday, because many persons cannot or do not pay the taxes and therefore cannot vote.

Irving Brant of Washington, writer and former St. Louis newspaper editor, told a House administration subcommittee that poll taxes impair "the integrity of elections."

The system was lambasted as the group opened hearings on a bill to outlaw poll taxes as a voting requirement in Federal elections. Later in the week proponents will take the stand.

Killed Four Times in Senate

President Truman has called for an anti-poll tax law in his controversial 10-part civil rights program. Four times the House has passed such a bill in recent years only to see it die in the Senate.

A second civil rights measure, scheduled for hearing today by a house labor subcommittee, was set aside until May 10. This group is considering a bill to prohibit discrimination in employment because of race, creed or color—also a point in the Truman program.

Another witness, Clark Foreman of Georgia, president of the Southern Conference on Human Welfare, called southern poll taxes "a Fascist racket."

His understanding, he said, is that even in Russia the people "are very much more consulted about their officers than those in South Carolina" and other poll tax states.

Says Fascists Support It

In his home state of Georgia, he said, "I know that the Fascists support the poll tax and the Communists don't."

There are both Fascists and Communists in Georgia, he added.

Elmer W. Henderson, director of the American Council on Human Rights, claimed the poll taxes were enacted in Southern States originally "for the express purpose of disfranchising Negro citizens" but their effect has been to "disfranchise millions of whites as well."

"It is manifestly unjust to the nation as a whole," he said, "that a privileged class should compose the electorate in some States and their representatives presume to speak for all of the people.

Weaver Found Guilty of Zone Law Violation

Samuel T. Weaver, who had threatened to sell his home in Alexandria's fashionable Beverly Hills section, to Negroes, if convicted, was found guilty yesterday of violating Alexandria's building and zoning laws.

Weaver was charged on complaint of his neighbors, with closing in a porch and building a tool shed without building permits and with converting his house to a two-family dwelling in violation of zoning laws.

The 40-year-old real estate salesman, who lives at 3212 Old Dominion blvd., countered with his threat to sell to a Negro family, accusing his neighbors of being too fussy.

Civil and Police Court Judge James R. Duncan found Weaver guilty on all three counts, but suspended a $60 fine on condition that Weaver commit no further violation of either statute for two years.

After the trial Weaver said he might go through with his threat to sell, but indicated he hadn't quite made up his mind.

Weaver testified he was led to believe he did not need permits for the two construction jobs. He testified another family had been staying at his house, but said it was a temporary arrangement and that they have now left.

Building Inspector A. R. Lash went through the house and testified that the only evidence it had been converted to a two-family dwelling was the presence of two refrigerators.

South Needs Trained Men, Meeting Told

Lexington, Va., May 2 (AP).—Southern businessmen must assume their "full share of responsibility for education" if the South is to find a cure for its economic ills, former Florida Governor Millard F. Caldwell said tonight.

The business world "has never regarded the educational forces as full partners in the over-all task of building for the future," Caldwell told the Southwide Education Conference of the Southern Association of Science and Industry here.

"Too often," he declared, "education has been looked upon by business as a humanitarian activity, somewhat related to the ordinary charities."

As a consequence, the South now finds itself "handicapped for want of trained personnel, forward-looking research and a correct answer to our economic ills," Caldwell said.

The South gravely needs more highly trained people in every technical, professional, and educational field of endeavor, he said, but its wealth is drained off when "technicians from outside" come in to do the job, he declared.

Caldwell said more money is needed to expand southern education so that it may produce technicians able to develop the South's resources.

It is in fund management, he said, that business can help most in improving the present education system.

"Your simple choice," he told industrialists attending the meeting, "is to leave the business of education to the educators, on the one hand, or to concern yourselves with the problem, advising and counseling as to the needs, assisting in the establishment of business methods in the administration of school affairs and in insisting upon results, on the other hand."

Covenant Case Rejected By High Court

The Supreme Court yesterday refused to consider a new test case against Negroes who buy property in white residential developments covered by restrictive covenants.

The high tribunal on May 3, 1948, ruled that lower courts could not enforce similar restrictive agreements on properties in St. Louis, Detroit and the District of Columbia.

Later, the Maryland Court of Appeals cited the Supreme Court ruling in refusing to enforce a covenant against two Negro couples who bought properties in a development in Anne Arundel County. The development is called "Beachwood Forest." The covenant prohibits sale of properties to Negroes, Chinese and Japanese.

Six white property owners asked the Supreme Court to rule that the Maryland court misapplied the 1948 ruling. They said facts in the Maryland case are different from those involved in the 1948 ruling. Particularly, they emphasized a contention that the Negroes in the Maryland case had full knowledge of the restriction before they bought properties, and added:

"They deliberately purchased the restricted land in open defiance of the rights of others that were known and apparent to them before the purchase."

Judge Rejects Pulaski Negro School Charges

Roanoke, Va., May 2 (AP).—U. S. District Court Judge A. D. Barksdale today dismissed a complaint by a group of Pulaska County Negroes that because of their race they were being discriminated against in school facilities and in school bus transportation.

(Gloucester County school officials are to appear before Federal Judge Sterling Hutcheson in Richmond Wednesday for sentencing on a contempt conviction for failing to equalize Negro-white school facilities.—Editor's note).

In dismissing the suit Judge Barksdale's opinion contained an indictment of education facilities for both white and Negro children in Pulaski as well as many other Virginia counties.

4 Complaints by Negroes

Four specific complaints were made by the plaintiffs: (1) That Pulaski County failed to provide facilities for elementary education of Negro children equal to facilities afforded white children; (2) that school bus transportation was not equal to that provided for white children; (3) that county authorities failed to enforce the compulsory school attendance law as far as Negroes are concerned, and (4) that the high school facilities for Negroes were inferior to those provided for white children.

Four of the 26 elementary schools in Pulaski County are Negro schools, the Federal court jurist said. The Calfee Training School for Negroes in Pulaski was termed modern and adequate. Judge Barksdale also pointed out that it was the newest school in the county.

Assails White School Inadequacy

While the three other Negro elementary schools are not comparable with the Calfee Training School or with the largest white elementary schools, they do compare favorable with the smaller elementary schools for white children in the county, he said.

"The inadequacy of many of the elementary schools for white children is shocking," Judge Barksdale declared. "Very few have modern plumbing: Some do not even have their own water supply. In some instances, white children are temporarily being taught in basements of churches and temporary tar-paper buildings.

"I find no evidence of discrimination against Negro children on account of their race, in the matter of elementary education in Pulaski County," the jurist concluded.

Boyd at Traffic School

Police Lieut. John J. Boyd, who is attending the Traffic Institute at Northwestern University, will spend a week in St. Louis, Mo., making a field study of traffic conditions there, starting May 9, it was learned here yesterday. Boyd enrolled at the institute as a fellow of the Kemper Foundation January 31, and will continue there to June 18.

D. C. Housing Code Proposed In Slum Fight

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

At a closed meeting scheduled with the Commissioners today, the Board of Trade's urban development committee is expected to advance a housing code with enforcement teeth, as a quick attack on District slums.

Ernest F. Henry, chairman, said his committee was meeting with the city heads this morning to discuss some "worked out" ideas for a Washington slum clean-up program.

He said he also would propose that persons evicted from slum dwellings, as result of stricter health enforcement be placed in any public housing units here now occupied by high-income tenants.

Speaking for himself on the city's slum problem, Henry said he favored:

1. Wrapping up the District's "hodge-podge" of health, license and building regulations into one "streamlined housing code which we do not have today, with violation penalties for landlord and tenant spelled out."

2. A simplified procedure for taking violators to task for nonconformity with the housing code.

3. Emphasis on a tenant "better housing maintenance" code enforced by a Health Department "with more authority and better direction."

Henry said his ideas were in many respects similar to the Baltimore plan for slum rehabilitation. That plan is based upon enforcement of a revised housing and sanitation code by a special Housing Court.

District building and health officials have held a Baltimore plan unworkable in two-thirds of this city's worst slum dwellings because razing is the only real answer, and that would mean "putting a great many people out on the street."

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of the Senate Banking Subcommittee on Housing, said last week that the Baltimore plan "was excellent as far as it goes, but more low-cost housing is the only solution for wiping out Washington's rock-bottom slums."

Henry said he would answer that argument by suggesting that public housing tenants making above maximum incomes be "moved out to make room for the better people of the slums."

John Ihlder, executive officer of National Capital Housing Authority, said last night that his agency is trying to "pressure" tenants in the over $4000 income bracket into leaving his units, "but even many of these people cannot find housing."

"Certainly these higher income people in NCHA housing have a better chance than slum evictees to find new quarters on the open market," said Ihlder. "But what good is a better chance when neither has any chance."

Henry, also executive secretary of the Washington Home Builders' Association, said he was not sure whether his proposals for a tighter, all-inclusive housing code, coupled with more legal teeth, would require congressional action.

Senators Homer E. Ferguson (R., Mich.) and Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) both have been studying the Baltimore plan and the possible necessity for new enforcement legislation to cope with slum housing.

Henry said he was convinced that a Baltimore plan approach would do "an amazing job" in cleaning up the vast majority of Washington's much-criticized substandard housing. "It is not, however, a cure-all for urban redevelopment in its biggest sense," he said.

In another slum clearance development, Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young said the Commissioners may today consider already drafted legislation to permit the District Redevelopment Land Agency to become eligible for Federal slum clearance funds under the pending national housing bill.

If the legislation is approved by the city heads, the House will be asked to add it as amendments.

Open Recreation

The National Capital Parks and Planning Commission is to be congratulated for removing racial designations from recreation areas in the District. How the "white" and "Negro" labels originated is not clear, but by freezing a segregated pattern they had become a formidable barrier to efforts to end discrimination in public facilities. They tended to confirm a dual system which is both costly and in contrast with the direction in which the community has been moving.

The responsibility for determining whether segregation in recreation is to continue now rests unequivocally with the District Recreation Board. We hope that the board will accept the responsibility with a program of specific steps toward the abolition of segregation—a program which ought to result in the return to District control of facilities now managed by the Department of the Interior. There are several wholesome indications that the Recreation Board is prepared to take such steps on an experimental basis with respect both to recreation areas and to after-hour use of school buildings. With good faith, there is no reason why such experiments should not proceed smoothly and without incident, for they will merely recognize the integration that has already become a fact on numerous playgrounds in Washington.

Inside And Out

You will remember that Mr. Churchill in his recent speech in Boston put forward his own explanation of the seemingly incomprehensible diplomatic course pursued by Soviet Russia in its relations with the nations of the West. The men in the Kremlin, Mr. Churchill suggested, may consider peace with the West more dangerous to the continuation of their rule than the present cold war. In other words, the safety of the regime depends upon keeping the Russian masses ignorant of what life is really like under bourgeois form of society. This, of course, would become impossible if there were "free and friendly intercourse" between Russia and the world beyond the iron curtain. Thus to the question.

How're ya gonna keep 'em down on the collective farm

the men in the Kremlin have, it seems, answered that on no account must the boys and girls be permitted to see Paris, to say nothing of Oxford, Cambridge, London, New York, Hollywood, Calif.; Atlantic City, N. J., and Miami, Fla.

The flaw in this hypothesis seems to be that Russia is by no means the first country to adopt a policy of isolation toward the outside world. China under the Ming emperors affords one example, and Japan, before the historic visit of Commodore Perry, of course, affords another. But neither in the China of the Ming Dynasty nor the Japan of the Shoguns was this isolationism accompanied by a threatening and warlike attitude. Those countries simply kept themselves to themselves, as the saying goes, and ignored the rest of the universe until it was rather forcibly thrust upon their notice by the Western barbarians.

Anyway, one may choose between Mr. Churchill's interpretation of the Kremlin's conduct and an interpretation given last summer by his less-famous compatriot, Dr. Ernest Jones, a London psychiatrist. Russian foreign policy, according to Dr. Jones, is a form of neurotic behavior which arises from the Bolsheviks' subconscious sense of guilt for having murdered their Little White Father, the Tsar. However, the Americans, it seems, also have a sense of guilt because of the bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, so that apparently there can be no real hope of peace until both nations have been cured of neurosis by some form of mass psychoanalysis.

Unhappily, the sense of guilt appears to be quite as contagious as the taste for wrist watches, alarm clocks, felt mattresses, plastic crockery, toilet soap, deep-freeze refrigerators, and other sybaritic luxuries from which the Russians, in the present Arcadian simplicity of their lives, are being so carefully protected. Indeed, the two diseases may go together. A Chinese psychiatrist, Dr. Yu-lin Ch'eng, says his people are becoming neurotic as the result of their contacts with Western civilization in general and American civilization in particular. The desire to imitate Western ways in such matters as planned parenthood, scientific baby raising, dating and dancing, and so on, is, it seems, breaking down and destroying the old Confucian family system, and this, in turn, if we follow Dr. Yu-lin, produces a sense of guilt which becomes manifest in various forms of anxiety neurosis.

To sum up: The hope of peace, according to Mr. Churchill, lies in breaking down the isolationism imposed upon the Russians by the Kremlin. But to do so, according to the psychiatrists, is more likely than not to increase the prevalence of neuroses, as has been the case in China. Thus the argument seems to go round in a circle like the dog in pursuit of his tail.

Anatomy Of A Lie

Several readers have taken us to task for our protest against the outright untruths with which our public men from the President down cloaked the Berlin discussions at Lake Success. It was not till the Tass news agency broke the story that the American people knew what was going on. In the meantime the newspapers for weeks before had perforce lent themselves to the deception foisted upon them by officialdom.

What has since happened should be a warning of the danger of this nefarious practice. At Lake Success the United States is trying to persuade other governments to join with it in signing a convention permitting free and honest reporting. In the Capital there is a new wariness in the approach of the newspaper reporters to the utterances of our public officials. They are finding the temptation more and more irresistible to rely upon rumors rather than upon public statements. This is bound to put a premium upon the irresponsible journalism that office-holders are constantly deprecating and that was the subject of complaint by foreign governments at Lake Success.

To be sure, irresponsible journalism has attained a great vogue in America. Yet the vogue is due only in part to a popular feeling that the news and editorial pages are purposely hiding the facts. It is mainly due to the very kind of official disingenuousness that marked the comment on the Berlin negotiations. A very serious problem is here involved of much concern to the cause of representative government. Wide gulfs are building up: between the press and office-holders, between the people and the press, and between the people and government. In England, but not in America, the truth has a chance of coming out in the question period in Parliament.

Leaving ethics out of account, the argument in defense of the prevarications uttered about the Berlin talks sounds very plausible. There was a race with time. If the news of the talks had been spilled before agreement on the new government in western Germany had been reached, that agreement might have been frustrated. There was, moreover, a chance that Moscow might retreat from the decision to lift the blockade if there were premature publicity. But we fail to see how these dangers were courted by non-committal answers. What the newsmen were asking was not the detail of the discussion, but the fact of the discussion. If the old-fashioned "no comment" has gone out the window because it is regarded as equivalent to an affirmative, what is the harm in saying that Messrs. Malik and Jessup, the men now revealed to have been doing the talking, were seeing each other every day at the Lake Success meetings of the General Assembly?

The extent to which foreign policy can be democratically conducted and controlled is, indeed, a thorny problem admitting of no pat formula. Far be it from us to advocate open diplomacy, especially with the Soviet. Concealment is sometimes necessary in the interests of negotiation. If every move were publicized, and every concession put before the public, there would be only an excitable discussion.

In the present case the argument is not over concealment or secrecy or even evasion. It is over downright disingenuousness. The habit has never been more prevalent, and most students of the problem believe it got its impetus from contact with totalitarian experience. Goebbels made the political lie a method of totalitarian leadership, and the way the method boomeranged is now a matter of history. In free societies the method of leadership is as important as the end, and the method is the maintenance of confidence between people and government. "Deception," says Professor Sibley, in a recent discussion, "even if used honestly for what the leader regards as the long-run welfare of society, in effect shifts the making of decisions from the community to the leader, and contradicts the central canon of democracy."

This is evidently what Foreign Minister Schuman thinks. On the very day after the President had said he knew nothing about peace feelers on Berlin, Mr. Schuman, asked a similar question, said that peace talks were going on between Mr. Malik and Dr. Jessup. The heavens didn't fall after he said it, nor did the Germans quit the job of working out a constitution for their western German government. Honesty pays off in the priceless ingredient of a democratic government, viz., faith.

Cut In Reserves

The lowering of reserve requirements for member banks of the Federal Reserve System is another indication of a change in general economic conditions. It will release a large volume of funds that the banks could employ as a basis for loan expansion or increased investment. It is, therefore, an antideflationary measure. As such it provides another argument against enactment of the anti-inflation program that the President still considers "must" legislation. It is, however, more than doubtful whether the lower reserve requirements will stimulate borrowing. For bank loans for business purposes have experienced a sharp shrinkage in recent months not because of any lack of loanable funds, but because of declining demand for accommodation.

Another possible reason for the board's action is that reductions in reserve requirements will be compulsory next June unless Congress extends the authority to raise those requirements, temporarily granted last summer. By emphasizing its intention to adapt its credit policies to changing industrial conditions, the board may improve the chances for favorable consideration of an extension of this temporary law. In any event, it is wiser to make a reduction now rather than risk an even larger automatic reduction in reserve requirements at a later fixed date.

Even if loans are not greatly affected, the release of reserve funds will enable member banks to expand their investments in Government securities and will have a tendency to lower interest rates. Since the Treasury is likely to return to deficit financing in the near future, lowered reserve requirements will provide outlets for new Government issues on favorable terms, while the banks will be able to increase their earnings from investments at a time when loans are declining and interest rates are under pressure.

After The Carrier

Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, in his speech at Indianapolis over the weekend, noted that "air power alone and unassisted is scarcely capable of winning a complete victory" and that the Air Force has never held that the B-36 bomber "is a suitable basket for all our eggs." This is a significant official rebuke to the new isolationism evoked by the B-36-will-do-it-alone school, a type of narrow-mindedness quite as dangerous as that of the zealots who were hell-bent for the Navy's supercarrier.

It has been said in criticism of the decision to abandon the carrier that it overrode the best judgment of the planners charged with naval defense. The plain fact is, however, that the country simply cannot afford all weapons that might be useful in a war. It must take the recommendations of experts—and it is for precisely this reason that the Weapons Evaluation Group has been established by the Secretary of Defense. Final responsibility must rest on the Secretary of Defense acting upon the strategic advice of the Joint Chiefs of Staff—and in this capacity the Joint Chiefs serve not the individual services but the whole national defense.

Vital to such decisions, of course, is a delineation of primary functions among the three services. Such a definition of missions supposedly was reached at the Key West and Newport conferences of the Joint Chiefs, but nothing has been so elusive as the "understandings" allegedly attained. Loopholes in the assignment of missions have been exploited, and the confusion in the public mind has been increased by the general lack of candid information and the President's refusal to release the highly relevant Bikini atomic bomb test results. The unfortunate consummation of the squabble ought to be a lesson to the Joint Chiefs and the Secretary of Defense to spell out the missions in unmistakable terms. Continual revision of strategy to make the best use of all available instruments is basic to modern defense, but this cannot be considered license for competition of the three services to get into the act.

Giant Racket

Amid all the recent to-do over pyramid clubs, too little attention was paid to the disclosure from California of a far more lucrative and ominous pyramid. Under the nondescriptive title, "Part II of the Second Progress Report of the Special Crime Study Commission on Organized Crime," Admiral Standley and his colleagues blasted the lid off the giant slot machine racket in California and points east.

Like all big-time rackets, the slot machine business is organized to funnel big profits into the pockets of the gangster tycoons and big graft into the pockets of public officials. Its ramifications extend from coast to coast. The California commission admits that the connection between the lower operating levels of the racket and the top control is almost impossible to trace. It says the reputed head is Frank Costello, New York gang leader, former convict, and now a would-be-respectable bigwig in Tammany Hall.

The amount of money involved in the racket is equally difficult to determine. It is thought that 2 billion dollars a year is a conservative estimate of the total take. Evidence indicates that 20 per cent of this is the regular proportion allocated to graft. In other words, at least 400 million dollars a year appears to be going into the pockets of public officials from the slot machine racket alone. Costello is also reputed to head "The Combination," which, with the help of "Murder, Inc.," its disciplinary arm, is said to rule the underworld activities of the entire Nation.

The front for the slot machine racket, the report discloses, is a trade organization called the Coin Machine Institute, whose headquarters are in Chicago. This ostensibly respectable outfit services the industry with legislative, legal and public relations advice—including, the California investigators report, expert guidance on the best ways to corrupt the law. The institute's counsel boasted in January that his office has a pipe line into every State capitol as well as into the United States Capitol. The Coin Machine Institute, says the report, is clearly engaged in furthering "a criminal conspiracy on a grand scale," and "its technique of buying and selling executive, legislative and judicial officers . . . is the perfect blueprint for plutocratic gangster government."

White House Plans

I am an architect from New York now engaged in other activities. During my career I have designed and altered some of the biggest houses in this country and for a number of years was with the Government in Washington while they were handling the biggest building program in history.

The Senate Appropriations Committee has approved the estimate of $5,400,000 for restoring the White House. The press reported that Chairman Cannon of the House committee has concluded, from the information submitted, that they should tear down the present building and construct a new one and thereby possibly save 13 per cent of the estimated cost of restoration.

The present White House could be restored so it would be as sound as a new building. It would not be possible for anyone to spend $5,400,000 in properly restoring the present building. To build an identical new building would cost more, without question, than restoration.

All the experts seem to have agreed that the inner foundation walls need to have footings under them—i.e., a wide base under the bottom of a foundation wall or pier to spread the weight in the ground. But, as to the outer walls, the press reported that Commissioner Reynolds of the Public Buildings Administration stated before Congress that "the outer walls are exceptionally thick" and that their foundations have footings 6 feet wide on both sides under them. That is sufficient width for any New York skyscraper.

In old times they often did not put footings under inner walls when the foundations rested on firm ground in cellars not affected by frost. In restorations we often put them under such old walls if needed or if they have settled in the interim years. It is not necessary to sink down such foundations themselves to a further depth of 20 feet, as was suggested, in order to reach "hard pan"—solidified gravel or stone. There are many other methods equally effective and less expensive.

Some people erroneously believe a new building could be bombproof. No house can be bombproof. By the end of this war we knew it would require a roof of reinforced concrete 16 feet thick to stop a bomb, walls 8 feet thick to stop lateral fragments and concussion, with no windows and doors—a pill-box. We do not know what would be definitely needed now. ARCHITECTUS.

Laundry Lament

The Federal Trade Commission's fair trade practices section would do well to investigate certain practices of some of the leading laundries and dry cleaning plants.

A customer of one of the city's larger laundries included a fine sports shirt with her regular order. Upon the order's return, the shirt was missing. An immediate report of the loss was made, and the laundry requested verification of the shirt's cost. The same was obtained and supplied, as well as the date of its purchase.

Finally, three months after the loss was first reported (and after innumerable calls to inquire about it) the customer received a check in settlement. However, the check's amount was only two thirds of the claim—and the shirt was a new one. Moreover, the payment was a sight draft that could only be cashed at company offices, by its route men, or used in payment for further business.

"Mr. Gwinn's Bogeys"

In regard to your April 23 editorial, "Mr. Gwinn's Bogeys," I would like to say that there are a host of "modern Americans" who heartily agree with Congressman Gwinn's statements.

The trend is toward paternalism and you know it; everybody wants "security" no matter how it comes. Mr. Gwinn is a really great American—but like most of nature's noblemen he will be scorned, perhaps, while those who want to ride to power by favoring "handouts" will win the applause of the unthinking. No wonder the character of our young people is undergoing a change.

Old Belvoir

The passing years have wrought many changes at Belvoir, where Lord Fairfax built his home in the early eighteenth century. The very foundations of the original structure have merged into the terrain and disappeared, and not a picture or plan exists to show what the old house looked like.

The house was built of brick brought over from England and was situated on a high bank where the Potomac bends southward below Mount Vernon, and within sight of Gunston Hall, home of George Mason, the father of the Virginia Declaration of Rights.

George Washington, George Mason, Daniel McCarty and Lord Fairfax were outstanding citizens in that section and each was interested in the welfare of all other inhabitants.

When we know that men like George Washington, George Mason, Daniel McCarty and Lord Fairfax lived in and about Belvoir in such congenial fellowship, it seems quite fitting that the United States Government should have chosen this spot for an Army station where young men of today may serve their country.

Dr. Ruhland's Dynamite

I think a few of Dr. Ruhland's remarks need examining.

Negroes can hardly "primarily decide the health conditions in the District" when it is already determined for them where they shall live and what jobs they may work at and where and how they may care for their sick.

John Doe, the Negro, may have come up from Alabama, but with him came a good many white John Does who were looking for the same kind of economic opportunity. I don't know about the white John Doe, but the Negro John Doe does not think Washington a paradise, despite those who seem to think that making 30—maybe—dollars a week and having unsegregated street cars and a few Government cafeterias and bathrooms constitutes paradise.

We do need an educational program for Negroes, yes. But it might better be directed at teaching self-development than at teaching the fallacy that a full belly (of "greens") and a lazy Carolina moon represent the best of all possible worlds for the Negro.
WARREN E. BLANDING.
Washington.

Dr. Ruhland should be commended for the courage to be truthful rather than tactful.

Dr. Ruhland cannot be held responsible for the local social attitudes that have created the shocking health conditions among Negroes which have resulted from their segregation and the provision of inadequate health services. His duty is to protect the health of the District's population both white and colored. Overcrowding encourages disease: living accommodations for Negroes in the District is arbitrarily limited. This is a regretful fact, but it is a fact. Dr. Ruhland is bluntly voicing it. Demanding his resignation is making him the scapegoat for what is a community shame.
GEORGE LEVY.
Washington.

Innumerable studies in cities like New York, Chicago and Detroit have shown that many of the diseases on whose rosters Negroes appear in frequency out of proportion to their population index are diseases of economic and educational privation rather than of race. Many studies have indicated, too, that where the underprivileged—black or white—has received additional opportunity for economic and educational improvement, his health rate has improved. Does Dr. Ruhland want only to hold the health rates for this city at low levels, or would it not be better for the Nation to raise the level of the whole population?
MRS. E. W. SMITH.
Washington.

Dr. Ruhland should know that slum dwellers rarely have sufficient money to buy bread for their children or milk for their babies. Overcrowding is usually due to lack of money to go elsewhere or the attempt to produce the extortionate amount of money for which these hovels rent.
SALLIE C. BOYER, R. N.
Washington.

Sending for relatives back home has, to say the least, not been peculiar to Negroes in this land of migrants and immigrants. Moreover, it is the responsibility of an urban area to establish and to maintain rigorously those standards of housing and sanitation, governing all residents, that are most likely to promote the well-being of the entire community.
WILLIAM A. BANNER.
Washington.

Statistics show that the Negro population has decreased steadily in proportion to the white population since 1880.

Thus, it is not the arrival of Southern Negroes that causes our slums, but the fact that a Washington Negro is forced to live in a comparatively small area, from which he cannot move because of segregated housing arrangements and restrictive covenants. Therefore, as the white neighborhoods spread out into the suburbs, the Negro people, who have no place to move, pile up.
NONNY LAUTMAN MAJCHRZYK,
Chairman, Young Progressives of the District of Columbia.

I would like to know on what basis Dr. Ruhland deems himself competent to decide where Negroes or any people are better off, and whether the sole aim of anyone's life is to grow greens.
DORIS F. GILFORD.
Washington.

I agree with Dr. Ruhland's suggestion of "screening" future inhabitants of the District, only let us make the job complete. Instead of "screening" future District inhabitants of a particular race, let us "X-ray" our local process of administration both in Dr. Ruhland's office and the District Commissioners' Office, as well as the Board of Education. Let us see who is responsible for the continued issuance of licenses to landlords who maintain these morbid "slums."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Johnson's Boners

IN THE course of knocking heads together on the theory that this is the way to bring about unification of the armed services, Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson has in the space of one crowded month offended many important people. One of them is the President of the United States.

Shortly before Johnson's appointment was decided upon, Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force and the only service head to survive Johnson's sweep, had agreed to meet with a group of newspapermen for an off-record discussion of air policy. Merely as a formality, he felt he should check this with his new boss.

Symington reported to the newspapermen that the meeting would have to be called off. Johnson did not approve of off-the-record talks.

This sounds slightly laughable in retrospect. One of the reasons Johnson finds himself in hot water is his tendency to tell on an off-record basis, or "use it but don't quote me," so many important decisions.

During the past week it added up, if not to a comedy of errors, then to a farce of misunderstanding. In three specific instances Johnson used the "don't quote me" technique. Because I think this causes harmful confusion in Government and in the newspaper business, I think it's important to list those examples:

1. LATE Tuesday night when he stepped off a plane from New York, where he had been talking off the record to newspaper publishers, Johnson was asked about a report that Jonathan Daniels, former White House aide and son of the late Josephus Daniels, would become Secretary of the Navy. On a "don't quote me" basis, Johnson said, in effect, no, that wouldn't happen; it wouldn't promote harmony since Daniels and Undersecretary of Defense Stephen Early were not on friendly terms.

2. On Wednesday, coming out of the President's office in the White House, Johnson had a long off-the-record conference with reporters. Using the "don't quote me" technique, he told them Curtis Calder, head of Electric Bond & Share, would become Secretary of the Army in 60 days after he had wound up his personal affairs.

3. At the same off-the-record conference and on the same "don't quote me" basis, Johnson indicated that the Marine Corps' separate air unit would eventually become part of the Air Force or the Navy's air arm.

All these statements got into the newspapers within a few hours, under the formula "it was learned from an authoritative source," "a high ranking spokesman." Then, scarcely 24 hours later, President Truman made at least one directly contrary statement. He said Daniels was one of those under consideration for Secretary of the Navy.

Calder announced that he had not accepted the Army post. The President said at his press conference he was still hopeful the New Yorker would take the job.

BY LONG precedent, of course, it has been the President's privilege to make known who will or will not accept high office. Understandably the White House was upset, particularly since there had been no way of knowing that the "authoritative source" and the "high-ranking spokesman" was the Secretary of Defense.

To compound the confusion, Johnson himself on Thursday issued a statement through Chairman Carl Vinson of the House Armed Services Committee saying he had never contemplated "transferring" the Marine Corps air unit. The out here may be that word, "transfer." But a lot of people who heard Johnson talk about the duplicating waste in three separate air forces, and the need to end that waste, were considerably surprised.

It seems to me that the public is willing and ready to go along with unification that will mean a more effective military establishment at reduced cost. Johnson's action in calling off construction of the 200-million-dollar superaircraft carrier seems to have been rather widely approved.

Someone had to keep the armed services within a budget that the American economy can stand. Each service simply cannot have everything it wants. But knocking heads together is not the only way to bring about the necessary unification. While a number of people are bound to get angry and hurt, with a little finesse and tact this will not necessarily include everyone in any way involved in the ordeal.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Russians, Germans And The Pact

IT IS NOW reasonably certain that Congress will be dealing with the pact and the arms bill after the blockade of Berlin is ended and as the Big Four are discussing Germany as a whole.

LIPPMANN

These discussions will begin with the party leaders in western Germany especially Dr. Schumacher of the Social Democrat, in a favorable position to bargain with us on term which will be proposed by the Soviets. The terms, as indicated in the Warsaw Declaration of 1st June, will be no western German state but on the contrary a unified Germany, no true federalism but on the contrary a centralized state, the visual abandonment of reparations, and the evacuation of Germany.

There is nothing to suggest that the Soviet's proposals have been radically modified since they were published in June. There is very strong evidence that these terms have been discussed and elaborated with the German party leaders. For the net result of the German proceedings at Bonn is to create a situation which conforms in all essentials to the Warsaw Declaration: no western German state before the resumption of our negotiations with the Russians, no federalism, except where it does not really matter, and the emergence of the Social Democrats as the dominant party, committed openly to nationalism, to socialism, and to the ending of the occupation.

THUS in all likelihood Congress will be debating the question of arms to defend western Europe against invasion by the Red army just as the Soviet government is proposing to withdraw the Red army from Germany. If this happens, the European arms program will be in serious trouble unless the Administration argues the case on much stronger and more realistic grounds than it has thus far done. That it has argued the case weakly thus far is evident from the remarks made by Senator Vandenberg during Mr. Harriman's testimony last week.

THE OFFICIAL case for the arms bill is that the treaty is a pact of mutual assistance, and that western Europe must develop an army capable of holding the Russians between the Elbe and the Rhine. What Russians? Anyone who has discussed the matter with the European military planners knows that their plans are directed towards the Russian army now in Germany—to the 300,000 Red troops, organized in some 30 to 40 divisions, who are deployed behind the Elbe. The theory of European rearmament, as now conceived, is that if western Europe has sufficient forces to stop the Rusian force now in Germany, the Russians cannot invade western Europe without mobilizing additional armies in Russia, and that the American Air Force is capable of wrecking a mobilization.

That is the theory. But it has two critical weaknesses: one is that the Russians could enlarge their forces in Germany much faster than western Europe can rearm to deal with them. A second is that the Russians can reduce their forces in Germany, thus removing the reason for the rearmament. For if, as the official theory has it, western Europe must have 40 divisions to hold the 40 Russian divisions, then it needs more divisions if the Russians reinforce and less if they reduce or withdraw. Western military planning, therefore, is not under Western control. For it can be upset by Russian actions.

BUT THOUGH this is bad for the theory, the situation is, in fact, much better. If the American Air Force can prevent a Russian mobilization inside Russia, then once the Russians have withdrawn from Germany, they cannot come back into Germany and cannot invade western Europe, as long as the United States is firmly resolved, under the pact, to go to war if they cross their own frontier. This is the real virtue of the pact which must not be obscured or downgraded, as Senator Vandenberg quite rightly insists, by the false argument that the pact is meaningless without the arms bill.

The confusion arises because the pact is cast in the form of a treaty of mutual assistance. But in truth the essence of the pact is that it is an American guaranty which says that the Red army can attack no country without being at war with the United States. There is every reason for confidence that no country will be attacked by the Red army (infiltration is a quite different problem) as long as the Soviet government knows for certain that an attack on Norway or Sweden or Greece or Turkey or any other country would mean the beginning of a war with the United States. For in that war the United States could not be defeated by Russia, nor attacked severely, whereas Russia, even if it could not be defeated as Japan was defeated, would surely be injured fearfully.

THERE IS a very good case to be made for American military assistance to western Europe. But the case is not that western Europe can create an army to deal with the Red army. The Red army is dealt with now by the over-all power of the United States, which will be formally committed by the ratification of the pact. The Red army is dealt with even when it is as far west as the Elbe. It will be dealt with even more securely if it can be induced to withdraw behind the frontiers of the Soviet Union.

THE NEED for an increase of military forces in the West rests in reality on the situation which will exist in Germany when, as is inevitable, the occupation forces are first reduced and then withdrawn. The western European armies will not exist for several years, and before they exist the Red army will either be out of Germany or we shall be in the midst of another world war.

But if the Russians withdraw from Germany, the Germans will recover their independence. If the French are to deal with the resurgent Germany as equals and without anxiety, there must be a sufficient French army to deal with Germany before the Germans can create an army. The French will need an army of their own, and they will have besides the American guaranty of the North Atlantic Security Pact.

FINALLY, we should note that the American guaranty, decisive as it is against Russia and against Germany, will not carry conviction unless the western Europeans know that it will come into effect "automatically." It will come into effect automatically if, no matter what arrangements are made about Germany, or what reservations are made in the Senate debates, if there remain on the frontiers of western Europe some Americans—it does not really matter how many—who will be involved in war the first day that war breaks out.

Under the pact it should be quite feasible to work out arrangements for a permanent screen of American troops, however thin, as the tangible proof of the reality of the American guaranty.

West Berlin Coffee Ration Is Doubled

Berlin, May 2 (AP).—The three western commandants today authorized the coffee ration to be doubled for West Berliners.

West Berlin residents have been getting about three ounces of coffee a month. Airlift planes will have to haul in an additional 150 tons of coffee a month to meet the increased ration.

Plates brought in 8789 tons of supplies today.

In Their Stride

THE county health officers have, so to speak, taken the new medical care program in their stride. At first they were afraid of the abuses and red tape involved in public medical care programs. But the administrative procedures and the paper work have been reduced to a minimum. None of the health officers find the program burdensome. But they foresee that an assistant executive will be necessary as the program expands and outweighs in importance the routine responsibilities of a health department.

These health officers are the focal point of the medical program much the way that great American institution, the agricultural county agent, is the link between the farmers and the Federal-State agricultural program. Just as the county agent keeps the farmers in touch with the latest agricultural discoveries, so also the county health officer has become in Maryland the link between the medical practitioners and the great world of medical research centered in Baltimore.

A program of Federal aid to the care of the lowest income groups could, therefore, be readily added to Maryland's existing medical care programs, if the same policies of administrative decentralization are used which have made the county agent's office one of the best examples we possess of our American genius for Federal-State-local cooperative endeavor. Before such a program is feasible on a Nation-wide basis, every area in the country would have to have what we need in any case, a full-time physician health officer, experienced in the distribution of medical care.

No Compulsion

ALTHOUGH there is no compulsion upon doctors, dentists or pharmacists to join the program, practically all of them have done so. At the end of each month they send their bills to the County Health Officer, who forwards them to the State Health Department, from which payment is issued. Comparison of the reports enables the health officers to detect any accounts that greatly exceed the average. If it is indicated that some doctor is making too many visits to the same client, or has too high a drug bill, he is asked to explain why he is so far out of line with his fellow practitioners.

If the clients become too exacting or are caught shopping around from one doctor's office to the next, the doctors can readily check this abuse of their time and energies. Moreover, the doctors feel that they should themselves handle the occasional chiseling fellow-practitioner and not throw this responsibility on the Health Officers.

"The Health Officer should be empowered to report any chiseling doctor to his medical society," said Dr. Edward J. Edelin of Charles County. "It is time that our medical societies took more responsibility for the standards and integrity of the profession. There is no other way for us to clean house." On the whole, the abuse of the program is small, either by patients or doctors, as a result of these decentralized controls.

What hampers the program is the fact that it is uneconomic greatly to expand hospital, diagnostic and other facilities for a program that serves 3 per cent of the population. If health centers or diagnostic clinics are to be developed on a wide scale, the plan must be extended to a larger segment of the population. This in turn depends upon the willingness of the Legislature to vote a more adequate budget for medical care of the lowest income groups.

For 1948 the total budget is $543,424.

Hospitalization costs which are paid separately are probably about an equal amount. As the medical-care program reached 19,467 people, the cost per patient per year was about $28. This gives us a fair idea of the minimum cost of such a program if it were extended throughout the Nation. The Maryland budget moreover includes at present only limited dental care and does not meet the incredibly high demand for dentures and eyeglasses.

Well-Officered

MARYLAND has an unusual advantage in the high-caliber of its local health officers. This is due partly to the fact that the local people are interested in their health programs and give them voluntary support, and partly to the leadership given by the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health. But the health officers will tell you that the superior quality of the State's health and medical programs depends principally upon the amount of citizen participation.

In every county it differs. Most highly organized is large and wealthy Montgomery County. Its nationally known health officer, Dr. V. L. Ellicott, gives credit for the development of the county's well-distributed public health services to the constant support he has had from the lay County Council, the County Health Fund and other voluntary groups, most of whom are represented on the Medical Care Advisory Committee.

On the other hand, in less populated and less prosperous areas like Charles County, where voluntary organizations have limited financial resources, it is the health officer himself, Dr. William Harris, who is obliged to take the lead in coordinating the efforts of the County Medical Association with those of the public and private agencies. But throughout the State, the people of Maryland are becoming ever more conscious of the fact that their health and medical problems must be solved where they arise, in the ever-varying nature of local conditions, and that their solution depends upon widespread community interest and cooperation.

The First Steps

AS THE United States Public Health Service estimates that only 5 per cent of the American population have health departments whose basic staffs are complete, the first step in extending Maryland's health plan throughout the Nation, would be Federal and State aid for those areas that cannot afford to pay an adequate salary for a full-time public health officer. For a decentralized medical program such as Maryland's can never be better than the quality of the local health officer.

But a health program, so organized will not only serve the lowest income groups with a minimum of administrative costs and red tape. It will result in educational benefits to the local practitioners which will be reflected in better health services to the whole population.

As Dr. Maurice C. Pincoffs, Professor of Medicine at the Maryland University School of Medicine, has pointed out to the Maryland County Medical Societies: "If we succeed in improving the medical care of our dependent groups, we shall raise the standards of private practice and improve the care of the people as a whole."

"We are very conscious that this is so" said Dr. Ernest Poole, secretary of the Washington County Medical Society. "Perhaps that is the main reason why the doctors have become steadily more enthusiastic about the program. We are all working harder, seeing more patients, and widening our horizons.

"We are not satisfied with the program because it doesn't reach all of the medically indigent who are entitled to it. But it is so close to the people that no politician can use compulsory health insurance to get himself elected in our State. We know we've got something better. In learning how to give the best medical care to the lowest income groups, we are laying the soundest foundation for an effective program of voluntary health insurance."

O'Conor Finds Doctors Favor State's Plan

By The Associated Press

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.) said yesterday his own poll of Maryland doctors shows most of them favor some kind of health insurance.

He added that fewer than 5 per cent favor Federal control of such a program, as is contemplated in first known poll of doctors on the President Truman's compulsory national health insurance proposals.

The Senator said he has communicated with more than half of the State's 3696 physicians in the subject.

Ninety-five per cent of those who replied, he reported, have these convictions:

1. Health insurance legislation is needed.

2. Its control should be in the hands of State and local governments, with the Federal Government making grants to enable them to enlarge and develop their own health programs.

3. Participation should be voluntary and not compulsory.

O'Conor says he will present his findings to the Senate Committee on Labor and General Welfare in the next two weeks, when it begins considering President Truman's proposals and substitutes that have been recommended.

O'Conor and several other Senators have joined in submitting a bipartisan substitute which they feel would meet most of the objections voiced by the doctors.

Points to Maryland System

Compulsory health insurance controlled by the Federal Government "might well result in some form of socialized medicine," O'Conor said.

"It has always seemed to me that problems of health should be resolved on the local level, and that such a program can be carried on successfully has been proved in the functioning of the Maryland medical care program."

Of the bipartisan substitute, he said:

"There is almost uniform agreement among the doctors whose opinion I have received, that such a program offers possibilities for development into a complete plan which would meet all the needs of our people and yet maintain the present healthy relationship between the patient and members of the medical profession and would not entail exhorbitant outlays which any Federal plan would require."

The President's Calling List

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

10:00 a. m.— Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn, Senator Myers, and House Majority Leader McCormack.

11:00—Representatives Celler, Walker and others.

11:30—Members of the National Association of Radio Farm Directors.

12:00 noon—H. Freeman Matthews, Ambassador to Sweden.

12:15 p. m.—The Rev. Lawrence J. McKinley, president of Fordham University.

12:30—Secretary of State Acheson.

4:15—Ransom Williams, former Governor of South Carolina, and Democratic finance official.

3:30—Secretary of Commerce Sawyer.

3:45—Paul Hoffman, ECA administrator, and W. Averill Harriman, ECA Ambassador.

Do Voters Favor the Hoover Reforms?

Do YOU think the Hoover Commission's recommendations for streamlining the Federal Government should be adopted? Match your views with those of other voters — see Wednesday's Gallup Poll in The Washington Post.

People were asked how important they considered reduction of Federal spending, and where they thought money could be saved. Read the results of this timely poll in tomorrow's Post.

Post Editor Wins Award

Nichols, was selected as the best book of the year on American history. It covers a period just before the Civil War.

Robert E. Sherwood won the prize for American biography with his "Roosevelt and Hopkins."

The annual $1500 scholarship to an art student designated by the National Academy of Design went to Rudolph Franz Zallinger of Hamden, Conn.

Peter Viereck's "Terror and Decorum" was named the most distinguished volume of verse by an American author in 1948. It was his first collection of poetry.

Virgil Thomson Honored

Virgil Thomson won the award in musical composition with his music written for "Louisiana Story," a documentary story dealing with the invasion of a Louisiana bayou by an oil firm. The trustees said it was the first time the award ever went to music written for a movie.

The awards, each worth $500 in cash, are given annually by the trustees of Columbia University on recommendation of the advisory board of the graduate school of journalism. This was the thirty-second year such awards have been made.

Elliston, born in England, received his early newspaper training on the Manchester Guardian. In the 1920s he served the Chinese government as economic adviser and as chief editor of the government's economic publications.

He came to The Washington Post as associate editor in November, 1940, after serving on the staff of the Christian Science Monitor as an editorial writer and war correspondent during the Russo-Finnish war. He became editor in 1946. His home is 1642 29th st. nw.

Trussell came to the New York Times bureau here in 1941 after serving with the Washington Bureau of the Baltimore Sun. He is a native of Chicago.

Nebraska Editor's Vote Work Described

Lincoln, Nebr., May 2 (AP).—An all-star presidential Nebraska vote planed by Editor Raymond A. McConnell, jr., was the pivot around which the Nebraska State Journal won the Pulitzer prize for disinterested and meritorious public service.

By petition McConnell entered all the likely Republican presidential candidates. President Truman was entered on the Democratic side.

The filings aroused such interest both in Nebraska and nationally that Candidates Dewey, Taft and Stassen stumped the State. Several others came into the State for briefer stays.

McConnell said today the Journal's entry in the Pulitzer contest included all the paper's efforts throughout the year to stimulate public interest in elections.

He said the idea behind the paper's campaign was to stimulate a better-informed electorate.

Elliston Is Third On Post to Win Prize

Herbert B. Elliston, editor of the Washington Post, is the third Washington Post staff member to receive the Pulitzer award for work on the paper.

Edward T. Folliard, Post White House correspondent, was given the prize in 1947 for his articles on The Columbians, Inc.

Felix Morley, former Editor, received the award in 1936 for distinguished editorial writing.

The Post's present cartoonist, Herbert Block, got the cartoonist award in 1942, while working for the Newspaper Enterprise Association in Cleveland.

whole to meet a national problem."

"The Senator from Ohio," Bird said, "is aware that this 3 hundred million dollars will be a deficit expenditure because we shall have a deficit in this fiscal year of approximately 800 million dollars or 900 hundred million dollars and in the next fiscal year there will be a deficit of at least $3,500,000,000 and in the fiscal year of 1951 beginning July 1, 1950, there will be a deficit of six or seven billion."

Taft replied that he was in favor of cutting down on all appropriations and would even vote to cut 10 per cent from the education measure but that he was convinced the bill was necessary.

The problem which confronts the Congress in the education field is "as important as any other," Taft said.

Senator Raymond Baldwin (R., Conn.) has offered an amendment which would in effect have a Federal tax collected but it would be held and expended by the State.

Another amendment offered by Senators Millard Tydings (D., Md.), Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.), Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) and Bricker would, as Tydings explained it, "in effect confine Federal aid to States below the average in educational standards," and would not aid States above the average.

League to Fete British Leader On Visit Here

By S. Oliver Goodman

Sir Harold Bellman, board chairman of the 325-million-dollar Abbey National Building Society in London, will be honored at a luncheon today in the Statler Hotel.

Sir Harold Oscar R. Kreutz, league executive manager, will preside.

Host will be the National Savings and Loan League and guests will include prominent persons in Government and Washington business.

Sir Harold, although heading the largest private home financing institution in the world, is famed for his unorthodox views on public housing. He supported the British public housing program as a postwar necessity, going so far as to serve on the government's council on housing. Up until recent months, private housing programs were banned in England. This year, Great Britain has relented and allowed private building in the ratio of one to five.

Sir Harold arrived in New York about a week ago with Frank B. Taylor, board chairman of Taylor-Woodrow Ltd, one of Britain's largest construction firms. They inspected a mammoth garden apartment project, now rising on Long Island.

He and Taylor registered at the Wardman Park Hotel last night. Sir Harold said that although Great Britain led the United States in large-scale housing projects for many years, he believes that this country is now in the lead.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: E. A. Korchnoy, formerly with the Hecht Co. and Raleigh Haberdasher here, has been elected president and executive director of the Hat Research Foundation . . . Harry W. Porte, manager of the Pacific Coast Agency of Mergenthaler Linotype Co., has been elevated to sales director, succeeding W. H. Griffin . . .

Korchnoy

George Hartford is the new sales director of WTOP-AM and FM . . . Willard W. Wright has been named assistant general sales manager of the Sun Oil Co. . . . W. A. MacDonald and Fred R. Cooper, former officials of Kaiser-Frazer Corp., have become associated with Crosley Motors . . . George V. Foy, former sales manager of Gartner & Bender, Inc., has resigned to form his own sales management consultant firm .

GAS NET LOWER: Washington Gas Light Co., in an interim statement for the 12 months ended March 31, reported net income of $1,289,687, equal to $1.39 a common share. This compared with $1,875,771, or $2.82 a common share in the 12 months ended March 31, 1948. President Everett J. Boothby said that the drop reflected abnormally mild weather during the past winter together with higher labor and material costs. He added that March and April gas sales, however, have turned sharply higher.

ODD LOTS: William H. Howard, Macy's advertising director, will address a joint luncheon of the Men's and Women's Advertising Clubs today at the Statler . . . FDIC reports that banks held 162 billion in deposits at end of 1948, about 5 billion more than last summer but slightly less than at the beginning of the year . . . Steel operations this week are estimated at 97.3 per cent of capacity, down 0.2 of one per cent from last week . . . Koppers Co., Inc., announced it will purchase the Freyn Engineering Co. of Chicago . . . Floyd B. Odlum, Atlas Corp. president, has been elected chairman of Barnsdall Oil Co.

IMPROVEMENT: Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, Inc., reported net income of $1,481,000 or 70 cents a share for the period of January 3 to March 27. For the like 1948 period, net totaled $553,000 or 27 cents a share . . . Eastern Airlines, Inc. reported first-quarter earnings of $1,298,065, equal to 54 cents a share, compared with $1,121,144 or 47 cents a share in same 1948 period.

EARNINGS: National Department Stores Corp. reported net income of $2,600,180 or $3.32 a common share for the fiscal year ended January 31, compared with $3,224,045 or $4.12 a share for the previous year. Other earnings statements:

Have you seen it?
Heard it? Tried it?
Do you know what it can do for you?

Here is an entirely new kind of electronic Business Recorder especially created to help you get things done more easily, quickly, conveniently. Here is an instrument that records dictation, telephone conversations, meetings and conferences on paper-thin, virtually indestructible plastic discs you can slip in an envelope and mail—discs that cost but a few pennies yet record for over 60 minutes.

Moreover, the AUDOGRAPH is incredibly light—the smallest and lightest of all dictating instruments, lighter than most portable typewriters, taking far less space than a letter tray. No turntable. No recording or playing arms to manipulate. Just simplicity itself—a masterpiece of American manufacturing resourcefulness, star-studded with revolutionary new features never before available in any instrument.

Before you decide on any dictation instrument be sure you see the AUDOGRAPH in action! Phone or write for FREE demonstration and FREE TRIAL in your office on your desk, no obligation, of course.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—With the Government remaining in the cash wheat market the May future jumped around a cent on the Board of Trade today. It was 3⅜ cents at one time, but could not hold all of that gain.

The action of May had no influence on the new-crop months. They dropped fractionally on reports of rain in the spring-wheat territory and a highly optimistic survey of crop conditions in the Southwest by the Santa Fe Railway.

Wheat provided practically all the market's interest, other commodities closing with only small price changes after a listless trade.

May wheat closed ⅞ higher at 2.18¼@⅜; new crop contracts ended ⅛ to ¼ lower. Corn was ¼ lower to ⅛ higher. Oats were unchanged to ⅛ higher. Rye was unchanged to ⅛ lower. Soybeans were ¼ lower to 1¾ higher, and lard was 5 cents lower to 2 cents a hundred pounds.

New York Cotton

New York, May 2 (AP).—Cotton futures moved in a narrow range today and closed firm at gains of 10 to 25 cents a bale. The market was aided by reports that foreign countries have started to buy here in anticipation of second-quarter export credits to be announced by ECA.

BARGAINS!

WANTED: More associates to join present owners of large basic company in dairy field. You can invest as much as you want to. Last year company earned $11.06, paid dividends of $6.34 on investment now worth $100. For details address Box ML-1.

50 YEARS OF DIVIDENDS—AND GOOD ONES
Available now, shares in big electrical goods manufacturing company. Established products, both consumer and industrial, account for record of consistent return, while company's leadership in research and development work are guarantee for future. Shares now worth $100 earned $11.56 last year and paid dividends of $5.39. Write Box ML-2.

FOR SALE: Stock in one of country's biggest operating utilities. What do you get for your money? Well, look at the record. Suppose you want to invest $100. On the ownership interest that $100 would buy you would get $5.71 at the current dividend rate. Write Box ML-3.

9% ON YOUR MONEY
You can buy into one of nation's biggest railroads at bargain rates, if you act now. Investment of $100 (present prices) would have returned $9.34 in dividends last year. For full details, write Box ML-4.

FOR SALE: Small share in major variety chain. Strong financial position—no loans, no funded debt. Ownership interest which you can buy now for $100 would have netted $5.43 in dividends for you last year—and these dividends were amply protected by earnings of $9.74 per $100. Write Box ML-5.

WANT TO SPECULATE?
After the war, airlines went into a nosedive. But, one way or another, Uncle Sam will "keep 'em flying", and prospects aren't all bad. That's why stock in one major airline is regarded as a good speculation. Since the war it hasn't paid a penny, but in 1946 it earned $7.45 and paid dividends of $2.19 on every $100 investment. For more information—Box ML-6.

Suppose you saw ads like these in the paper.

Chances are you'd be pretty interested. Didn't know there were such bargains in the stock market, did you?

The reason why you don't see advertisements like these—each one for a big and important company—is that brokers are conservative. And they are conservative because they know that there's an element of risk in every investment. They can't tell you what you're going to make on your money tomorrow.

But what are you going to do with your money? Put it in the sugar bowl... a farm ... or real estate? There's risk there, too.

No, we're certainly not going to tell you that you can't go wrong on the stock market now. But we will say that the prudent investor can buy many common stocks in today's market that seem pretty attractive in terms of past performance or future prospects.

Of course, a lot of factors other than last year's dividends should enter a decision to buy any stock—management, competition, sales outlook, etc. We'll tell you what we can about these factors. That's why we suggest you write to us—and just mention the box number of any of the stocks described above that interest you.

Then too, there's always the question of what investment is best for you. So the more you tell us about your own investment situation, the more helpful we can be in supplying the information you want about these or any other stocks.

Prosperity Balance Is Truman's Goal

Coordination Plan

Sasscer Files Bill for Area Tax Accord

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.) yesterday introduced a bill to set up a nine-member commission to seek days of coordinating taxes in the Washington metropolitan area.

There would be three commission members for the District, three for Maryland and three for Virginia. The District members would be appointed by the Commissioners here and the Governors of Maryland and Virginia would appoint the representatives for their States.

Sasscer said he had collaborated with Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.) and Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) in preparing his plan.

D. C. Tax Action Awaited

Sasscer's district takes in Prince Georges County; Beall's includes Montgomery County, and Smith's includes the Virginia communities in the Washington Metropolitan area.

Sasscer pointed out that Maryland has a sales tax tax; the District and Virginia do not. The District sales-tax bill is awaiting Senate action, which may come this week.

Sasscer told the House that he would like to see the tax structures in the District and adjacent areas coordinated as far as possible. He said the economy of the area could not prosper with a line drawn across it, leaving half the population paying the sales tax and the other half not.

Would Study Other Issues

He pointed out that the Commission's study could extend beyond the tax question to other issues that affect the area as a whole.

The bill gives the Commission up to four years to determine:

1. The need for coordinated planning action, by the various governmental units having jurisdiction in the metropolitan area of the District of Columbia, with respect to tax legislation and other matters of general planning and regional operations.

2. If the need exists, the best methods of bringing about coordinated planning and action.

To set the commission up, Sasscer ponted out, similar legislation would have to be approved by the Congress, and the Maryland and Virginia state legislatures. His bill authorizes a $5000 appropriation for the Commission's work.

President Truman said yesterday that "it doesn't make much difference what prices are" if there is a "fair and square" balance among producer, processor and consumer.

He told members of the National Association of Radio Farm Directors that such a balance is the aim of the farm program on which the Administration is working. He described that program as a "real one."

And he added that if the United States can help raise living standards in other parts of the world "our prosperity never could cease."

Trying to Arrange Balance

Speaking to the group in his office, the President said:

"We are trying to arrange things so that there is a balance—a fair balance—between the man who raises the things to eat, and the fiber with which we are clothed, and the man who processes it and the man who uses it.

"If we have a balance between the producer, the man who does the procesisng, and the consumer—the processor and the consumer sometimes is the same man—it doesn't make much difference what the prices are, so long as there is a balance between the three groups that is fair and square."

Mr. Truman went on to say that the Administration wants everybody in the country "to have a fair share in the prosperity of the United States' and "we want to make that prosperity continuous."

Effect on World Situation

Linking this program up with prospects for world peace, the President asserted "if we ourselves can show how to make our form of government work successfully for all the people, that has its effect on the world situation.

"If we could just raise the standard of living of the people in Asia and Africa and South America, our prosperity never could cease. Just 2 per cent is all we need to do that. Our ambition is to give all the people everywhere a chance at the good things of life, and we want to do that peaceably."

He told them he would be up at 5:30 o'clock in the morning to hear the radio farm talks.

Stockmen Oppose Program

Meanwhile the American National Livestock Association declared its opposition to the Truman Administration's proposed farm program. The association said it dislikes "Government subsidies and controls."

"We are opposed to over-all grants of authority that inevitably will tend more and more to regiment the entire industry. Aside from our belief that such subsidies and controls are fundamentally unsound, the very nature of our industry is such that it does not lend itself to operation under such controls."

The Administration has proposed that the Government abandon present price supports on many crops. These supports aim t maintain farm prices by holding crop surpluses out of the markets.

Government to Pay Difference

Secretary of Agriculture Brannan has suggested instead that these crops be permitted to sell at what the market will pay. The Government then would make "production payments" directly to farmers to make up the difference between the average price in the market and the price the Government considers to be a fair return to the farmers.

A. A. Smith, association president, said proposed limits to such support would exclude about 25 per cent of cattle production, and livestock growers believe "the program would descourage the feeding of cattle, particularly in commercial feed lots which are a substantial factor in beef production." He added that it seems inevitable that such a program "would add tremendously to the already heavy tax burden."

Bryant Edwards, president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association, told the committee "we ranch people do not like the basic philosophy of the proposed plan."

4 Deadlines Must Be Met By Virginians

Virginia voters, taxpayers and car owners have four deadlines to keep in mind:

May 7—Deadline for payment of poll tax by those who wish to vote in the August 2 primary and November 8 general election for Governor and other State and local officials. Tax must be paid on number of years up to three (prior to 1949) that a person has lived in Virginia. Residence of one year in the State is required for voting.

May 14—Deadline for registering to vote in June 14 municipal elections in Alexandria, Falls Church and Herndon.

July 2—Deadline for registering to vote in August 2 primary.

May 1 to June 15—Period in which cars must be put through semiannual State auto inspection. Inspections are being handled by 92 service stations and garages in northern Virginia area.

Yesterday was the deadline for filing personal property and State income tax returns.

Bids to Open May 13

Capitol Architect David Lynn said yesterday his office plans to invite bids for clearing the site for the new Senate Office Building on May 13. The site is in the second block of 1st se. ne., opposite the present Senate Office Building. He said bids for clearing the site would be opened about June 1.

Train Bandits To Hear Sentence On Wednesday

Fairmont, W. Va., May 2 (AP).—Two youths who held up the Ambassador, a Washington-to-Detroit train, near Martinsburg on March 9, are to be sentenced here Wednesday.

The pair, Luman Ramsdell and George L. Ashton, both of Youngstown, Ohio, face sentences up to 40 years.

They admitted robbing some 100 passengers of about $1000.

One on the Aisle—

Same Tallulah Different Acre

By Richard L. Coe

THIS SEEMS TO BE Tallulah's year.

Tallulah Who?

Are you kidding? I certainly don't mean a tube of Smell.

What's she done now?

She's won a ham.

What's she gonna do with it?

Eat it, dahling. Off a platter she won with it.

Zat all she won with it? Couldn't have been a very good program.

It's not a radio contest, dopey. It's the Barter Theater's annual award for the best performance of the season, in "Private Lives." Besides, she also wins an acre of a Virginia hillside.

Now you're talking. I read about somebody the other day who won an aircraft carrier and then decided he didn't want it. What's she gonna do with this acre? That's not much ground in Virginia.

She owns another acre. Won it a couple of years ago for the way she played Sabina in "The Skin of Our Teeth." Trouble is, Louis Calhern, Helen Hayes and Henry Fonda won the acres in between and you can't have an unmarried lady building a house that would sprawl onto a married gentleman's property in Virginia, now can you?

Well, I guess she might be able to build a house on that acre. Be a squeeze, though.

Don't say that! We don't say squeeze in talking about Tallulah.

Sorry. She seen her acre yet? Virginia-bound.

No, but she will soon. On Sunday the 22d, Governor Tuck of Virginia will be presenting the deed to her at a luncheon in Richmond. Usually this is done in New York, but Bob Porterfield has talked Tallulah into having the festivities in Virginny. Bob can talk anybody into anything, but the 64 dollar question now is who gets the oil?

What oil?

About 5 miles away they've struck oil and when drillers went to the courthouse recently they found that the next spots they wanted to sink more wells were owned by Ethel Barrymore, Helen Hayes, Katherine Cornell, Tallulah and all those other Broadway stars. Nobody's sure if there's oil on the property or not.

Must be a lucky name, Tallulah. There's a politician named Tallulah who came out for Truman and there's a sports writer named Tallulah who wrote a baseball story in Colliers last month and now I read about somebody named Tallulah's gonna play the Olney Theater soon.

Don't be a fool, dahling, there'll all the same Tallulah. Tallulah's gonna be giving that play she won her prize for as the first bill of the Olney summer season four weeks from tonight.

Yeah? Well, thanks for the dope. Gotta go now. Gonna get a shampoo. New treatment named Tallu—OUCH!

GUY LOMBARDO and his Royal Canadians will play at the TWIG benefit dance in Alexandria on Thursday night the 20th. TWIG is the Junior Auxiliary of the Alexandria Hospital, and to aid the troubled charity the Alexandria Bicentennial Commission, in honor of the city's 200th anniversary, is sponsoring a national network broadcast from the dance. The fete will be held at Alexandria's Roller Skating Rink. Tickets are $3 per person and you can get them at Harris & Ewing's on F st., the Capital Airlines at the Statler and Brentano's in the Pentagon.

FATHER'S FUND will benefit from tomorrow night's preview performance of "Thank You, Just Looking," annual spring musical of Catholic University's speech and drama department. Father, of course, is Father Gilbert V. Hartke, head of the group, and his fund is for helping deserving students of his celebrated department. The public opening is Friday night, but Wednesday's preview is a good way to promote the energetic priest's splendid cause.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—A British film expert who worked with Sir Alexander Korda, J. Arthur Rank and Filippo del Giudice, the producer of "Hamlet," "Henry V," and "The Guinea Pig," was asked to differentiate between them. "I'll put it this way," was the question, "Suppose each was put into a room with a tiger. What would happen?" . . . "Rank would emerge with the movie rights to the battle," said the Britisher. "Korda would come out wearing the tiger's skin, in the best Saville Row fashion. And del Giudice," he concluded, "would be found in a corner, preparing the carcass for that oh-so-delicious stew they make in his native Milano."

Thereon Bamberger, who runs the Bucks County Playhouse, sat in Sardi's with Harold J. Kennedy, who operates the Princeton Playhouse. An actor saw them comparing summer schedules, and said: "There's Cut & Throat" . . . Clifton Webb, whose two "Belvedere" films have earned huge profits for 20th Century-Fox., is under contract to the studio for only one more film—and then he becomes a free agent . . . The Israeli government is sending engineering experts to study our prefabricated housing . . . Gertrude Lawrence advises all her friends to try to become president of Actors Equity. "They're seldom out of a job during their term of office," she said. "It's so chic to have an equity president in the cast."

Last week the director of the Arizona State Department of Mineral Resources announced the discovery of a high-grade uranium deposit in Pima County. It was first brought to the attention of the officials by an old prospector who, six months ago, brought a sample of ore into the assay office in Nogales, Ariz. The ore was found to contain uranium, and this sample set off a search in the Pima County area . . . The deposit was located, but the old prospector, who never returned and didn't leave his name, still hasn't been found.

John Garfield, star of "The Big Knife," was to sail for England June 5, but the rush of business at the box-office has decided him to delay his departure . . . Jed Harris, producer of "The Traitor," returned to New York last week and explained to his assembled cast: "I've been out of the country. I've just spent a week in Hollywood" . . . The NAACP will request the Brooklyn grand jury to reopen the case of the man in the Stuyvesant section who was killed by detectives who entered his home. Another grand jury whitewashed the accused men . . . At a cocktail party Jim Farley greeted cartoonist Al Capp: "How are you, Mr. Caniff?" Capp replied, "Fine, Mr. Hannegan."

Leo Durocher May Be Quickly Exonerated Today

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, MAY 2.—Harmony on a ball club is all right, but not absolutely necessary, the Chicago White Sox are demonstrating. There are some among them who would like to get a firm clutch on the throat of Manager Jack Onslow. But that hasn't deterred them from winning ball games for him. Maybe it is better said that they are winning ball games for themselves, not for Onslow.

Pretty generally you will find winning ball teams subordinating the manager's satisfaction to their own selfish designs. There's nothing wrong with that, either. A winning club never has made a manager look to be other than a good manager.

POVICH

But there were signs even before the season started that the White Sox weren't fond of Onslow. They were rebelling in spring training against the numerous new rules laid down by their new manager, up from Memphis. No wives in camp, no automobiles either, no card playing, and there were threats that they'd better watch their step generally because Onslow wouldn't stand for any more last-place foolishness. Who the heck did he think he was, up from the bushes with all these tough-guy ideas? Nobody had ever accused him of being a managerial genius to start with.

ANYWAY, THERE was mumbling, grumbling and the open prediction that Onslow wouldn't last despite the two-year contract he had going for him. Jack Ryan, the Chicago News correspondent, flatly predicted that Onslow would be the first of this year's American League managers to get the gate. There's no sign of that happening while Onslow has his strange collection of rookies, plus Luke Appling and Cass Michaels, playing second-place baseball, a nice transition from their eighth-place brand under Teddy Lyons. If the White Sox players are mad at him, the White Sox fans aren't and neither are General Manager Frank Lane and the Comiskey family, who are thrilled by the whole idea of having a team in the running after all these years, if only temporarily.

Onslow said he was going to be tough, and that is what has been happening. He spurns the nice-guy technique that cost Muddy Ruel and Bucky Harris their managerial jobs in recent years and is cracking down, fortified by his two-year contract. The White Sox know who's boss, at least so far.

IT IS RELIABLY reported that the other day in St. Louis Onslow rapped Catcher Joe Tipton with a $500 fine for laxity in handling the pitchers in the last inning when the Browns came up with eight runs. The White Sox still won the ball game, thanks to an early lead, but that fact didn't sway Onslow, who proved he can get tough even on the day when the White Sox won a double-header.

Other managers might have been forgiving after a double victory, but not Onslow, the stickler for hustle. He didn't admit that he fined Tipton, saying "nothing unusual happened, although I wasn't too proud over the two games we won." But a St. Louis park attendant said there was trouble between Onslow and Tipton, and the latter is quoted as saying, "I can't talk, although I wish I could."

One thing must be said for Onslow, he wasn't picking on a minor guy in the White Sox set-up. Tipton is one of the good ball players, and indispensable to the White Sox. It wasn't one of the good managerial jobs that Onslow got when the White Sox brought him up from Memphis to take over the worst collection of players in the league. But shrewd trades got them some fine young talent, Tipton from Cleveland, First Baseman Steve Souchock from the Yankees, and Pitcher Bill Pierce from the Tigers.

ONSLOW WAS in a nice spot in that he could be labeled a success merely by finishing seventh. Anything to rid the South Side of its eighth-place stigma. This morning they were only two games out of the league lead, second to the Yankees.

They don't figure to stay in the first division, but there they are for a while at least. Onslow set as one of his goals beating out either the Browns or the Washington club. That was one certain way of finishing out of the cellar. And he hasn't lost much time in that direction, his White Sox have met the Browns six times so far and won 'em all. That's a short cut out of the cellar.

Harmony be damned. Onslow will be pleased if the White Sox hate him but keep winning for him or themselves.

Cops Save Fan in Stands

Oriole Manager Who Sent Clary After Heckler Is Cleared

Baltimore, May 2 (AP).—The Board of Directors of the Baltimore Orioles voted last night to forgive Manager Tommy Thomas for telling one of his ball players to "go get" a heckler.

After a session lasting far into the night, the directors of the International League club said they had "unanimously given Thomas a vote of confidence."

Thomas yesterday completed a five-day suspension ordered by League President Frank Shaughnessy as a result of the incident last Tuesday night when the Orioles were tangling with Toronto.

A fan was riding Infielder Ellis Clary, former Washington player, and apparently getting his goat. Thomas pointed the heckler out to Clary and told him to "go get him."

Clary and two other Oriole players climbed into the stands. Police blocked the way, however, and the unidentified heckler was shuttled out of Babe Ruth Stadium.

Clary later said he simply intended to invite the man to meet him after the game and repeat the "violent abuse" heaped on him. Clary received a three-day suspension for his part in the affair.

Orioles President Jack Dunn said the incident "is deeply regretted" by the directors, "but we have reason to believe it will not happen again."

Public Links 'Shortage' Of $20,000 Is Hinted

cused the Interior Department of poor supervision of its contract with the concessioner.

At the start of yesterday's hearing, James Robinson, Interior auditor, reported that the audit requested March 29 by the subcommittee still hadn't been completed.

For that reason, Representative Monroe Redden (D., N. C.), chairman, didn't call Leoffler to the witness stand. Redden also postponed today's scheduled hearing. It may take another three weeks before the final audit is ready.

The chairman appeared to be disturbed over the delay and told Robinson that he thought the Interior Department had been given ample time. After the first hearing in March, Arthur E. Demaray, associate director of National Park Service, said the audit would be ready "within a week."

A Loose System

Representative Poulson said he knew that Interior and GAO auditors have been working day and night trying to get it together.

Said Poulson, "The bookkeeping employed affords apportunity for gross negligence. It's a loose system in which anything can happen."

Poulson was highly critical of the fact that no signed receipts existed for the more than $200,000 annual payroll.

At the morning session, Poulson subjected Demaray to a withering series of questions for nearly an hour and a half. Principal topic was a memorandum dated April 1 and signed by Demaray urging Assistant Secretary of Interior C. Girard Davidson to approve a more favorable contract for Leoffler.

Briefly, the proposed pact would have increased Leoffler's salary from $8500 to $11,500; raised his four partners' salaries from $5000 to $6500; reduced the required rehabilitation fund from 5 per cent of the gross to 3 per cent; raised the greens fees and covered a five-year- period with an option for a five-year renewal.

Davidson rejected the proposed contract and told Leoffler that only a substantially similar contract to the one that expired December 31 would be approved by him.

Demaray Didn't Know

Poulson tried to find who had written the memo. Demaray said he didn't know but believed that several persons in his office prepared it.

The letter, in recommending the additional five-year option, stated, "It would prevent in the future the intervention of irresponsible interests as well as unfavorable publicity resulting in embarrassment to the Interior Department."

Poulson, obviously enjoying his role, asked, "Do you consider the interest of Congress 'irresponsible'?"

Demaray, who paced nervously back and forth throughout the questioning, answered, "No, sir. I think that's the wrong interpretation entirely." Poulson persisted, "Would it be the D. C. Recreation Board?"

Again Demaray said no and added that he thought it applied to a representative of the Cleveland Concession Co.

The Cleveland Concession submitted a bid for a five-year contract to operate the courses before Leoffler's old contract expired. Leoffler currently has no contract and is running the courses on a contingent basis.

Schwab cited what he called weaknesses in the present setup. He pointed out that the four partners in the Leoffler Co. are related by blood or marriage. He said Leoffler has many other business interests and that he felt a general manager of a golf business grossing half a million dollars annually should be able to devote full-time Chairman Redden called the last contract a "mighty bad one." Redden said, "It's all in the favor of the concessioner and bad for the Government.

"No matter who gets this golf contract, it's going to be of an entirely different type."

Petro, Cooper Will Try Again Here Tonight

The 12-round featherweight bout between Danny Petro and Jimmy Cooper, postponed last night because of rain, will take place tonight at Griffith Stadium. Weather prediction is clear and less humid, somewhat cooler.

The fights still will not be televised or broadcast, and because of daylight saving time, the first bout won't begin until 9 p. m.

At yesterday's weighing-in at the Boxing Commission, Cooper, a 7 to 5 favorite, came in at 125 with Petro at 123. Both fighters are well under the feather limit, as promised by their managers.

Gabe Menendez, matchmaker for Promoter Mrs. Florence Turner, looks for a crowd of over 5,000 at the first outdoor show of the year. The supporting card will stand as scheduled. Five rounders pit Holly Mims against Scott Richardson; Herbie Jones against Alfonso Wilkinson. In fours Pat Thomas meets Jackie O'Keefe; Herbie Stowe faces Jesse Heagen and Tommy Jones tangles with Tommy Larner.

Nats, Scarborough Will Try To Snap Loss Streaks Today

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, May 2.—The Nats rested today, but not on their laurels. That latter item does not go hand-in-hand with an eighth-place ball club that has won only three of 14 games and isn't quite certain where the next victory is coming from. The hope, though, is that Chicago will be the locale.

Starting tomorrow, they plunge into a two-game series with the White Sox. However, luck seems to be against the Nats at this point. The White Sox, who were supposed to be one of the second-flight clubs, are winging along surprisingly in second place.

Ray Scarborough, who is supposed to be the Nats' best pitcher, and hasn't been, will face right-hander Howie Judson of the White Sox in the series opener. Ray hasn't had any success since opening day. He's gone to the post three times, and also-ran.

Power Shown

But for Scarborough and the other Washington pitchers there is now a smidgeon of hope from a new direction. At last the Nats have shown signs of hitting. That four-game series in Philadelphia, which fetched three defeats, wasn't without its consoling factor. For the first time this season, the Nats demonstrated some power.

In four games they whacked out 39 hits, scored 21 runs and were hitting the ball for long distances with five home runs, four triples and seven two-baggers. They are not a winning club, but no longer are they a week one.

Buddy Lewis has recovered his batting eye apparently. Eddie Robinson at last has begun to time those lusty strokes, and Manager Joe Kuhel has come up with a new deployment of his infield. Al Kozar is out of there when the Nats face right-handed pitching. Kuhel is sacrificing some defensive skill to get Sherry Robertson's bat into the lineup.

Robertson whacked a home run a fur piece over the right center wall at Philadelphia and also contributed two singles in two games. And he's faster on the bases than Kozar. Unable to break into the Nats outfield, Robertson may have found his niche at second base.

Dodgers Nose Out Army, 4-3

West Point, N. Y., May 2 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers pushed across a run in the tenth inning on an infield error and wild pitch to defeat Army, 4 to 3, in their annual exhibition with the Cadets on Doubleday field here today.

Chisox Pilot, Catcher Settle Their Squabble

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—Manager Jack Onslow of the surprising White Sox and his No. 1 catcher, Joe Tipton, shook hands today and each said the other was a great guy. Thus ended the latest squabble on the "fighting" Pale Hose.

If they got that close in Sportsman's Park visiting clubhouse at St. Louis yesterday, somebody would have got clouted—but good.

As it was, blistering words shouted between the two after the second-place Sox swept a pair of shaky wins from the Browns precipitated these rumors:

1. That Onslow fined Tipton $500 for "tipping pitches" to the Browns, who scored a total of 11 runs in both ninth innings of their 7-6 and 14-11 losses to the Sox.

2. That Tipton became so enraged during the club-house rhubarb that he charged Onslow with battle at heart and team-mates had to separate the two.

And 3. That Tipton threatened to quit the team if matters weren't straightened out and the fine lifted.

'Joe has apologized to me, there is no fine and Tipton will catch against Washington tomorrow," recited Onslow. "Joe has the makings of the best catcher in the American League."

Even Cards Go To Bat for Leo

Philadelphia, May 2 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals have gone to bat for Leo Durocher, the suspended manager of the New York Giants.

The Cardinal players asked Eddie Dyer, their manager, to write Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler a plea of leniency for Durocher, who is scheduled to go on the carpet before Chandler tomorrow for allegedly striking a fan. The action was taken at a clubhouse meeting before the Cardinal game in Chicago yesterday.

Telegrams, Letters Ask Chandler to Be Lenient

By Gayle Talbot

Cincinnati, May 2 (AP).—Leo Durocher, who suddenly has come up with a lot of friends he hadn't even suspected were on his side, probably will gain a quick exoneration when he faces Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler here tomorrow.

Chandler wouldn't say so.

He still was intent tonight on going through the motions of a hearing and said he was "of an open mind." But the letters and telegrams pleading leniency for the manager of the New York Giants were piled high on his desk, and he had read them.

"I hope I can give you a quick decision, as soon as the hearing is over," said the man who holds Durocher's fate in his hands—again.

Other than that, Chandler declined to be quoted on the case. Yet it seemed fairly evident from his untroubled countenance that he isn't as peeved at Leo this time as he was, say, two springs ago.

World-Telegram Says Leo Will Go Free

New York, May 2 (U.P.).—The New York World-Telegram, in a story which it based on reliable sources, said it had learned that Chandler will take no punitive action against Durocher, but will fine the Giant management for not having Boysen ejected from the park for heckling Durocher with "vile language" and profanity during the game.

Boysen Not Represented

So far as he knows, the Commissioner said, the only ones who will appear at his office at 10:30 (EST), tomorrow morning are Durocher and Giants officials, including President Horace Stoneham, who arrived tonight from New York.

Fred Boysen, the Brooklyn fan who claimed Durocher assaulted him after a game at the Polo Grounds last Thursday, is not to be represented. It will be, presumably, a simple case of Chandler asking, "Did you do it?" and Durocher saying, "No, sire, I didn't."

After that it will be up to Leo and Stoneham to convince the Commissioner, orally and by affidavits of fans, that it was all a mistake.

Whatever happens tomorrow, however, Durocher still must face a charge of simple assault filed against him in New York City today by Benjamin H. Chasin, attorney for Boysen. The summons is returnable in upper Manhattan court next Monday.

Chasin, after applying for the summons, told newsmen that "I hope Durocher is reinstated. I wouldn't want Leo barred for life."

WOIC to Carry Derby Movies On TV Sunday

Washington's racing fans will be able to view the three parts of turfdom's "triple crown" over television. Station WOIC, although the Kentucky Derby will reach them one day after it takes place.

Because no cable connections have been established as far South as Kentucky, Saturday's "Run For The Roses" will be filmed and then shown Sunday, May 8, for Washington's television audience. Commentary for the 15-minute program at 10:30 p. m., will be handled by Bryan Field.

Live telecasts of both the Preakness May 14 and the Belmont Stakes June 11 will come over Station WOIC. Field will call the races and color will be provided by Red Smith, columnist for the New York Herald Tribune.

Oregon Inlet Beckons

Channel Bass Fishing Was Never Better

By Ralph Murdock

NUMBEROUS INQUIRIES have come in from local anglers regarding channel bass fishing at Oregon Inlet. If you are contemplating a trip in the near future, make immediate arrangements for accommodations and especially fishing boats.

The spring run of large red drum will peter out during the latter part of this month, but this sport is now at its height. A total of 110 of these fish were caught in one day recently. There are less than 50 boats available at this area and later on some of these boats will be making the trip to the Gulf Stream for amberjack and marlin. A few channel bass have been caught by surf casters in the last few days and this type of fishing from the shore should improve.

Washington anglers have been unusually successful at the Inlet and two of the largest recorded catches were chalked up for the home talent. Seventeen of these red gamesters were gabbed in two days by J. C. Keane, William C. Roberts, John Wilson and John Hill of Washington, D. C.

The largest fish of the season, a channel bass, weighing 54 pounds, was captured by William Simpson of Silver Springs. He was fishing with a party of Arlington, Va., and Silver Springs, Md., anglers when he hooked the big one. This combination caught a total of 29 channel bass, weighing a half ton, in two days.

A STORM OF PROTEST against haul seiners who caught large quantity of channel bass last year was lodged by out-of-State fishing columnists. This game fish was sold as low as a dollar each, regardless of size. A cannery at Wanchese on Roanoke Island, which processed these fish in 1948, has not reopened at this writing. We sincerely trust that the commercial fisherman will lay off these hard-hitting gamesters.

A similar proposition exists in our own area regarding haul seiners who catch oversize rock fish. Last year "Murder, Inc.," was reenacted when tons of large striped bass in the lower Potomac River were hustled to fish markets on the eastern coast. This influex of rock fish dropped the market price 26 cents per pound. Just imagine how much better rock fishing could have been this year if the large ones were released.

THE CRABBING season was officially opened in Maryland on Sunday, May 1. You can now safely bring out your carbbing net and crab to your heart's content. The crabs are not particularly large but they are heavy, due to the mild winter.

"HOOK 'EM" Howard of Baltimore, Md., recently caught 28 hardheads. Two other fishermen caught the same total.

Largest catch of hardheads on Sunday was eight by Charles Renner, his wife, daughter, son, and sister-in-law, who left the wharf Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. and returned five hours later. Mrs. Renner, a very ardent fisherwoman, won a tournament at Key West in 1947 by landing an African Pompano that scaled 22½ pounds. She received two cups for her effort.

Bloodworms and shrimp are being used for bait on hardheads. All the fish caught selected shrimp as their choice.

JOHN C. HARRIS, Melton Clark and Jerry Jones of Washington, D. C., a trio of dyed-in-the-wool fishermen who fish ten months out of the year, spent most of a day trying to locate a boat. It was a toss-up which was the hardest to get—a boat or a fish. It ended in a photo finish. The three musketeers finally procured a boat from Capt. Bill Stine on the Wicomico River at Tompkinsville, Md. They each caught one croaker and, Jerry said, "It beats a shutout."

While the croakers were doing a hiding act the shad fishermen did a little better. Stewart E. Jones and Mel Payne, at the National Geographic Society and Stanley Payne of PEPCO captured seven shad on the upper Ptuxent.

C. E. Grim caught twenty crappies near Pig Point on the Patuxent. While cleaning these fish he discovered worms embodied in the flesh. We suggest that you give this species a thorough inspection before you drop him into the frying pan.

4 patch-pockets for Spring—Sportswear time

Classic FLANNEL prominent in sporting circles . . . FIRST on the racks at the YMS

AND we know that our new all-wool flannel Sportcoats won't be on that rack much longer! Why? Because GOOD flannel is a fabric smart men appreciate. And, those same smart men know that Spring gives them a chance to dress more casually. They know that 4 patch-pocket styling puts them in the fashion-first class. That the YMS has been first in fashions since 1911! THAT is the reason our flannel sportcoat rack will be empty soon.

AT HAVRE DE GRACE

Dear Folks:

Lord Grillo didn't hang around long after winning last Saturday's handicap. He was shipped back to New York to rejoin the other Gustave Ring horses. With Garden State opening, this track will have tough sledding for the next two days being hemmed in between Jersey and Charles town. Former Jockey Eddie Smith will be an outrider at the 60-day Detroit meeting, which, incidentally, opens on Friday, the 13th of May. Joe Lynch, former Gonzaga and Mount St. Mary's star athlete, is general manager of the Michigan track. Richard Hutchison, jr., president and general manager of the Laurel Raceway, is already singing the praises of Richard Hutchison 3d, born last Thursday. Jockey Steve Brooks, who rode Coaltown to victory at New York, will ride out this meeting and then transfer to Pimlico for the eight days at that point. Jimmy Jones, Calumet trainer, was back from Jamaica but declined to comment on the 136-pound assignment for Coaltown in the Dixie. BILL.

1. Jimmie, Quick News, Busy Moments.

2. Patty Rock, High Note, Abhey.

3. Honeybug, Tacaro Milkman, Layaway.

4. Pirate Gold, Chalvaal, Bullfield.

5. Crackerjack, Pango Pango, Bay Orders.

6. Lands End, Tampero, Sagittarius.

7. Anna Hannigan, Helen Dear, Sandy Trail.

8. Markability, Brother Willie, Best Bib.

Best bet—Lands end.

$11 Shot Turns Back Binky B.

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Havre de Grace, Md., May 2.—Love Sonnet, making a comeback here after a year away from the races, made her third 1949 try a successful one today.

Performing in the colors of C. S. Popovitz and under the riding of Jockey Steve Brooks, the 6-year-old son of Hard Tack and Dark Love forged to the wire 3½ lengths in front of the closest opposition in a scrimpy field of five competing in the Perryville Purse.

W. Y. Goldborough's Binky B. was second and 2 lengths in advance of Miss Margie Fisher's Shivaree. Out of the money were the well-backed Christiana Stables' Service Pilot and Mrs. H. K. Hickey's Ocean Front.

Love Sonnet, twice third here before today's victory, returned an $11 mutuel to his backers in a crowd of 7207. The race was run over a fast track but through a light drizzle. The winner was clocked in 1:46 for the mile and a sixteenth.

Apprentice Harry (Long Shot) McGuigon had a hand in another sizeable $106.90 daily double payoff. The moon-faced kid booted G. P. Strickland's Head Stream home in the first race at a $14.80 mutuel. In the second race there was a blanket finish involving five horses and the camera gave the nod to Stanley Greenfield's Big T. O. at $7.60. The winning combination was 1 and 2.

Owner S. C. Mikell wasn't long in showing a profit on Going Airy. A 5-year-old mare he claimed from E. K. Bryson for $7500 last week. He put Steven Brooks on her back and she won the seventh race.

Novelist Mann Speaks on Goethe

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The matter of who is "the greatest living novelist" does not—perhaps fortunately—lend itself to proof. But doubtless the accolade has been handed most frequently to the intensive-voiced, free-gesturing man who spoke last night at the Library of Congress.

Thomas Mann spoke on another great German with whom he has more than once been compared. Some 526 persons lucky enough to have tickets saw as well as heard his lecture on "Goethe and Democracy," opening the library's part in the world-wide celebration of the bicentennial of Goethe's birth.

Besides the audience which filled every seat of the Coolidge auditorium, another 150 persons heard Mann in adjoining Whittall Pavilion. Here again every seat was taken.

So that they might at least see him briefly, Mann went from Coolidge to the Pavilion after his main lecture and said a few words to the people there.

The 74-year-old author of "The Magic Mountain" and "Joseph and His Brothers" is possessed of an astounding vigor in his speaking.

Of Goethe he said many things, one of which was:

"His life may well appear as an uphill sword-dance(full of love of the facile, of the just-barely-possible which was genius to boot, and it may be that genius is always the just-barely possible."

And in another pasage:

"He is endowed with a grandiose good will from which our era could learn much for its betterment and salvation—an era so filled with ill will, an era in which so much stubborn recalcitrance against the demands of life brew and broods."

Can Opener Saves Wife In Iron Lung

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—Mrs. Shirley Palmer is alive today because her husband, Bob, is a deft hand with a beer-can opener.

Mrs. Palmer, 27, a pretty strawberry blonde, lay in a portable "iron lung" in a Pullman bedroom here and smiled as her 31-year-old husband told the story.

Mrs. Palmer was stricken with polio eight months ago. She is en route from Los Angeles to Ithaca, N. Y., for treatment.

Yesterday, as the train sped eastward from Laramie, Wyo., the armature of the electric motor which operated the "iron lung" air pump began to smoke. The attending nurse switched the lung from the train's power circuit to that of a two-hour battery supply.

The conductor wired ahead to Cheyenne, where several electricians boarded the train. Then Palmer began what was to be more than 10 hours of working the pump by hand.

He disconnected the motor arm which operates the bellows, slipped a handle over a steel pivot pin and, worked the pump up and down. The nurse counted "one-two-three-four, one-two-three-four" to guide his timing.

"The electricians found that the armature was burned out," Palmer said. "They wired ahead to North Platte, Nebr., for a new unit. Meanwhile I pumped until the handle bent.

"Then, I began to wonder what I was going to use. But I had the can opener handy, and it had a little hole through the end of it which slipped over the pin nicely. So, I used it as a handle."

Court Upholds Conviction of Grid Bribers

The Supreme Court yesterday split 4-4 in the New York wire tapping case and as a result two men convicted in the 1946 professional football scandal must serve jail terms.

A more important result of the tie vote—except to the men going to jail—was the court's failure to clarify the legality of wire tapping and the use in court of the tapped conversations. With Justice Robert H. Jackson not participating, all the evenly split court could do was to uphold the State court's conviction of the two men.

The two men involved in the New York case were Harvey Stemmer and David Krakower. They were sentenced to from 5 to 10 years in prison. They were found guilty of attempting to bribe Frankie Filchock and Merle Hapes of the New York Giants to throw a playoff to the Chicago Bears in December, 1947. Filchok and Hapes subsequently were suspended from the National Football League.

However, that they had accepted the proffered bribes.

The appeal to the Supreme Court was on the ground that the trial court had permitted introduction as evidence conversations taken down by wire tapping. This, the lawyers said, was illegal.

These prices feature "Extras" that aren't!

If you're price-conscious these days as you shop for new cars, you've probably made a big discovery.

It's important to find out what the price includes — particularly in the normal "spread" between list and delivered prices.

Take these Buick prices given here. All of them, as the panel tells you, cover such universally wanted accessories as radio and antenna, heater and defroster, windshield washers and built-in back-up lights.

These are individually itemized on your bill of sale. Not itemized, but still included in your Buick when you get it, are many things that classify as extra-cost items on many other cars.

For instance, Foamtex seat cushions are an extra value on Buick SUPERS and ROADMASTERS that cost you nothing extra. You get direction signals, rear wheel shields, a flexible steering wheel, an air cleaner, an oil filter, a clock — all included in the basic list price. On all ROADMASTERS, these prices even cover Dynaflow Drive as standard equipment, not an extra-cost item.

Included also, of course, are such Buick extra values as Fireball power, which you get nowhere else — all-coil springing, almost an exclusive — the widest rims in the industry — and that very special and desirable solid Buick feel.

So — check the "extras" when you price today's cars. Check the "deal" too, and make sure it's as fair and aboveboard as the Buick sales policy.

We're pretty sure what your conclusion will be when you see what stepped-up production is doing to deliveries. You'll decide "Buick's the buy!" — and get your order in.

Chamber Advised To Aid Legislators

By Chairman

Virginia DP Program Is Criticized

Richmond, Va., May 2 (AP).—Virginia's program to coordinate the efforts of volunteer agencies in resettling displaced persons seems to its chairman to be a bit displaced itself.

State Agriculture Commissioner L. M. Walker, jr., said today that since it was set up in March the committee hasn't succeeded in bringing over a single family. Meanwhile, volunteer groups have settled about 70 families in the State.

Walker said the main drawback seems to be the four to five-month delay between the request for a family and its arrival in Virginia.

"We have requested and sent assurance forms for 25 families to the DP Commission in Washington, but have been informed that it will take from four to five months for the DPs to be cleared through to us," he said.

"By that time," he went on, "the frosts will be upon us and the need for these people on the farms will be much less."

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

House Majority Leader John W. McCormack (D., Mass.) yesterday urged the United States Chamber of Commerce to aid the Government in drawing up its legislative program "instead of responding to fears and adopting a position of opposition."

If it would do so, McCormack added, it could "exert great influence on world and domestic affairs."

"Blind opposition," he said, "instead of one of constructive support or constructive criticism, results in a loss of confidence and influence in the minds of the people generally."

McCormack was the first speaker at the Pre-convention luncheon of the Chamber. Appearing opposite him was Hobart C. Brady, Wichita, Kans., real estate man. Brady declared that business and profesisonal groups risk being written off in Washington as "politically expendable minorities."

Cooperation Urged

A "substantial part" of President Truman's program will become law before the present session adjourns, McCormack said. He added that critics dho call the program "socialistic" should remember that when President Roosevelt recommended Social Security legislation "there were those who loudly called it socialism."

"Such legislation," he said, "is now accepted by nearly everyone."

"I know of no political party," McCormack shouted, "that wants to destroy or impair business, but I do know there is a general recognition of the wisdom of marshalling and using our natural resources in the public interest.

"It seems to me that certain private interests would exercise common sense as well as good business judgment if instead of following the policy of blind opposition and engaging in other questionable actions, they would cooperate."

Changing Interests Seen

Brady told the group that the Nation "is today confronted with a geographically representative Congress struggling with the legislative needs of an occupationally divided society."

"Our Senators and Representatives are seldom called upon by delegations pleading the interest of the State of Kansas or the State of Washington," he said. Instead, they are "surrounded by delegations pleading the legislative interests of the miners, the farmers, the bankers, the school teachers, the doctors or the realtors."

The disappearance of the "horizontal geographic divisions of interest of the Republic of 1787 explains the growth of the pressure group lobbies," he declared.

Last night 33 separate dinners by State Chamber of Commerce organizations were held, with members of Congress as guests. The annual convention proper will begin this morning at the Statler.

Church Loses Suit Against Will Executor

A suit brought by Falls Church (Episcopal) in Falls Church, Va., to recover funds for which it said Buford M. Bridwell, real estate broker, had improperly accounted has been decided in favor of Bridwell.

The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals ended the litigation last week by refusing to hear the appeal brought by Church Treasurer Lawrence W. Harrison, in whose name the suit was filed.

The suit was started three years ago, arising from the handling of a bequest left the church in 1945 by the late Mrs. Eleanor Campbell Russell. Bridwell was named as trustee and executor of her estate.

The church claimed Bridwell made an improper accounting of the funds in the estate, and specifically asked the Fairfax County Circuit Court to disallow $2300 listed by Bridwell as commissions and attorneys' fees.

Bridwell countered with a $100,000 libel suit against the church, which was thrown out of court.

Visiting judges at Fairfax twice ruled in Bridwell's favor before the case was appealed to the higher court. The church received about $20,000, Bridwell said yesterday.

Fight Refund

20 Unions Back Lines In Rail Suit

Twenty railroad labor unions yesterday intervened on the railroads' side in the Government's suit to force the lines to refund huge alleged overcharges for hauling Government war materials.

The unions, with more than a million members, acted through the Railway Labor Executives' Association. The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers already has filed a similar petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The case is due for trial before the ICC in June. The Justice Department will seek to show the Government was overcharged by more than one million dollars. Some estimates of the claim run to three million dollars.

In yesterday's action, the unions said, if the Government wins the case there may result "a substantial reduction in forces, the curtailment of services and a general retrenchment in all branches of railroad services."

The unions also claimed the repayment would prevent railroad rehabilitation programs "essential to national defense" and "imperative in the event of another national emergency."

ABC Sets Hotel Liquor Hearings

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has scheduled hearings for two downtown Washington hotels charged with selling alcoholic beverages to nonregistered guests.

Named at the Hotel Statler, on which a hearing will be held Thursday at 10 a. m., and the Hamilton Hotel, on which a hearing will be held at 10 a. m. May 9.

Under the ABC Act, a hotel may not sell drinks to nonregistered patrons on credit. It may, however, extend credit to guests.

Truman Sees Rehabilitation Work of VA

NYHT News Service

A New York physician, paralyzed from the waist by a German sniper's bullet during the Battle of the Bulge, yesterday conducted President Truman through an exhibit of the work being done by the Veterans' Administration to restore veterans like himself to health.

The wounded veteran, Dr. Arthur S. Abramson of White Plains, is assistant chief of the Physical Medicine Rehabilitation Service at the Veterans' Administration Hospital in the Bronx. He has been paralyzed ever since the Battle of the Bulge, to which he was rushed as an Army medical officer from the Ninety-ninth General Hospital at Rheims, France, where he was chief of orthopedic surgery.

The exhibit is in the concourse of Union Station here. The President passed a half-hour looking through it in the company of Carl R. Gray, jr., administrator of Veterans' Affairs, and Dr. Paul R. Magnuson, chief medical director.

The exhibit will be opened to the public at 10 a. m. today.

The display, which covers 1800 square feet, includes photographic stories of the treatment and rehabilitation of various types of cases.

A VA hospital doctor, a paraplegic veteran and a hospital staff member will be at the exhibit to describe the work in the paraplegic field from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily.

John Liebert to Speak

John G. Liebert, lay director of the American office for the rehabilitation of the Catholic Church in Japan, will speak at the weekly meeting of the Study Guild Catholic Library, at 8:30 p. m. today in the library, 1726 Rhode Island ave. nw.

Last Two of 7 Get Chair for Virginia Rape

Martinsville, Va., May 2 (AP).—The last two of seven Negro men accused of raping a white woman were found guilty here tonight and their punishment fixed at death in the electric chair.

A Martinsville Circuit Court jury deliberated an hour and 32 minutes before returning its verdict against James Luther Hairston, 19, and Clabon Taylor, 20.

Hairston and Taylor were tried together at a court session which began this morning. Separate juries already had found five previous defendants guilty and had recommended the death penalty in each case. All of the seven Negroes pleaded innocent.

They were charged with attacking Mrs. Ruby Stroud Floyd, 32-year-old wife of a Martinsville merchant, last January 8 as she walked after dark along a railroad track.

Those convicted previously, after trials which lasted one day for each defendant, were Joe Henry Hampton, 20; Frank Hairston, jr., 19; Booker T. Millner, 20; Howard Lee Hairston, 19; and Francis Desales Grayson, 37.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Full Annuity at 55 Is Approved by Senate Subcommittee

The bill that would allow Federal workers the option of retiring on a full annuity at 55 after 30 years of service appeared to have cleared its first hurdle yesterday.

A subcommittee of the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee indicated its approval of the bill after hearing a score of employe leaders indorse the measure. The Administration opposes the bill. Its views were presented by Warren B. Irons, chief of the retirement division.

All witnesses agreed that only a small number of employes would take up the option to retire. Employes may retire now at 55 if they have 30 or more years of service but their annuities must be discounted 3 per cent for each year they are under 60.

Irons explained that only 1100 employes—or about 5 per cent of those eligible—took advantage of the 55-year retirement. He also brought out that the death rate was abnormally high among those 55-year-old employes who did retire—indicating that most of them were sick when they retired. Irons said the cost of the bill would be only $2,200,000 a year if no more than 1100 people retired under it.

The second and most costly feature of the bill sponsored by Chairman Johnston (D., S.C.) would permit married men on retirement to (1) draw full pensions, and (2) sign over survivorship annuities to their wives at no cost or penalties to the employes. The pension of an employe who now retires is reduced by 10 per cent if he elects to assign his wife survivor benefits.

Irons estimated its cost at $25,700,000 a year and he said the Civil Service Commission opposed it for that reason. He estimated 9700 married men would retire from Government this year. Irons estimated that half of the men who retire take discounted pensions in order to give protection to their wives. But he explained that the person whose pension was under $1600 a year, rarely provided for his wife since he needed every cent he could get to live on.

HOUSE ACTION: The House yesterday approved these three Civil Service bills: (1) To allow employes time off to attend services of veterans whose remains are brought back to this country for burial; (2) to authorize the creation of a research and development division in the Post Office Department, and (3) to make retroactive to July 1, 1947, the law which allows laid-off employes to retire at 55 after 25 years of service.

COMMERCE: Career employes with as much as 28 years of service are included in the latest layoff of Commerce employes. Before June 30, more than 175 Commerce employes will be fired, mainly in Export Control and Voluntary Agreements. Most of the career people who were given notices will appeal to Civil Service—and that's exactly what they should do.

NEEDY: Compensation checks have been delayed for the 9000 employes who were injured on the job and the families of Government workers who were killed in line of duty. Funds for these needy people are tied up in the deadlocked first deficiency bill. When will Congress approve the bill—your guess is as good as any.

LESINSKI BILL: Hearings were concluded on it yesterday. However, the Kelley subcommittee of the House Labor Committee won't meet again on it until late next week.

The measure, which would provide more adequate benefits to disabled employes, is certain to get approval of the subcommittee. The one big question is—to what extent should it be made retroactive.

The subcommittee yesterday was presented with concrete evidence in support of a retroactive feature in the bill. Among those who testified were Edward T. Rogers and Jules B. Counts, Army civilian scientists who each lost both arms and suffered other severe injuries in laboratory explosions. The scientists urged the subcommittee to make the bill effective at a date which would not only benefit them but other Federal workers who have been disabled on their jobs.

Both Rogers and Counts have returned to their laboratories—Rogers at Edgewood Arsenal and Counts at Aberdeen Proving Grounds—because they were unable to live on the maximum compensation of $116 a month. Yet they are both considered totally disabled.

Montgomery Council Opens, Gets Two Bills

Legislative Session, Its First in History, Passes One Resolution

A new milestone in Maryland legislative history was passed yesterday when the Montgomery County council held its first law-making session.

Under the charter adopted by county voters last November, wide legislative powers are transferred from the Maryland General Assembly to the county government.

Montgomery is the first of the 23 Maryland counties to enjoy the increased "home rule" powers authorized by the state constitution. In the new charter, May is set aside each year in Montgomery for the enactment of local law.

One resolution was adopted and two bills introduced at the 27-minute session held in Rockville. A score of well-wishers, observers, and leaders of the charter movement in the county attended.

The resolution, introduced by Council President Frederic P. Lee, set forth the legislative rules of procedure.

The two bills would set up special fire taxing areas in Sandy Spring and Burtonsville. Both call for a tax not to exceed 10 cents per assessed $100 valuation.

Sponsors of the two measures were Councilmen P. Garland Ligon and J. Douglas Bradshaw, respectively.

The second legislative meeting will be held today at 2 p. m., also in Rockville. President Lee said more bills would probably be introduced. A regular council meeting will follow immediately, he said.

Under the legislative rule, copies of every bill must be posted on a bulletin board in the courthouse. Final action may not be taken for 10 days unless five members agree to suspend the rules. Bills setting up taxation or new county departments must wait 15 days before final passage, with the same provision.

No proposed law can be considered unless it is sponsored in the form of a bill by one of the seven council members.

Future legislative sessions are set for May 10, 17, 24, 30 and 31. Special meetings may be called if the need arises.

Mortimer Named Head Of Graphics Group

Frank H. Mortimer, director of typography and design for the Government Printing Office, last night was elected president of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Graphic Arts.

Others elected at the meeting held in the refectory dining room of the Government Printing Office were Aaron Metchik, vice president; Willard E. Brown, secretary, and Miss Jessica Barr, treasurer.

A photograph, a brawl in a Georgetown restaurant and quick police work Sunday night resulted in charges against two Fort Myer soldiers yesterday of robbing a Southeast restaurateur.

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson held the men, Pvts. Herbert H. Simmons, 20, and Edward L. Jones, 21, for grand jury action and set bond at $1500 each.

Judge Neilson dismissed charges against three other Fort Myer soldiers who, with Simmons and Jones, were arrested about 10:30 p. m. Sunday after police received a call for a fight at Pete's Restaurant, 3236 M st. nw.

The call had come almost at the same time as a police lookout for five soldiers, wanted for robbing Benny Saslaw, manager of the Penguin Restaurant, 1218 11th st. se., of $160 about 10 p. m.

Saslaw had reported to police that the quintet, angered because of a delay in printing a photograph taken of them in the restaurant, had attacked him with a knife and chased him as he fled from the restaurant. About a block away he was struck on the head with an unknown object and the money taken from his pocket, police said.

Seventh Precinct police, recognizing the five soldiers from the police lookout's description, immediately called Fifth Precinct police, who booked the men on robbery charges.

The photograph, developed later, showed that the five soldiers had been at the Penguin.

Ice Cream Store Held Up Again by Bandit's 'Twin'

A bandit resembling the man who held up the High Ice Cream Store, at 1310 11th st. nw. about a month ago yesterday robbed the till again of about $10.

The same clerk, Hattie Simms, was on duty when the man entered. She told police he held his hand in his coat pocket in a threatening manner and demanded the contents of the cash drawer.

He was described as a slender, medium-brown-skinned Negro, 25 years old, 5 feet 8 inches tall and wearing a blue suit coat.

In other holdups, Peter Holt, of 1635 Marion st. nw., told police he was robbed at gun point of $20 while at 4th and Bryant sts. nw, about 12:40 a. m. The thief, who wore dark glasses, escaped through Shad Row, police were told.

Howard Wildy, 63, of 806 New Hampshire ave. nw., told police he was robbed of $85 by two men after a young woman lured him into an alley near 10th and M sts. nw. about 1 a. m.

Store's Safe Opened By Key, $574 Taken

A safe in the Mayflower Marine Service, Inc., 1300 Maine ave. sw., was opened with a duplicate key and $574 in cash stolen sometime over the weekend, police reported yesterday.

Thieves, however, were stymied in an attempt to knock off the dial of a safe in the National Hotel Supply Co., 412 12th st. sw., when the punch they were using jammed in the lock, police said. Joseph E. Burrows, an official of the company, did not disclose what the safe contained.

A housebreaking was reported by J. Sidney Wolf, owner of the Dorchester Drugstore, 2480 16th st. nw., who said merchandise valued at $765, was stolen sometime over the weekend, after thieves entered the store by forcing a rear door.

But Penalizes Illegal Murders

House Passes Bill Approving Legal Killing of Starlings

Washington's cold war against starlings warmed up several degrees yesterday.

The House passed a bill to kill them.

Rep. John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) had served notice he was against the bill. He voiced belief they eat the grubs of Japanese beetles.

But he did not contest the bill when it came to a vote. The measure passed by a voice vote and now goes to the Senate.

Japanese beetle experts in the Agriculture Department conceded that Rep. Rankin was on sound entomological grounds in saying that starlings eat Japanese beetle grubs. But they questioned his point on the practical ground that the starlings apparently don't eat enough.

The antistarling bill is two-edged. It makes it legal to kill starlings in the District, but makes it inadvisable to do so illegally.

The bill adds the starling to the English sparrow as a legal target for death. But it adds that a permit must be obtained from a District official designated by the Commissioners—the practice is for the official to be the Superintendent of Police. For killing starlings without a permit, the bill sets a penalty of $5 fine, or 30 days in the workhouse, or both.

In urging passage of the bill, the House District Committee sounded this note of deadly thing to come: "No definite method of eliminating the starling nuisance has yet been determined as the most practical, although experiments along this line have been and are being carried on."

Capt. Crocker to Speak

Capt. Tom Crocker, once a victim of drink and drugs, and now the Salvation Army's alcoholic rehabilitation expert, will speak at the Washington Civitan luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today at the Salvation Army Center, 1st and F sts. nw. He will discuss the Salvation Army's plan in alcoholic rehabilitation.

Two Men Held At Inquests In Car Deaths

Coroner's Jury Acts In Trolley Operator And Student Cases

A Howard University student and and a Capital Transit streetcar operator were held for further court action by a coroner's jury yesterday in two separate traffic deaths.

Abernathy

The Howard University student, James R. Abernathy, 24, was held for grand jury action under the Negligent Homicide Act in the death Friday evening of Raymond H. Tyree, 54, 1500 Crittenden st. ne., after an automobile collision at 12th and W sts. nw.

Abernathy, an Air Force veteran whose home is in Dallas, Tex., lives at 1126 Park rd. nw.

He was arrested Friday night at 5219 E. Capitol st. and charged by police with manslaughter, leaving the scene of an accident, failure to have a District driver's permit, unreasonable speed, and failure to yield the right of way.

Abernathy, who was driving the car of a friend, Leonard Bass, 307 Kentucky ave. se., took the stand in his own behalf.

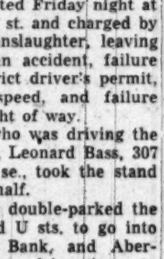
He said Bass double-parked the car at 11th and U sts. to go into the Industrial Bank, and Abernathy, decided to drive the auto around the block when he saw a policeman handing out a ticket nearby.

The accident occurred, according to Abernathy, because his vision was blocked by a line of parked cars at his right, as he approached the 12th and W st. intersection.

He said he left the scene to inform Bass of the accident, then took a cab to the E. Capitol st. address to make a phone call about the accident to his attorney and a friend who promised to accompany him to a police station.

A witness, Leonard C. Van Wagenen, 2804 14th st. nw., testified Tyree was traveling 15 to 20 m.p.h. and estimated Abernathy's speed at 30 to 35 m.p.h.

In the second case yesterday, the coroner's jury held George W. Moore, 23-year-old streetcar motorman, for Municipal Court action, after ruling him responsible for the death of autoist John J. Salamy, 18, in a collision at New Jersey ave. and K sts. nw. on April 25.



Moore

The youth, who lived at 4210 East-West Highway, Bethesda, Md., died Sunday at Casualty Hospital of a fractured skull.

Police Pvt. Leonard D. Jackson, Accident Investigation Unit, testified the streetcar stopped 163 feet from the point of impact, and that no sand—automatically released when the streetcar's emergency brakes are applied—was found on the tracks.

Jackson also said he found no skid marks in the auto's path to indicate Salamy had applied his brakes.

Langdon Program Friday

A roundup program for children who will attend Langdon School, 20th and Evart sts. ne., for the first time in September will be held Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. at the school. Physical examinations will be given to the children who should bring along their birth and vaccination certificates.

Pennsy Tries Cooking by Radar Now

Twentieth-century science has come to one of the Washington-New York trains—and at least a few of the regular riders hope it's not here to stay.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is experimenting with a radar cooking range in the hope that the magic of radar cooking will solve the problems of getting hot sandwiches to coach passengers.

The range got its first test aboard the Constitution. For this test, the radar range rode almost dead center in a spick and span car, equipped with modernistic seats, a steward, waiters and a pushbutton chef.

It supplanted the old grill car, equipped with a horseshoe bar, some wax fruit under glass, a charcoal-burning stove, and one perspiring but friendly captain of the range.

The horseshoe bar was rimmed daily by those regulars whose nightly ride to their Baltimore homes were relieved by sluicing down a hamburger and onion with a cold can of beer or hot cup of coffee.

The regulars knew, without looking, just when the wheels clicked across the narrow bridge over the Anacostia, out of the District and into wet Maryland (drinks aren't served on trains in the District).

During the radar range's trial aboard the Constitution, the commuters found their friendly captain manning a spic-and-span contrivance.

By bombarding food with radar, the range transforms chocolate paste into devil's food cake in 20 seconds; raw meat into hamburgers in 15 seconds, and creates a blue-plate dinner without raising the captain's temperature one degree.

It is hoped, of course, that radar's rapid-fire cooking will make it possible to provide travelers with hot sustenance for the long, flat ride to New York.

The commuters who aren't going that far aren't sure that they'll trade wizardry for warmth.

Juvenile Bar Limit Draws Objections

The Advisory Committee of the Juvenile Court yesterday objected to a provision in a Bar Association bill restricting candidates for the proposed new Juvenile Court judgeship to members of the District Bar.

Otherwise, the committee approved the proposal to set up a second judgeship, it was announced by the vice chairman, Dr. A. Barklie Coulter.

The proposal is due to come before the full District Committee today.

Would Fill Bentley Vacancy

A second bill to accomplish the same purpose was prepared by the Justice Department. This bill left out the District bar qualifications.

Reason for the bills is the absence of Judge Fay Bentley, a self-committed patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Dr. Coulter said his advisory committee feels that candidates for the new post "should not be limited to members of the local bar" because "it may well be that a worthy candidate may be found who would have not only desirable but outstanding qualifications but who happens not to be a member of the D. C. bar."

Experience Stressed

He said "it is definitely our opinion that the candidate for the appointment should be one who is thoroughly versed in Juvenile Court procedure for the person finally chosen will begin to function in the capacity of judge immediately following selection."

Dr. Coulter pointed out that organization and administration procedures in the court do not permit "gradual indoctrination" of the new judge as is the case in municipal and certain other courts.

Un-American Group Selects Chief Counsel

Frank S. Tavenner, jr., a Woodstock, Va., attorney who helped prosecute Japan's war criminals, yesterday was picked as chief counsel for the House Committee Investigating Un-American Activities.

His appointment will be announced after Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif), a ranking GOP committee member, is notified of the selection. Nixon was out of town early yesterday.

Tavenner was chief assistant prosecutor at the Tokyo war crimes trials. He recently has been in private practice at Woodstock.

Authorizes Child Care Continuance For Another Year On Reduced Scale

The House voted yesterday to continue Washington's child day care centers for another year on a reduced scale.

It approved by a voice vote and sent to the Senate a bill to extend the day care center program from June 30 this year to June 30, 1950, but it cut the authority for District spending on the program from $150,000 to $50,000. To the $50,000 in city money would be added amounts paid by parents in fees.

With House approval of the bill, Senator Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.) called an open hearing for 10:30 a. m. Thursday to consider both the House plan and her own bill to extend the program at its present scale, and to make it a permanent one.

The program now provides care for about 270 children in six centers. Parents pay a part of the expense in fees, but these are turned in to general city revenues, and are not added to the $150,000 appropriation. The new bill, as cleared by the House, earmarks the parent's fees for partial support of the program.

The House also approved, during a seven-minute District day program, bills to:

1. Require written notice by a depositor to his bank to stop payment on any check he has drawn.

2. Liberalize the present law on the amounts held out by the District in building contract payments as a performance guarantee. The law now makes the District hold back 10 per cent, generally, on contract payments. The bill would authorize the District Commissioners, once a building project was 50 per cent or more finished, to make further payments in full, or to hold back amounts less than 10 per cent.

The bills were approved by voice votes and now go to the Senate.

In another action, the House approved by unanimous consent a bill to pay June C. Dollar, of Hyattsville, Md., $10,000 in District funds for injuries he suffered in 1942 when he was shot by a Washington Metropolitan policeman.

Rep. Ribicoff Blocks Doctor-Citizen Bill

Representative Abraham A. Ribicoff (D., Conn.) yesterday blocked House action on a bill to make United States citizenship a requirement for obtaining a District license to practice medicine.

House District Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.) called the bill up for action, but withdrew it when Ribicoff announced he was going to make a point of no quorum.

Ribicoff had prepared an amendment to permit medical licenses to be issued here to persons lawfully admitted to the United States who had declared their intention to become citizens of this country. But he said later he now plans to seek defeat of the bill instead of trying to amend it.

Ribicoff cited the dearth of doctors in support of his amendment, and said other legislation is pending to admit 500 doctors and 500 nurses as displaced persons to help ease the shortage of trained people in their fields.

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.), author of the bill, said he would urge its passage without change. Miller, a doctor, said Washington has no shortage of doctors, but instead has 1 licensed physician to every 450 persons—nearly double the national average of 1 physician for 800 persons.

Present District law for licensing doctors has no citizenship requirement.

Sentenced in Assault

Joseph E. Saunders, 35, 1416 Taylor st. nw., was sentenced in Municipal Court yesterday to 90 days in jail for assaulting his 72-year-old father, Elbert Saunders.

It happened Sunday morning when the son allegedly pushed the father against a bookcase at their home.

The younger Saunders also was fined $50 for being drunk and was placed under $300 threats bond.

3 Students on Air

Three Maryland students who participated in the Maryland Boy Legislature April 21 to 23 in Annapolis will be interviewed by Maryland State Senator L. Harold Sothoron over WCFM at 7:45 p. m. today. The boys are David Perkins and William Turner, students at Greenbelt High School, and Edward Norris, students at Lincoln High School, Rockville.

Carried Brass Knuckles

Johnnies C. Oliver(27, who gave his address as 1114 20th st. nw., was convicted yesterday in Municipal Court of carrying brass knuckles. He told police that he planned to send the weapons to his brother in North Carolina to "fight bears." Sentencing was deferred in Municipal Court pending a probation report.

Second Degree Indictment in Wife Slaying

Clarence W. Robertson, 34, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of second-degree murder in the shooting of his estranged wife, Mrs. Lizzie Lucille Robertson, 24.

Robertson, who lives at 1123 11th st. nw., was charged with firing two shots from a .38-caliber pistol into his wife's body in an argument over another man, Everett L. Flagg, 26, a Marine stationed at Quantico, Va.

According to the indictment, Robertson pumped three bullets into Flagg, injuring him critically.

According to a spokesman for the United States Attorney, Robertson had been paying regular visits to his wife's apartment at 1125 11th st. nw., to see their two-year-old son. He came upon his wife late one night with three friends, including Flagg, and the shooting occurred.

Seven Holdups Charged

In another indictment, a 25-year-old man was charged with seven holdups netting him more than $750.

Indicted was John L. Green, 25, of 48 Pierce st. nw. His weapon, police said, was a toy pistol.

According to the grand jury, Green participated in the following holdups:

On January 14, Gwendolyn Tolson, 308 Warder st. nw., from whom $18 was taken on the street at Park rd. and Warder st. nw.

On January 31, Samson Naiman, from whom $250 was taken in a store at 1501 1st st. nw.

February 3, a holdup of the B & V Food Store, 1311 North Capitol st.; holdup of Hubert Brown, 2105 Mt. Vernon ave., Alexandria, Va., $47; holdup of Maggie Carter, 59 New York ave. ne., $20, and holdup of Florine Vincent, 220 21st st. ne.

On February 4, Toby Applebaum, from whom $150 was taken at a store at 1837 19th st. nw.

Frank P. Rocco, a 19-year-old soldier of Ellwood, Pa., was charged with forcing Col. Fred M. Dean, 1241 30th st. nw., to ride with him in the latter's car as a hostage. Rocco, who was arrested in the car in North Carolina later, was charged with gunpoint robbery of Dean to get the automobile.

Gov't Girls Get Paid From Bank Loan . . .

UNCLE SAM FAILED 'EM—Mrs. Lillian Marshall, 722 46th st. se., a clerk-typist with OHE, receives her check from Raymond Hardiman, chief of the Audit Section, OHE. Mrs. Katherine Weed (left), 1902 18th st. se., secretary to the General Counsel, OHE, notarizes necessary papers, while Donald W. Mowbray (behind Hardiman), assistant treasurer of the American Security and Trust and manager of their Southwest branch, looks on. OHE employes, payless because Congress is still arguing over the appropriations bill, borrowed $42,273 of a $108,000 unsecured bank fund. Others in picture are awaiting their checks

$42,273 Bank Loan Is Made To 167 Payless U. S. Workers

Some 167 Government employes and their families were busily and happily paying off personal loans, grocery bills, rent and other obligations yesterday, even though they haven't had their pay checks for a month.

They are the employes of the Office of the Housing Expediter, who up to last night had drawn $42,273 of an unsecured loan from the Security & Trust Co.

$108,000 Available

The bank had agreed to make available up to $108,000 the local OHE payroll total for four weeks, to 208 employes who were left payless because Congress is still arguing over the appropriations bill.

The confusion resulting in Temporary E from the payless paydays has quieted down now. Donald W. Mowbray, American Security southwest branch manager, through whom the loan was arranged, is a popular man for his financial "rescue."

Paying out the big bank money yesterday were two OHE officials, G. William Comfort, director of budget finance, and Raymond M. Hardiman, chief of the audit section.

Joint Account Set Up

A joint account had been set up by the bank in their names, and each check paid to a payless employe had to bear both their signatures. As the employes obtained their checks, they signed powers of attorney so Comfort and Hardiman can indorse the Government paychecks whenever they come through, and pay off the loan.

The loan is covered by notes signed by Charles P. Liff, attorney in the agency who thought up the plan, and John J. Madigan, deputy OHE administrator. New notes are made up as the money is paid out. Thus far, they have signed two for $35,400. The four percent interest charged by the bank is being covered by taking $1 per $100 out of the employes' "pay" checks, and adjustments will be made later.

Miss Dolph, Bannister Slide Figure, Dies

Dunmore, Pa., May 2 (U.P.).—Florence Dolph, 101, whose birthday anniversaries and national holidays the past 50 years were observed by a slide down a staircase bannister, died last night. She was in poor health for several weeks.

Miss Dolph, who took pride in the fact that her before-breakfast slide down a bannister at her home was "astride, and not side-saddle" would have observed her 102d birthday May 19.

She had planned her famous slide for that date. She took two slides last year. One was for fun and one for photographers. It was Miss Dolph's manner of proving her good health and agility.

Greenbelt to Give Aides Leave on State Holidays

The Greenbelt city council approved the granting of leaves on all Maryland state holidays to municipal employes at its meeting in the city manager's offices last night.

Previously municipal workers received the benefit only of Federal holidays.

The council also approved a carnival permit for the volunteer fire department, rescue squad and American Legion post for May 9 to 14 on the parking area in the center of town and recommended that the city manager instruct the director of public health to promote the inoculation of booster diptheria shots to children of the community.

Wife Sues Airline For $200,000 in Husband's Death

Mrs. Kathryn S. Power, 3432 Baker st. ne., filed suit here yesterday against Air France for $200,000 damages resulting from the death of her husband in an airplane crash.

Her husband, John S. Power, 31, died January 6, 1948, when a commercial airplane operated by Air France stalled and crashed in France, according to the suit filed in District Court. The plane's stall was attributed in the suit to negligence of the pilot.

Power was serving as a civilian economist with the American Military Government overseas.

Deaths Reported

The following deaths were reported yesterday by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the District Health Department:

Rites Slated Wednesday for Hugh Stevens

Funeral services will be held at 9 a. m. Wednesday at the Ft. Myer (Va.) Chapel for Hugh L. C. Stevens jr., 60, retired insurance executive, who died Friday in Montgomery, Ala. Interment will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Stevens was on his way from Florida to Washington, where he planned to establish a residence. His wife, who survives, was accompanying him. He was the father of Dr. Hugh Stevens, 3d, of 2800 Woodley rd. nw.

A native of New Jersey, Mr. Stevens served as a first lieutenant overseas with the Eighteenth Infantry Regiment, First Division, during the First World War.

He attended Columbia University and the Harvard School of Business Administration, receiving a law degree from Rutgers University. During most of his life he was associated with the Prudential Insurance Co.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Julia Stevens, and Dr. Stevens, he is survived by another son, Julian H. Stevens of Nashville, and a sister Mrs. George Patee of South Orange, N. J.

93 Motorists Get Tickets Fixed in Week

Traffic tickets were "fixed" for 93 motorists last week, police reported yesterday.

Tickets were cancelled for the following motorists because of diplomatic immunity, according to the list of adjustments: Felipe M. Alonso, Philippine Embassy, parked in alley; Alfonso E. Berg, Mexican Embassy, standing in a "no standing 7 to 9:30 a. m." zone; Richardo S. Boto, Argentine Embassy, parked more than 6 inches from the curb; Baltazar Coronel, Peruvian Embassy, parked in a "no parking anytime" zone.

Anita E. Montehermoso, Philippine Embassy, standing in a "no standing from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone and parked in a "no parking anytime" zone; Guillermo Perez, Argentine Embassy, parked more than 6 inches from the curb; Vacili G. Marchenko, Russian Embassy, parked less than 10 feet from a fire hydrant.

Folk Festival Starts Thursday

A three-day Folk Festival, complete with expert dance demonstrations and plenty of audience participation, is scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights of this week by the District Recreation Department.

Admission to the sessions, scheduled for 8:15 p. m. each night in the Roosevelt Center Gymnasium, 13th and Upshur sts. nw., will be 30 cents.

Thursday's program will feature Miss Doris Aldridge, singing southern mountain folk songs, plus the Square Dance Club of Baltimore. Washington teen age square dance groups will take over Friday night, while on Saturday the program will include Irish dances and a demonstration of "Development of the Dance."

MacArthur Club Active

The 1952 presidential campaign is still about three years away but backers of Gen. Douglas MacArthur already have their lines out. Two of them, in fact.

The new Washington telephone directory lists two telephones for a "MacArthur For President" club. What's more, the club is actively plugging for the general.

Ervin Hohensee, College Park, Md., runs the outfit. "On a full-time basis, too," he said.

He said the club was formed during the 1948 presidential campaign, but MacArthur didn't get any party nomination.

Hohensee thinks he knows why. "We started a little late, the last time," he explained. "But we're starting early for 1952."

Dr. L. M. Allen Dead at 76 in Winchester

Winchester, Va., May 2 (AP).—Dr. Lewis M. Allen, an obstetrician whose most celebrated case wasn't recognized as such for more than 40 years, died at a hospital here today. Dr. Allen attended Mrs. Wallis Warfield at her confinement in Monterey, Pa., in 1896. The baby girl became the Duchess of Windsor.

The 76-year-old specialist, a bank president and horse breeder as well, died after a long illness.

He was a native of Jefferson County, W. Va., but spent most of his life in Maryland and this section of Virginia.

After his graduation from the University of Maryland's medical school, he did graduate work abroad at Heidelberg and at Vienna. On his return to the United States he turned to the practice of obstetrics and taught at the University of Maryland.

While there he was called to Monterey, Pa., and on June 19, 1896, delivered the baby girl for whom King Edward VII of England abdicated his throne in 1936.

Surviving are his wife, the former Dorothy Gilpin of Baltimore; three sons, Howard Owen Allen of Washington, Lewis M. Allen, jr., of New York, and Douglas Brooke Allen of Rehoboth, Del.; a brother, Richard Holmes Allen of Richmond, Va., and two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Latrobe and Mrs. Hugh McCormick, both of Charles Town, W. Va.

Requiem Mass Is Set Today For Quezons

A requiem high mass will be celebrated at 9:30 a. m. today at the Cathedral of St. Matthew the Apostle for Mrs. Aurora Quezon, widow of the first president of the Philippines, her daughter, Maria Aurora and son-in-law Felipe Buencamino, 3d.

The three were slain in an ambush in a northeastern section of Luzon Thursday.

Six Philippine priests will participate in the mass, over which Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of Washington will preside. Father Francisco Araneta of Woodstock College, Md., will officiate.

Philippine Ambassador Joaquin M. Elizalde and United States Ambassador Myron M. Cowen will attend the rites as will Col. Neil Mara, representing the White House, Stanley Woodward and Richard R. Ely, representing the State Department, and others representing other United States departments of Government.

Mrs. Mary B. Tignor

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary B. Tignor, for 20 years organist and Sunday school teacher at Shiloh Baptist Church, will be held at 1 p. m. today at that church. Burial will be at Harmony Cemetary.

Mrs. Tignor died of a heart attack on Friday in her home at 1755 T st. nw. She was 73 years old.

Mrs. Tignor was born in Washington, June 21, 1875, and except for a short period when she taught music at Manassas Industrial School, lived here all her life.

She is survived by a son, Madison W. Tignor, 502 21st st. ne., a journalism teacher at Dunbar High School; a brother, Stephen T. Brooks of Swiftwater, Pa., and three grandsons, Donald, Sterling, and Gregory Tignor, all of the 21st st. address.

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Ever have a "ring and run" telephone caller? Yesterday afternoon, I was out in the kitchen making up some cookies to send to my nephew Tom (Tom is a corporal now at Camp Lee). Just when I was up to my elbows in cookie dough, the telephone began to ring.

I washed my hands as quick as I could and hurried in to answer it. But whoever it was that called only waited a few rings and then hung up. By the time I got there, there was no one on the line. I do wish people would give a body a minute to answer the telephone!

I suppose things like that work both ways, however. Perhaps I haven't been so patient, either, when calling other folks. From now on, I'm going to wait at least ten rings before I hang up.

Miskell Rites Set for Today; Masonic Temple Employe

Funeral services will be held today for Roy E. Miskell, 57, Masonic Temple building superintendent, who died of tuberculosis Saturday.

Mr. Miskell died at his home at 859 N. Harrison st., Arlington. Services will be held at 11 a. m. at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in National Memorial Park Cemetery, Falls Church.

In May, 1937, Mr. Miskell miraculously escaped death. He was found in the basement of his home with two bullet holes in his head and a revolver lying near by. Casualty Hospital doctors were amazed when he was brought to the hospital and continued to live.

The only explanation doctors could offer was that the bullets lodged in the upper or intellectural area of the brain. Instantaneous death would have resulted, they said, if the bullets had hit the lower part of the brain which governs physical activity.

A native of Ashburn, Va., Mr. Miskell came to Washington in his teens. He has worked for the Masons for 37 years and has been a member of the order for that length of time.

He was also a member of the Masonic Veterans Association, Dawson Dodge No. 16, F.A.A.M., Columbia Commandery No. 2, Knights Templar, and Almas Shrines.

Mr. Miskell is survived by his wife, Mrs. Flossie Adrain Miskell; two daughters, Mrs. Melvia Black, 2414 N. George Mason dr., Arlington, and Mrs. Louise Wood, Burnt Mills Hills, Silver Spring; a son Edgar Roy Miskell, of the Harrison st. address, and three brothers, Arthur E. Miskell, 1008 Rhode Island ave. ne., Henry T. Miskell, 3325 Ely pl. se., and James A. Miskell 65 M st. nw.

Mrs. Bertha I. Griffin

Mrs. Bertha I. Griffin, 72, wife of the late Hugh Patrick Griffin, died of a heart ailment yesterday at her home, 2854 Connecticut ave., nw.

Her husband, a compositor for the Government Printing Office and the War Department, died 12 years ago.

A native of Washington and a graduate of Notre Dame Convent, Mrs. Griffin is survived by five daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Gaunt of the Connecticut ave. address, Mrs. Genevieve H. Cunningham, 3616 16th st. nw.; Mrs. Agnes L. Johnson, Clearwater, Fla.; Mrs. Margaret A. Herrold, 2232 40th st. nw., and Mrs. Frances R. Kinnahan, 4110 Military dr. nw., and 10 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m., Thursday, at St. Thomas Apostle Church, Woodley rd., and 27th st. nw. Burial will be at Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Lee Siler

Hagerstown, Md., May 2 (AP).—Lee Siler, 80, who was principal of Johnstreet School in Martinsburg, W. Va., for 57 years, died in Hagerstown yesterday. Funeral services will be held in Hagerstown tomorrow.

John McCool

Col. May Fetes British Commandant

AIR Commandant F. H. Hanburg, director of the Women's Branch of the British Royal Air Force, was honored at a luncheon Sunday at Normandy Farms by Col. Geraldine May, director of the Women's Air Force of the United States. British Flight Officer A. S. Wright, and Maj. Millicent Anderson, aide to Colonel May, were among the guests.

Mrs. Dolly Gann entertained at a luncheon at Normandy Farms on Sunday for a company of five.

Left to right are Mrs. Dean Acheson, wife of the Secretary of State; Mrs. Truman; Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General, and Mrs. John R. Steelman, wife of the special assistant to the President. Eugenia and some of her diplomatic contemporaries sang Latin-American songs in a short program preceding the tea

Mrs. Truman Guest at Spanish Fete

By Elizabeth Maguire

TEA TIME was crowded with parties yesterday. Music and flowers brightened the Hall of Flags at the Pan American Union, where Mrs. Truman was honored by the White House Spanish Class. At the Australian Embassy, Mrs. Makin, wife of the Ambassador entertained for Mrs. H. V. Evatt, wife of the Australian Minister for External Affairs and president of the U.N. Assembly. Later in the day the Indian Charge d'Affaires and Mrs. B. B. Sen were hosts at a 6-to-8 party for members of the Indian Military Mission visiting in Washington.

Mrs. Truman arrived promptly at 4 at the Pan American Union. She was greeted at the door by Mrs. Dean Acheson, who was dressed in a trim navy blue suit and small yellow straw tied with navy bow. The First Lady wore a gray faille suit with gray straw hat and black accessories.

The two ladies were escorted to the Hall of Flags where they took places in the front row for a brief program.

History Told

Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, founder of the White House Spanish Class, traced its history and announced future plans. The class, she said, started in the second World War and was inspired by Cordell Hull's Good Neighbor Policy. Mrs. Truman enrolled as the wife of the Vice President, and when her husband became President, the doors of the White House were opened to the class. Because of present reconstruction work at the Executive Mansion, Mrs. Goodwin announced the class would meet in the future at the Pan American Union and would be known as White House Spanish Class of the Americas.

Dr. Alberto Lleras, Secretary General of the Pan American Union, was introduced by Mrs. Goodwin, and spoke a few words of welcome. After that a Latin American air "Cielita Lindo" was sung by diplomatic daughters, dressed in native costume. Tea and conversation followed.

Australian Tea

Ladies attending the tea at the Australian Embassy were received in the drawing room by Mrs. Makin and Mrs. Evatt. Dogwood and lilac decorated the embassy, and tea was served in the dining room.

Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador, and Mrs. Andrews, wife of the South African Ambassador, were guests, as well as Mme. Corea, wife of the Ambassador of Ceylon, and Mrs. Sen, wife of the Indian Charge d'Affaires.

Others in the distinguished company were Mrs. Dean Acheson, Mrs. John W. Snyder, Mrs. Louis Johnson, Mrs. Thomas C. Clark, Mrs. Jesse Donaldson, Mrs. Julius Krug, Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, Mrs. Maurice Tobin, Mrs. Charles Sawyer, Mrs. James R. Webb, Mrs. Edward H. Foley, Mrs. Duncan Phillips, Mrs. Luther Evans, Miss Dorothy Stirling and Mrs. Nelson Johnson.

Also present were Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Philip Graham, and Mrs. Harold Burton.

Military Gathering

The military of Washington made up the smart cocktail gathering at the Indian Embassy. In the receiving line were the Charge d'Affaires and Mrs. B. R. Sen, the Indian Minister of Defense, H. M. Patel, the Air Vice Marshal S. Mukerjee, and Maj. Gen. Kalwant Singh.

Nearly 300 guests filled the handsome drawing room and overflowed onto the terrace. Masses of pink and white azalea plants still bloomed in the garden, and the woods were strung with dogwood.

Gen. and Mrs. Wade Hampton Haislip were there with a house guest, Mrs. Arthur V. McDaniel of Montgomery, Alabama. The Ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Franks, she in pink flowered hat and navy blue suit, had a chat with the Indian Counselor and Mrs. Chopra, who are leaving soon for India.

The Ambassador of Ceylon and Mme. Corea were in the gathering, as well as the Ambassador of Iran, Hussein Ala, the British Minister and Lady Hoyer Millar, and the Syrian Minister and Mme. El-Khouri.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, Ronald Balcom Wed

Palm Beach, Fla., May 2—(AP)—Mrs. Lucile Parsons Vanderbilt and Ronald Balcom, both well known in Palm Beach and New York society, today were married in a quiet ceremony at Mrs. Vanderbilt's home.

The ceremony was performed by Municipal Judge Gordon W. Lynn at 12:30 p. m. (EST). Mrs. Vanderbilt's 11-year-old daughter, Lucille Margaret, and Mrs. Vanderbilt's father, J. Lester Parsons, were the only other persons who attended the wedding.

It was the second marriage for both. Mrs. Vanderbilt was divorced several years ago from George Vanderbilt. Balcom, well known as a sportsman, formerly was married to Millicent Rogers.

Following the ceremony a number of intimate friends attended a wedding breakfast.

The couple will honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., after which they will return here. In early June they will go to New York City and plan a trip to Europe later in the summer.

Mrs. Kennard Is Tea Hostess

WOMEN participating in the cancer drive were honored at a tea on Sunday by Mrs. Ralph B. Kennard of Chevy Chase. Distinguished guests in attendance included Mme. Tan, wife of the Minister of China, Mrs. Jesse M. Donaldson, wife of the Postmaster General, Mrs. Julius Krug, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, and Mrs. Tom C. Clark, wife of the Attorney General.

Mrs. Kennard's tea was for those interested in bringing the cancer project into their own social service groups.

"Your Child From 6 to 12"

Child Should Learn to Share Responsibility

Third in a series based on the Children's Bureau booklet "Your Child From 6 to 12".

By David Taylor Marke

HOME should be the place where each child is an individual, unlike anyone else in the world, even his own family. But also it should be the place where he learns to live with other individuals. He has to learn to be a giver as well as a taker.

Family life can hand down from the past values and customs considered "good" in the family's social group. But sensible parents know the world doesn't stand still. They seek to aid their children to take social change in stride. Here also the child can have daily lessons in sharing responsibilities as well as fun, food, clothes and love.

His share of responsibilities is at first very small, but he has a voice in deciding where to go for a picnic, or what color the house is to be painted. And he listens in turn.

Such sharing should be more than sham. One little girl complained one day: "It's this helping that I don't like. I wish I could be given something to do by myself. If I had a job to do that I could do my own way, I wouldn't mind working."

To be responsible, a child must have a stake in, must see the reason for, what he is asked to do. When parents try to understand what children see as important, things go better.

Between 6 and 12 a child can assume more and more responsibility for the care of his person. With a little reminding, he can, before the end of this period, take care of his own baths, select clothes to be worn, put them in the laundry. He can decide about haircuts, plan to have a clean dress or shirt for special occasions and take similar responsibilities.

Taking care of younger brothers and sisters needs careful thought. Mary, at 11, may take 6-year-old Joe to and from school on the bus. But it is hard to show her that that does not give her the right to say how much sugar he puts on his cereal.

Preparing for their own family life later, children should know family routine. At 12 they should put up their own lunches, do simple cooking, plan and do projects such as cleaning their rooms.

To help self-reliance, parents should ask children to do things they like to do. Children should often work beside parents—raking leaves, piling wood, washing windows or dishes. They develop long-time attitudes—and companionship.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Married to Man Who Seldom Shaves, Woman Didn't Mind at First, But Now She Does, And His Defiance Causes Her to Seek Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband's trademark is a several days' growth of beard. His associates joke with him about it and continue their sardonic exchange after he has departed.

I resent their derogatory remarks about Jim, but I confess that I am irked by his appearance and his indifferent attitude towards criticism of it. I assume it is a wife's prerogative to be concerned about her husband's grooming; and that my attempts to reform his shaving habits are not to be construed as effort to "dominate."

However, I have had no success in trying to persuade him to shave regularly, and during his youth his mother was also defeated on that score. At the first of our marriage I didn't think his negligence about shaving warranted any recrimination, but after some years I find such negligence disgusting.

Wife Now Balks at Being Valet

I HAVE tried diplomacy, discussion, scorn, pleading and an air of unconcern, in the order listed, but every tactic simply rouses vehement opposition. Consequently I have grown indifferent to keeping his clothes cleaned, pressed and mended since he won't cooperate to keep himself neat. It seems he wants to look like a bum.

Recently he takes delight in his superfluous whiskers, as if to taunt me because I detest that beard. He has become very haughty and that is the crux of our present problem. I implore you to aid us both to a better understanding or compromise solution of the vexing problem. S. K.

Average Man Glooms Inwardly at Shaving

DEAR S. K.: No doubt downy-cheeked lads get a kick out of shaving the first few times, until their whiskers begin to stiffen. But in general the average man glooms inwardly at shaving, as one of society's more tedious disciplines.

It is a grooming gesture that the average man never enjoys. He seems to bring a natural resistance to it. He undertakes it in the same grudging spirit that a small boy brings to brushing his molars or washing clean behind his ears. He is always glad when it's over and done for the day.

Many a man's idea of a real vacation "away from it all" is relaxing in surroundings where he feels free to go unshaven until time to return to routine. But even so, these average fellows don't approve of an unkempt face as the usual thing. They may regard shaving as something of a nuisance; but a necessary nuisance, I think they'd tell you.

Is This a Protest of Woman-Bossing?

FOR EXAMPLE, I've just polled four men on the question: "would you feel critical of a friend if he customarily looked unshaven; if his 'trademark' was a several days' growth of beard?" In different words, they all approximated the same answer, namely, that they would think he looked "unwashed," lazy and vaguely disagreeable.

One man said, "I'd think he ought to make up his mind, and either shave regularly, once or twice a day, or grow a permanent beard and keep it in decent shape." Which suggests a compromise solution of the vexing problems, provided Jim can take a hint. But likely he is a lazy, chip-on-shoulder sort of fellow, whose persistent stubble is a "neurotic" slap at "fussy" womankind, perhaps.

In short, it occurs to me that Jim has transferred from his mother to you an unconscious grudge against woman-dominance, inculcated in early experience. It's a comic thought, but really his intrinsic ability to grow whiskers and defy a female to manage them may be his last-ditch assertion of he-man claim to "freedom of soul!" For advice, let him wear his whiskers as he likes; keep him well groomed otherwise and kid his appearance, suggesting hair tonic for his beard, etc. M. H.

About Recipes For Passover

Can you give me a recipe for "Passover" Sponge Cake and Honey Cake? P. G. L.

Passover Sponge Cake

8 eggs, separated
1½ cups sugar
1 cup matzoth cake meal
Juice ½ lemon and grated rind
Juice of 1 orange

Beat egg yolks with sugar until light and add meal, lemon juice, lemon rind and orange juice. Beat egg whites until light and fold into egg yolk mixture. Place in a sponge cake pan and bake at 350 degrees F. for 45 minutes.

Honey Cake

1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 cup sour cream
2 cups flour
¼ cup shortening
1 teaspoon baking powder
Juice of 1 lemon

Cream the sugar and shortening together. Add honey, sour cream, lemon juice and beaten eggs. Sift dry ingredients together and add to the sugar-shortening mixture. Mix until smoth and bake in a greased pan in a 350-degree F. oven for 40 minutes.

I shall appreciate it very much if you will give me a recipe for pizza dough and also for vanilla wafers. W. M. R.

Pizza Dough

Add 3 spoonfuls of cognac or brandy to two beaten eggs and mix in enough flour to make a stiff dough. Add a pinch of salt. Mix the ingredients thoroughly and knead into a loaf which is not too hard. Roll into thin foil dough. When rolled out, melt 2/3 ounce butter and spread the dough with it. Fold so as to place buttered part inside and make a roll 6 inches wide. Now, cut in half, lengthwise, and then crosswise so as to obtain several rectangular pieces. Fry these pieces in abundant oil or virgin lard. When fried, dash powdered sugar on the pieces and serve. Amounts given will serve four.

Vanilla Wafers

1 cup shortening	3 cups all-purpose flour
2 cups sugar	2 teaspons baking powder
3 eggs	½ teaspon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla	½ cup milk

Cream shortening and add sugar gradually. Add well-beaten eggs and the vanilla. Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together and add alternately with the milk. Mix until smooth. Chill in refrigerator for 1 hour or longer. Drop by small teaspoonfuls on a slightly greased brown paper placed on a cooky sheet and bake on center rack of oven. Bake 10 minutes at 400 degrees F. Recipe makes approximately 6 dozen cookies.

Judd Sees Civilization at Stake

Communist Expansion in Asia Threat to U. S., GOP Club Told

By Genevieve Reynolds

REPRESENTATIVE WALTER JUDD (R., Minn.) declared yesterday that Russia so far has outsmarted the United States in both Europe and Asia.

"The Communists diverted our attention to Europe while taking over China," he told members of the League of Republican Women in a prelunchеon address at the Mayflower Hotel. "Europe's resources are burned out and the Soviet is taking over the areas with resources."

Refering to the negotiations over the lifting of the Berlin blockade, the Minnesota Representative asserted, "We have an apparent small victory in Europe, but what matter the feint when the Communists take over a whole Continent."

The speaker warned that the war in China is the key for Communist expansion toward India, Iran and the North Pacific, including Alaska.

"We Republicans have to take some of the blame for the China situation because we didn't yelp long and loud enough," he said.

Then the speaker said, "I want to congratulate Attorney General Tom Clark for at last recognizing that the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy is a Communist front organization." The Attorney General issued a supplementary list of subversive organizations on April 27 in which he included the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy. The committee's headquarters is in New York.

Terming the Communist threat a "glacier moving relentlessly over the world," he warned that the small group of Communists who took over Russia about 30 years ago now have taken over one third of the world. "For the first time in history every civilization is under simultaneous attack," he explained. "For 30 years we ignored it. But it (Communism) will destroy all civilization unless we stop it.

"The world struggle basically is between those who believe that all problems can be solved only from the top down," he continued, "and between those who believe in putting faith in the ordinary people and solving problems from the bottom up."

The Minnesota Representative called upon the audience to stop this Government's trend toward "more and more centralized Government."

Mrs. Carroll Kearns, wife of the Pennsylvania Representative, presided at the league's final session of the season and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, acting program chairman, introduced the speaker. Mrs. Kearns is the newly elected league president, succeeding Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington.

Church Women Hear of India

If Christianity is to survive in India today, it must remain united, Miss Sara Chakko told the Washington Council of Church Women yesterday.

Miss Chakko, president of the Isabella Thoburn College in India and a Christian, told the Church Women that the Christians were economically poor in India since they were drawn from the outcast communities who were coming into the church for social as well as spiritual salvation.

To India's Hindus and Moslems, "castes" and "denominations" are practically synonymous, Miss Chakko explained to the members and guests celebrating the Council's twenty-fifth anniversary at the YWCA luncheon.

The struggle for the independence of India was coupled with religious friction, she said, with "neo-Hinduism and nationalism walking hand-in-hand."

The end of religious animosity came, according to Miss Chakko, at the death of Mahatma Gandhi when "the people were afraid and stunned at this thing that had happened."

Few blamed Ghandhi's assassin, she explained, as much as they blamed the religious bitterness and hatred in their own hearts and minds.

With Gandhi's death, religio-political parties ceased to exist, she continued, and the constitution of India today guarantees full freedom of religion.

Mrs. Julien Friant Installed By Women's Democratic Club

MRS. JULIEN FRIANT was installed president of the Woman's National Democratic Club yesterday at the annual meeting at the clubhouse.

The meeting was held following the laying of a wreath at the tomb of Woodrow Wilson at the Washington Cathedral by the outgoing president, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, and a buffet luncheon at the clubhouse.

Miss Frances Perkins, paying tribute to the memory of the World War I President at the cathedral ceremony, said, "from his mind and spirit we continue to gain courage for the tasks of today."

"He could establish these ideals," she continued, "because he was a scholar who learned without pedantry, a Christian who walked humbly before God and a Samaritan who had observed the suffering of others and had not passed by."

Other new officers of the club include Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, first vice president; Mrs. Frank Pace, jr., second vice president; Mrs. Harrington Wimberly, recording secretary; Mrs. Joseph E. Casey, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Jackson Davis, treasurer.

Members of the board of governors include Mrs. Charles F. Brannan, Mrs. William C. Clayton, Mrs. Philip F. Dodson, Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, Mrs. Claude Orchard and Mrs. Mastin White.

The nominating committee for 1950, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Paul Porter, includes Mrs. Clinton Henderson, Mrs. T. L. Candle, Mrs. E. H. Hedrich, Mrs. Edward R. Stitt, Mrs. William Warren, and Mrs. South Trimble.

At the meeting, club members voted Mrs. Harriman an honorary lifetime vice president of the club.

Winnie's Palette Success Inspires Local Amateurs To Unveil Their Talents

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

WINSTON CHURCHILL, in a roundabout way, will have a lot to answer for because of his predilection for brush work. Ladies who have never hefted anything weightier than a lipstick brush have taken to daubing on the theory that if Winnie can do it, so can they. Sometimes, however, the results are heartening and hidden talent is brought happily to light.

On Wednesday, May 4, on a one-day stand only, a number of talented amateurs will hang their paintings at the Women's National Democratic Club from 10 a. m. to 7 p. m. The pictures will all be for sale, the proceeds benefiting the Thrift Shop.

Mrs. Philip O. Coffin, an artist of no mean stature, has arranged the exhibition and is contributing of her Massachusetts North Shore landscapes. Dr. Harry Kerr executes Nantucket views and Rear Admiral C. R. Train, the only other masculine exhibitor, has turned out some rugged numeros. Among the lady exhibitors will be Mrs. Eugene C. Carusi, one of Washington's sveltest best-dresseds, who whipped up a portrait of Mrs. Jim Barnes' gill-sized bow-wow "Buttercup," while Mrs. Arthur Krock, shivering at her temerity, is hanging two "masterpieces" done on a recent Mexican trip.

Mrs. Dwight Davis is a surprise starter. Inspired by Mr. Churchill, she first set brush to canvas last summer and, considering Mrs. Davis' genius for interior decoration, not at all surprisingly has created several lovely paintings of flowers, and of Southampton's coast line.

Mrs. Clark Clifford, however, is in quite a pox. Unaware that all paintings exhibited may be bought, she gave away in advance all her chef d'oeuvres!

Grist for the Dinner Mill

SINCE the Will Claytons announced their impending divorce after 46 years of matrimony, one of the most felicitous topics of high-plane dinner conversation has been the selection of a second helpmate for the magnetic former Assistant Secretary of State. It would be unwise to disclose possible entrants in this worthwhile talking marathon, but a tipoff on the quarry's whereabouts is permissible.

Mr. Clayton has slipped back unobtrusively to Washington and is devoting his time and effort to furthering Clarence Streit's Federal Union. The idea behind the Federal Union, as explained in Mr. S.'s book, "Union Now," plugs all the Atlantic communities getting together plus any country with a parliamentarian form of government.

New Book on Roosevelt

MISS GRACE TULLY, who was President Roosevelt's valued secretary and confidante for some 17 years, is completing a book titled, "FDR, My Boss." An early autumn publication is indicated. The book should be definitive on Franklin D. Roosevelt, the man, not Roosevelt the politician. It covers her 17 years' experience and has been assembled from random notes and personal experiences. It is to be an intimate revelation minus the tasteless gooey overtones ladies who work for highly placed gents are too prone to reveal.

Miss Tully hasn't disappeared from the Capital arena by any means. She's right here, still working for the Boss. Miss Tully is executive secretary of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Foundation Scholarship. The foundation, which will launch a fund-raising campaign probably in June, will further the exchange of scholars in a manner somewhat similar to the Rhodes scholarship plan. The Roosevelt students, however, will major principally in the study of human relations.

Miss Tully, who's wearing some snappy headgear these spring days, appeared Monday on Bab Lincoln's WOL radio program, lunched at the Mayflower with BL), and told a nice story about her late boss.

President Roosevelt was showered with gifts of food but wasn't allowed to sample them until the Agriculture Department had tested them for possible poison. One day Miss Tully mentioned that some elegant oysters had arrived but he couldn't have them until the usual tests had been effected. "Wait a day?" exclaimed the President. "Certainly not, they'll go bad. Let the staff eat some of them, then if you're all still alive by 7 p. m. I can have the rest!"

Heads China Tiffin Club

Mrs. Clifton B. Cates, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps, was elected president of the China Tiffin Club at the group's final luncheon of the season held yesterday in the Cathay Restaurant. She succeeds Mrs. Ralph R. Kennard.

Others elected include Mrs. P. W. Kuo, vice president; Mrs. S. F. Huang, secretary, and Miss Georgette Basset, treasurer.

Elected at large to pinch hit for various absentee officers were Mrs. Richard Cutts, Mrs. A. C. J. Sabalot and Mrs. William L. Bales.

The club is composed of Americans who lived more than a year in China and members of the Chinese groups at the Embassy or on various Commissions.

State Pay Listed For More Editors

Chicago, May 2 (AP).—The Chicago Daily News said today that "the discovery of more names of Illinois editors and publishers on the State payroll during the regime of former Gov. (Dwight) Green swelled the total to 37 and the amount collected to more than $400,000, a Daily News search has revealed."

The newspaper listed the following names, identification, total State salary and period of time which the newspaper said the salary covered:

Raymond J. Peacock, Thirty-ninth Ward (Chicago), Republican committeeman and publisher of a string of North and Northwest Side neighborhood newspapers, $31,884, revenue department supervisor of sales tax collections in the Chicago area, January 16, 1942, to January 31, 1949.

Fred J. Fulle, publisher of the Suburban Times and Republican committeeman of Maine township in Des Plaines, a Chicago suburb, $23,326, from September 1, 1942, to January 15, 1949, field investigator in the Highway Division general office and later clerk in the State auditor's office.

Carl M. Davidson, executive editor of the Danville Commercial News, $6640, January, 1946, to November 30, 1948, field investigator in the State Labor Department.

Robert Poisall, sports writer, Danville Commercial News, $6635, as a Labor Department field investigator from 1943 through 1945 and later as a clerk in the office of public instruction. "The auditor's office said that Poisall was on the State payroll as of April 29 under the Republican superintendent of public instruction, Vernon L. Nickell."

All those named explained that they had worked to earn the money paid them.

Czechs Seize U. S. Permit Officer for Filming Parade

Prague, Czechoslovakia, May 2—(UP)—Czech police seized Martin S. Bowe, American military permit officer, and his wife while they were taking color films of the Prague May Day parade, it was disclosed today.

The Bowes were held an hour and a half before they were released. Their films were seized.

Bowe said after he was questioned he was asked to sign a statement that he had been properly treated. He said "the treatment was considerate and decent."

Bowe, who carried a Czech diplomatic card, is the only remaining western military permit officer here.

Alexandria Man Pleads Guilty in Chaining of Son

Clark Holloway, 69, pleaded guilty in Alexandria Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court to a charge of cruelty to a minor in chaining his young son in a shed.

Willie Holloway, 9, told police his father chained him in a rickety shed behind their home at 516 N. Alfred st., as punishment for skipping half a day of school. He was found about 9 a. m. with a chain around his leg, the other end secured to an overhead beam. Willie said his father put him there at 5 a. m. without breakfast.

After a closed hearing, Judge Marion B. West continued the case until May 18 for sentencing. Court officials said Holloway, a laborer, faces a maximum sentence of 12 months in jail, a $500 fine or both.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Mother's Day Gift Idea Provides Plenty of Food for Thought

A District Liner who prefers to remain anonymous has some timely thoughts. She writes:

"Mother's Day is almost here. The ads tell us that we should present our mothers with platinum wrist watches, electric toasters, refrigerators and sleek convertibles.

"But I feel that there are many people who would prefer to observe this lovely day by sending a box of food to Europe—in Mother's name, or in her memory.

"For those who are concerned with the element of time in getting food to Europe, I recommend SAFE. This organization gets food to where it's needed most, and gets it there in the shortest possible time—for example, less than 6 days to the Russian Zone of Germany.

"The telephone number for SAFE is Sterling 7224."

I must confess that until this letter arrived, I had never heard of SAFE (Save a Friend in Europe).

But I'll have the whole story on my radio program (WTOP, 10 a. m.) today. Mrs. N. B. Greenwood, local representative of the group, will be on hand to discuss the organization's work.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four 7-week-old kittens and mother cat." (Chestnut 0220 after 6 p. m.)

KEEP GOING, HALT!

A horse named Halt is now being mentioned as a Kentucky Derby threat. What a problem he poses.

Imagine betting on the steed—and then being afraid to shout his name as the field thunders down the stretch.

MISCELLANY

A single delivery of the mail brings three clippings of the same typographical error in our favorite newspaper. Mrs. LeRoy Hafer of 3411 Varnum st., Brentwood, Md.; James D. Schultz of 4907 Blackfoot rd., Berwyn, Md., and Giuny La Master, of 321 34th st. ne., team up to blow the whistle on our proofreaders for permitting "carnival ballrooms" to fly through the air, when it would have made ever so much more sense in the original version (carnival balloons) . . . Thelma P. Murto of 419 Oglethorpe st. nw., likes the sign on the 7th st. movie house: "Always A Good Show; Sometimes A Swell One" . . . Here's another old-time streetcar token for Children's Hospital—this time from Fred M. Sullivan, who confuses me completely by sending it in an envelope imprinted "Edmund M. O'Sullivan" . . . and Albert J. Droll of 505 1st st., Eastport, Md., is still trying to figure out our recent sports item about the Maryland Freshman blanking the Montgomery Junior College nine by a score of 910 . . . I should have made a separate paragraph of that one, and captioned it: "A. Droll Item."

JUSTICE (?) DEPT.

Morton Kizner of 3542 6th st. nw. forwards two clippings from the same issue of this newspaper. Both stories deal with sentences handed down by the Fairfax County Circuit Court.

The first states that a man convicted of a $53 robbery got eight years in prison. The second reveals that a man convicted of killing a boy in a hit-and-run auto accident was sent to prison for three years.

SHALL WE JOIN THE LADIES?

Franklin Spencer Edmonds of 4800 Connecticut ave. nw. is a member of the Old Timers Club.

He reports that an announcer on WPIK told his listeners last week that "Saturday will be Ladies' Day"—whereupon the Old Timers chartered two buses to take their ladies to the ball game.

But when they got to the Stadium they were told that no Ladies' Day had been scheduled, and it was all a mistake.

So District Liner Edmonds wants to know how come the announcer was so mixed up.

The program director at WPIK says he doesn't know anything about any of his boys announcing a Ladies' Day—and Calvin Griffith says he may not schedule any this season.

Young Cal explains that the ladies practically ignored their "days" last year, with the final one of the 1948 season drawing only 1500 of the gentler sex.

"I can't understand it," says Cal. "It's very disappointing."

Anybody who can offer an explanation of why the female fans failed to get excited about the Nats is invited to communicate with Mr. Griffith.

Anybody who can offer an explanation of why fans of either sex SHOULD get excited about the Nats is invited to communicate with Herb Heft. His assignment is to remain enthusiastic about the team for the remainder of the season, regardless of how much it hurts.

MOTORIST'S LAMENT

C. P. Sonneborn of 2104 S. Randolph st., Arlington, Va., reports that negotiating Memorial Bridge (and its approaches) during the morning rush hour results in jingles like this:

Many autos on the street,
And policemen on the beat;
Blockade signs in every lane,
In my neck it gives a pain.

PERSONAL NOTES

Thomas A. Wiggins, 1660 Lanier pl.: Welcome to the fold. I'm forwarding your subscription to our circulation department.

Ralph Fagan: Thank you, kind sir.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Ersatz Replacing Milk in Bread

By Drew Pearson

The American housewife doesn't know it, but more and more of the food she buys for her family contains the same basic "ersatz" ingredients which I. G. Farben, the notorious Nazi cartel, developed for German troops and civilians in the last war. The German people lived on "ersatz" during most of the war.

Frank Keefe

The extent of this Farben-izing of American food, unbeknown to the consumer, has been partially investigated by the Food and Drug Administration, which has been holding hearings on the use of synthetic substitutes for milk and shortening in bread.

However, the whole story hasn't been told the public, chiefly because of official buckpassing. Food and drug officials wring their hands and say they have no authority under the law for a full-fledged investigation. They admit, however, that more and more chemical substitutes are being used in various foods and that they do not know what the final result will be on the health of the Nation.

Meanwhile, Republican Representative Frank Keefe of Wisconsin, who has been quizzing the Food and Drug Administration, has made some startling disclosures about what goes into many of the things we eat. Keefe charges:

1—That bread can and is being chemicalized to a point where it has little if any nutritional value;

2—That nonnutritional chemicals, "mostly the result of the work of I. G. Farben chemists," are being palmed off on the unsuspecting public, in place of milk, fats and eggs in such foods as cake, doughnuts, cereal mixes, peanut butter, ice cream, candy, salad dressing, milk drinks, synthetic whipping cream, pickles and food flavors;

3—Some manufacturers and pharmaceutical houses that produce synthetic foodstuffs have not made adequate research to determine if the substitutes are poisonous. While there is no proof of toxicity in most of the substitutes, Keefe points out that seven persons died after using a substitute salt prepared for people who cannot use organic salt in their diet.

Taste Comes First

The synthetic ingredient which many bakers now use in bread is a compound of polyoxyethylene glycol and stearic acid, known as polyoxyethylene monostearate. Stearic acid is derived from animal fats, but polyoxyethylene glycol, a substance similar to purified anti-freeze for automobiles, has no nutritional value.

I. G. Farben experimented widely with polyoxyethylene products as a base for "ersatz" German foods during the war.

The American compound is produced chiefly by the Atlas Powder Co. of Wilmington, Del., and Glyco Products Co. of Brooklyn and is distributed in slightly different forms under the trade names "Sta-Soft" and "MYRJ-45" Both keep bread soft for a long period, so that a housewife who feels a loaf in a grocery store thinks she is getting over-fresh bread.

In fact, this deceptive quality—plus a pleasing taste the chemical gives to bread—is the chief selling point of its distributors. Vernon C. Usher, Inc., of Chicago, which makes a somewhat similar synthetic compound called "Top-Scor," frankly states, in his literature to the baking trade.

"In speaking of higher quality, we mean products that not only look good, but are appealing to the sense of taste as well...Bakery goods that are not overburdened with fats and other richness to the point where substantially less is eaten.

"We believe that every person—man, woman or child—eats and drinks only that which appeals to the sense of taste, with little or no thought of nutritious value; so, we emphasize, again, that higher quality bakery goods, in our opinion, are attained by balancing formulas to a point where they are not overburdened with rich substances which, in the end, tend to discourage and decrease consumption."

Agriculture Dept. Warning

One Government agency that is carefully watching on this nutritional question is the Department of Agriculture. The department foresees not only higher support prices for surplus dairy products, costing the taxpayers millions, but a serious economic threat to dairy farming if baking chemicals come into wide vogue.

In a confidential report prepared for Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan, Ralph Trigg, Chief of the Production and Marketing Division, points out:

"It is our opinion that the department should object to the approval of chemical softeners as acceptable ingredients in baking formulas, because of the effect on the health of the Nation, since evidence indicates that the substitution of chemical softeners for fats, eggs and milk considerably reduces the food value of the product.

"If the facts warrant, and if the Food and Drug Administration, because of statutory limitations, is unable to prevent or limit the use of synthetics as substitutes for natural foods in baking products, we would further suggest that the department request new legislation on this matter."

Truman on New Mexico

When the President is pleased, his face lights up and two dimples pop into his cheeks. Thus his face gave him away the other day over prospects of returning to old haunts in New Mexico.

He was invited to slip down to Santa Fe this fall

Truman wouldn't make any flat promises to attend, but he recalled with his chuckle his early experiences in the State. He had visited New Mexico in 1909 and again in 1924, he related. Both times he had stopped to rummage through an old curio shop and chat with the owner, the late J. C. Candelario. One prize item Candelario showed off was a trunk which he said had belonged to Lew Wallace, early New Mexican Governor and author of "Ben Hur."

Truman recalled how Candelario had told him with a broad wink: "If I sell that one, it will be the ninth one I have sold."

Chuckling so that his dimples showed, the President also recalled another of Candelario's cracks. It seems he used to exhibit a small skull which he claimed was that of Napoleon. Once a doubting woman customer had asked whether the skull wasn't too small to have been Napoleon's.

"Well, that was his skull when he was a boy," the President quoted the old curio keeper's reply.
